How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Give your doctor a chance to head off cancer before it gets you first, warns the Minnesota state medical association.

With proper medical care received in time countless thousands of Americans are being cured of cancer each year. Unfortunately, every fourth cancer death is a needless death. Consequently, the importance of detection of cancer in its early, and more curable, states is important.

Cancer, briefly described, is a disorderly growth of the body's tissue cells. As they rapidly reproduce they force themselves among the normal cells, encircling them and, sooner or later sapping them of their nourishment. As the cancer cells multiply they break away from the original site and move through the lymph vessels to a lymph node or other parts of the body through the lymph channels or blood stream.

Cancer in its early stages does not always cause pain or discomfort. This is why early detection cannot be over-emphasized. Once the cancer has begun to metastasize or spread to other parts of the body it becomes more difficult, and often impossible, to diagnose and treat it properly. Parts of the body where cancer is more likely to develop will be carefully examined by the doctor during a physical checkup. They include the skin, head and neck, chest, breat and pelvis, abdomen and the rectum and colon. He will also check the urine for traces of blood—another possible symptom of cancer.

Psoriasis (pronounced so RYE ah sis) is a skin disease that affects at least one out of fifty persons in the United States, advises the Minnesota state medical association.

It appears as itchy, silvery-scaled red patches on the elbows, knees, scalp and trunk, as well as on the hands and other parts of the body. The under arm and genital area may be involved. The elbows, knees and trunk are most frequently the areas on which the characteristic thick red scaling plaques appear. In the scalp, red plaques with sharp borders usually are visible at the hair line. They shed large quantities of silvery white scales resembling severe dandruff.

Psoriasis, in its acute stages, can cause small, rain-drop-like lesions over the body. Although the exact cause of psoriasis is unknown, much more is known about this disease today than in the past. It is not an infection and it is not contagious. It may be hereditary. Injury to the skin often precedes psoriatic lesions. Psoriasis usually improves during the summer and worsens during the winter.

There is no sure cure for psoriasis. Despite much research there is no simple treatment which is best for all patients. Treatment must be determined on an individual basis and may include various ointments, creams, lotions, several forms of systemic therapy and physical therapy, such as carefully regulated exposure to ultraviolet light or sunlight.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Give your doctor a chance to head off cancer before it gets you first, warns the Minnesota state medical association.

With proper medical care received in time countless thousands of Americans are being cured of cancer each year. Unfortunately, every fourth cancer death is a needless death. Consequently, the importance of detection of cancer in its early, and more curable, states is important.

Cancer, briefly described, is a disorderly growth of the body's tissue cells. As they rapidly reproduce they force themselves among the normal cells, encircling them and, sooner or later sapping them of their nourishment. As the cancer cells multiply they break away from the original site and move through the lymph vessels to a lymph node or other parts of the body through the lymph channels or blood stream.

Cancer in its early stages does not always cause pain or discomfort. This is why early detection cannot be over-emphasized. Once the cancer has begun to metastasize or spread to other parts of the body it becomes more difficult, and often impossible, to diagnose and treat it properly. Parts of the body where cancer is more likely to develop will be carefully examined by the doctor during a physical checkup. They include the skin, head and neck, chest, breat and pelvis, abdomen and the rectum and colon. He will also check the urine for traces of blood--another possible symptom of cancer.

Psoriasis (pronounced so RYE ah sis) is a skin disease that affects at least one out of fifty persons in the United States, advises the Minnesota state medical association.

It appears as itchy, silvery-scaled red patches on the elbows, knees, scalp and trunk, as well as on the hands and other parts of the body. The under arm and genital area may be involved. The elbows, knees and trunk are most frequently the areas on which the characteristic thick red scaling plaques appear. In the scalp, red plaques with sharp borders usually are visible at the hair line. They shed large quantities of silvery white scales resembling severe dandruff.

Psoriasis, in its acute stages, can cause small, rain-drop-like lesions over the body. Although the exact cause of psoriasis is unknown, much more is known about this disease today than in the past. It is not an infection and it is not contagious. It may be hereditary. Injury to the skin often precedes psoriatic lesions. Psoriasis usually improves during the summer and worsens during the winter.

There is no sure cure for psoriasis. Despite much research there is no simple treatment which is best for all patients. Treatment must be determined on an individual basis and may include various ointments, creams, lotions, several forms of systemic therapy and physical therapy, such as carefully regulated exposure to ultraviolet light or sunlight.

The Saturday sessions featured the annual business meeting of the new organization and included the election of officers and other committees and boards. Albert V. Hartl, Fergus Falls, headed the nominating committee.

The conference will conclude Saturday noon with a closing luncheon to be addressed by Jad Asfeld, St. Paul, a volunteer scout leader who serves as president of Area 2 of the North Central region of the Boy Scouts of America. Legislators Vote Pay Increase At End Of Session

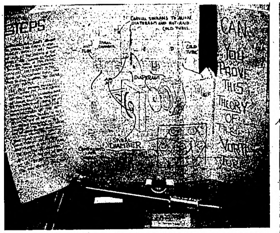
Members of the House of Representatives and Senate voted a $300 per month pay increase for future legislators before adjournment of the 68th session. The 43 per cent increase was added to a pensions and retirement bill by the Senate on the last night of business before adjournment Friday. The House first refused to adopt the bill, then reconsidered its action and passed the legislation 69-54.

If the bill becomes law, pay for state legislators will increase from $700 a month to $1,000 a month, beginning Jan. 15, 1975. The bill also increases retirement benefits for legislators, state patrolmen and firemen. A legislator who had served eight years could retire at age 60 and receive 40 per cent of his salary and expenses.

The original bill, H.F. 3400 (Patton) related only to retirement for legislators and state patrolmen. The Senate added nine amendments Thursday night relating to retirement plans and investment of pension funds, and the pay increase, sponsored by Sen. Edward Gearty (Minneapolis).

During debate on the salary increase, House majority Leader Irvin Anderson pointed out that the pay increases had been widely discussed during the session, but no action had been anticipated by the House. Anderson said, "If we do grant ourselves a realistic pay increase the question of per diem (reimbursement for expenses) will be studied very closely so that in the future we can treat it in a more realistic manner." He assured members that per diem would be studied during the interim, and that it might be adjusted next session.

Rep. Thomas Newcome (White Bear Lake) pointed out that many legislators had made financial sacrifices to serve in the legislature, "because it has turned out to be a full time job." Newcome added that the increase was politically difficult to support, but that the members should be aware that they were not now adequately compensated for the hours they put it in at the Capitol and in their districts.



FIRST PLACE in the senior division (grades 10 through 12) of Plummer's school science fair went to this entry by Rod Shand. The Pershing high school senior constructed a vortex tube and prepared his display illustrating the principles involved in the device.

Minn. Farmers Still Plan To Seed Record Crop

March planting intentions show that Minnesota farmers still hope to put a record acreage, some 2-million acres or 1-million over 1973, into food production this year despite the fertilizer shortage, agricuture commissioner Jon Wefald said recently.

"Farmers have made only comparatively minor adjustments since the January survey, comfirming that they will probably sweat out the fertilizer shortage until the latest possible date in May when final planting decisions will have to be made," he commented.

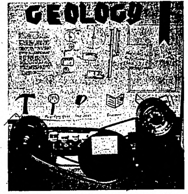
Corn, always Minnesota's biggest field crop, has been trimmed by farmers by only 70,000 acres since January intentions and as of March 1 farmers hope to plant 7-million acres, the second biggest on record. The fertilizer shortage will have its greatest impact on corn production.

Most significant change in the new intentions compared to January is an 11 per cent increase in wheat acreage. Commissioner Wefald said this shift apparently picks up some of the cuts in corn, soybean and surgarbeet planting intentions.

A 200,000-acre or five per cent reduction in soybean acreage intentions is a mild surprise, with many farmers considering shifting corn acreage into soybeans if fertilizer is not available. However, any such shift would not show up until May or June intentions, as soybeans, which produce nitrogen, can be planted in some areas of Minnesota as late as early July.

Despite the five per cent trim, the intended soybean acreage on March 1 is 4.4-million acres and would be the second largest acreage on record, topped only by 1973.

Minnesota farmers intend to plant 2.5-million acres of oats, nine per cent below 1973 and the smallest acreage of oats since the turn of the century; nearly 3-million acrs of wheat, 13 per cent above last year; 894,000 acres of barley, down one per cent; 200,000 acres of flax, 19 per cent more than last year; 103,200 acres of potatoes, 10 per cent more than last year; 170,000 acres of sugarbeets, up 28 per cent.



ROCK POLISHING was the topic of this geology display which won first prize in the junior division (grades seven through nine) of Plummer's science fair. Bob Brekke and Mike Skjerven, eighth graders, collaborated in the project.

Guide Available To Help Guard Against Losses

Preventive measures to protect your home from burglary and fire and to protect yourself from home accidents are outlined in a free "Guide to Home and Personal Security" prepared for persons in the 50-plus age group by Action for Independent Maturity, a division of the American association for retired persons.

Noting the increasing rate of home burglaries, particularly in the suburbs, the guide points out that burglars tend to look for "easy pickings." By providing basic information on locks, lights, burglar alarms and automatic timers, the guide can help "make your home a more difficult and unattractive target for thieves."

Also highly recommended is an identification program now established in a number of U. S. cities in which a citizen engraves his valuable objects with an identification number that is known to the police.

The greatest threat to your life and well-being in the home is the common home accident, according to the guide, particularly accidents caused by the careless handling and misuse of electrical appliances. A checklist designed to help you check safety standards around the home and "think safety" is included.

In a section on fire prevention, the guide points out that most home fires can be prevented if families are aware of "principal risk" areas in the house and of how to safeguard them.

Also included is a section which explains the different types of homeowners insurance and suggests how much coverage your home should have.

The guide to home and personal safety is one of a series of booklets published by the group to help pre-retirees plan for successful living in their mature years.

BSC Will Host Math Contest To HS Students

Bemidji state college will host a mathematics contest for high school students April 6, with two divisions of competition for ninth-tenth graders and juniors-seniors.

According to Dr. Roger Avelsgaard of the BSC department of math and computer sciences, the contest will attract over 400 competitors from more than 30 northern and central Minnesota schools.

"We will combine the top three scores from each school to determine team winners for the two divisions and we also plan to award plaques to the first five individual placewinners in each division," Avelsgaard says.

Registration for the April 6 Math contest will begin about 9:30 a.m. with testing to begin at 10 a.m. After the 400 contestants have completed their tests, they will lunch either at Hobson Memorial Union or at the BSC food service in Walnut Hall.

Afternoon activities will begin at 1 p.m. with computer demonstration by BSC computer sciences students and faculty, mathematics and computer enrichment sessions and tours of the BSC campus facilities.

Awards will be presented to school team winners and individuals at a 2 p.m. ceremony that will be held in Hagg-Sauer Hall auditorium on the BSC campus.

Further information about the contest is available from Dr. Avelsgaard at Hagg-Sauer Hall, BSC, 56601.

Restrictions On Load Limits To Curtail Traffic

Access to and from 117 of the 740 Minnesota municipalities on the 12,000-mile state trunk highway system is once again restricted to lighter trucks for a three-month period while the frost thaws out of the ground.

The 117 segments of the trunk highway system connecting the communities with the outside world are temporarily posted with gross weight load restrictions ranging from maximums of four to seven tons. Vehicles in excess of the maximum gross weights posted would destroy the roads.

Of the 854 municipalities in the state, 470 are entirely dependent upon truck transportation for shipping out goods produced or bringing in the necessities of life. The county seats of Center City, Grand Marais and St. Peter in Chisago, Cook and Nicollet counties, respectively, are entirely dependent upon truck transporation.

Numerous county highways and county roads are also forbidden to heavier trucks and other vehicles during the springtime breakup, by order of county highway engineers.

Motor vehicles entering or leaving many communities are restricted as to gross weight tonnages while roads are posted during the springtime breakup period. Posting may vary with local conditions unforeseen at the time this tabulation was made. Grygla, 6 tons, and Goodridge, Brooks and Plummer, 7 tons, are among the communities with such restrictions in this area.

Two "Streakers" Fined $200 Each

Five complaints for indecent exposure were heard yesterday (Tuesday) in Pennington county court in connection with recent "streaking" incidents in this city. Two of the defendants pleaded guilty and were each fined $200. The other three pleaded not guilty and will be scheduled for trial.

Guilty pleas to indecent exposure charges were entered by Greg Gustafson of Thief River Falls and James H. Hofius of Red Lake Falls. Arne L. Keifenheim of Red Lake Falls and Wayne A. Halbasch and Gregory Kauppila of Thief River Falls each pleaded not guilty to similar charges. Willet of Plummer, Jerry A. Muzzy of Route 2, and Richard D. Bjerklie of Trail. Each was fined $300. Moose also pleaded guilty to a charge for fraudulent use of license plates and was fined an additional $75. Bjerklie also Smiles Approved By City Council At Meeting Tues.

At an adjourned meeting held last night (Tuesday), the Thief River Falls city council approved plans to paint two smile faces on the city's new water tower. Although the color of the faces was not specified, under the construction contract, the tower itself will be painted wedgewood blue. Addition of the two smiles will cost $600 each.

The council also reached a decision to exercise an option on about 40 acres of property owned by Randall Noper and located west of the facilities of Arctic Enterprises. Sewer and water lines will be extended to the property to prepare it for use as in industrial park under the terms of an $843,400 federal grant officially accepted by the city last week.

Approval was given to hire Barb Olson to work in the utilities office.

The status of property at the sports arena and related obligations of the Pennington county fair board were discussed briefly and it was determined that the council or its representatives would have to meet with the board to clarify the situation.

Annual Round-Up For Pre-School Children Sat.

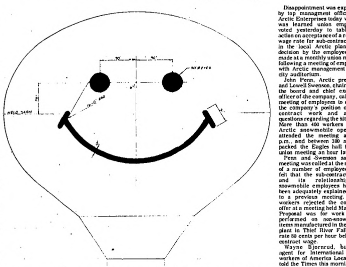
Area parents of pre-school children are again reminded that the annual pre-school roundup will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Washington elementary school.

All children in school district 504, including St. Hilaire, who will be five years old on or before September 1 and who will be entering kindergarten in the fall, are asked to attend.

The child's birth certificate and health information should be brought to the roundup, as well as the red measles vaccine slip if one was prepared when the child was vaccinated.

Children unable to attend or anyone eligible who did not receive an invitation to the roundup are asked to call Mrs. Margaret Race at 681-2700 or Mrs. Dennis Kezar at 681-4198.

Arctic's Employees Table Action On Company Offer



TWO "HAPPY FACES" are scheduled to appear in Thief River Falls in response to a suggestion by fifth grade students at Northrop elementary school. At last night's (Tuesday's) meeting, the city council approved plans to paint smiles on the city's new water tower at a cost of $600 per face or a total of $1,200. The color of the smiles was not specified at last night's meeting. However, the tower itself will be wedgewood blue.

Disappointment was expressed by top managment officials of Arctic Enterprises today when it was learned union employees voted yesterday to table any action on acceptance of a reduced wage rate for sub-contract work in the local Arctic plant. The decision by the employees was made at a monthly union meeting following a meeting of employees with Arctic management in the city auditorium.

John Penn, Arctic president, and Lowell Swenson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company, called the meeting of employees to explain the company's position on subcontract work and answer questions regarding the situation. More than 400 workers in the Arctic snowmobile operation attended the meeting at 2:45 p.m., and between 380 and 400 packed the Eagles hall for the union meeting an hour later.

Penn and Swenson said the meeting was called at the request of a number of employees who felt that the sub-contract work and its relationship to snowmobile employees had not been adequately explained prior to a previous meeting. Union workers rejected the company offer at a meeting held March 14. Proposal was for work to be performed on non-snowmobile items manufactured in the Arctic plant in Thief River Falls at a rate 80 cents per hour below the contract wage.

Wayne Bjornrud, business agent for International Woodworkers of America Local 4-348, told the Times this morning that the vote to table action on the subcontract work until contract negotiations begin in about two weeks was almost unanimous He

Randy Ayers Is Winner Of Calf

MILKING SHORTHORN heifer calf was son by 12-year-old Randy Ayers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dake Ayers of rural Thief River Falls, a program sponsored by the Minnesota Milking Shorthorn society. The calf came from the Eldo Bentley herd at Twin Valley.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

At the tender age of 12, Randall Ayers of Thief River Falls has experienced a number of disappointments which befall veteran cattlemen. But he may find that his bad luck has turned around and things are finally going his way in the cattle business.

Randy recently was the recipient of a registered Milking Shorthorn heifer from the Minnesota Milking Shorthorn society. The calf came from the Eldo Bentley herd at Twin Valley, considered to be one of the top Shorthorn herds in the state.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Dake Ayers, who farm five miles west and one-fourth mile south of Thief River Falls, Randy was selected by the state society to receive the calf. Presentation was made under a program known as the Minnesota Milking Shorthorn heifer award. The award is not given every year, only when the society considers a potential recipient to be worthy.

No person may receive the award more than once, however, Randy's brother Richard received a calf from the Bentley herd in 1972 under the same program.

Randy started in the dairy business as a 4-H club member at the age of eight years when his parents purchased a calf for him, although his financial start came on his first birthday when his parents gave him a $100 savings account toward eventual cattle purchase. He named his first calf "Starlight" and had her tested and ready to show at the county fair when she developed bunches of warts by her horn stub and couldn't be entered in competition.

In October of 1970 Randy purchased a calf for himself from the Richard Peterson herd. In February of 1971 he suffered a ruptured appendix, underwent two emergency surgeries and was hospitalized for 30 days. When time came for Northwest Dairy Day in June, he was still weak and his calf was quite young. He received a white ribbon and was discouraged enough not to enter the heifer, "Gypsy", in the county fair 4-H dairy show.

Randy's discouragement continued that summer when the first calf of his first 4-H club heifer, "Starlight", was stillborn.

Then things started to improve. "Gypsy" was nearly ready to freshen at county fair time in 1972 and was not shown. On August 3 she produced a healthy bull calf

Blazejewski-Kasprowicz Vows Spoken At Florian

Miss Judy Ann Blazejewski became the bride of Robert Allen Kasprowicz of Karlstad at a double ring ceremony at 3 p.m., on February 2 at the Assumption Catholic church at Florian. Rev. Joseph Menker officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Ludvig Blazejewski of Newfolden. She is a graduate of Marshall county central high school at Newfolden and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. Prior to her marriage, she was employed in this city by Borsheim Printing.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Kasprowicz of Karlstad. He is a graduate of the Strandquist high school and is employed by American Crystal Sugar company in Drayton, N.D.

For the ceremony witnessed by about 250 relatives and friends, the church was graced with two large baskets of white gladioli and lavender mums.

Miss Pat Kleinwachter, a friend of the bride, was the organist. She played the traditional wedding march for the processional and also accompanied Frank Borowicz, a friend of the couple, as he sang, "On this day, Oh beautiful Mother," "The Wedding Prayer," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a white nylon floor-length gown styled in Victorian fashion with long full sleeves, cuffed at the wrists, and a flowing attached train. Lace trimmed the stand-up collar, the square bibbed bodice, the deep cuffs and the three-tiered flounce that enhanced the skirt at the hemline. Matching lace edged her triple tiered veil of nylon tulle that fell from a Juliet headpiece trimmed with pearls. She carried a modified cascade of white sweetheart roses, purple and lavender mums, and aqua lace carnations.

Miss Theresa Grebowski of Richfield, a friend, was the bride's personal attendant.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Leonard Kasprowicz of Goodridge. Other attendants were Miss Rita Blazejewski of Newfolden, sister of the bride; Mrs. Roger Ryba of Middle River, friend of the bride, and Mrs. Gerald Carlson of Angus, sister of the groom. Their identical floor-length gowns of double knit were fashioned with deep purple A-line skirts topped with empire bodices in a floral print in green, purple, lavender and aqua. The bodices were styled with high necklines and long full sleeves, puffed at the shoulders. Each carried a larage white mum tied with aqua and lavender ribbons.

Leonard Kasprowicz of Goodrige attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Roger Kasprowicz of Drayton, brother of the groom, Tom Blazejewski of Newfolden, brother of the bride, and Gerald Carlson of Angus, brother-in-law of the groom. Serving as ushers were Mike Kasprowicz of Thief River Falls and Gabe Kasprowicz of Karlstad, brothers of the groom. They, together with the groom, wore black trousers, lavender tuxedos with black trim, white ruffled shirts, also trimmed in black, and black bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a white rose. His attendants had aqua lace carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the groom was attired in purple double knit gown fashioned with a floor-length, A-line skirt and an empire shirt style bodice with long, cuffed sleeves. Her corsage was composed of lavender carnations and purple mums.

If the Shoe Fits..
Will snug shoes stretch?
Shoes that are a trifle narrow may 'give' enough to become comfortable. Shoe repairmen now have a chemical solution that helps stretch leather.
The need, however, is usually for added length since feet grow in length, more than in width. The chief obstacle to successfully stretching shoes lengthwise is a steel shank which is put in a shoe to strengthen the arch of the shoe (not the foot). A stretcher that would stretch the steel would pull the shoe apart.
Shoes should fit snugly around the heel and arch of the foot to prevent the heel sliding up and down in the shoe as you walk, causing blisters or callouses. With a snugly fitting heel, the toes can enjoy roominess without pressing forward and cramping in the toe of the shoe.

Randy Ayers Is Recipient Of Shorthorn Calf

which Randy named "Agarn" and is being used as a herd bull on the Ayers farm this winter.

Randy was still discouraged over his first appearance in the show ring and his mother felt responsible for placing him in competition when he and his animal were not ready for it. Mrs. Ayers bought Wildwood RH Deb from the Bentley herd in September of 1972 and Randy worked hard in training and grooming her for show. She rewarded him with blue ribbon placing at both Dairy Day and the Pennington county fair.

"I help with chores daily and it is fun to have my own animals," Randy wrote to the state Milking Shorthorn society in making application for the state heifer award. "I still fear showing in competition but my success this year sure helped me. I would like very much to win a calf and would work hard to raise and show her at dairy events."

Opening Rounds Of Negotiations Start At School

Opening session in the round of negotiations covering employees of the Thief River Falls school district was held by the local board of education Thursday when representatives of the school district administration made their initial proposal. The principals and directors association represents approximately 16 local administrators with the exception of the superintendent of schools.

The board will meet with representatives of the union representing non-instructional personnel on Monday at 8 p.m. to begin that bargaining process. Faculty representatives have not yet requested start of negotiations with the board.

Presentation of the administrative package Thursday was made by William Desrocher, principal at Washington and Northrop elementary schools; Larry Eck, assistant principal at Franklin middle school; and Terry Soiney, assistant principal at Lincoln high school.

The request was for a 20 per cent increase in all administrative salaries and fringe benefits. Also covered in the proposal were a number of items including professional responsibilities, administrative travel, filling of administrative vacancies, transfers, grievances, vacations, sabbatical and maternity leaves and other items.

Board members will attempt to determine what portions of the package are negotiable items and will meet with the administrators again on Thursday, April 25.

Because of the board session with union representatives at 8 p.m. on Monday, the regular business meeting of the board has been moved ahead one hour to a 7 p.m. starting time.

Arctic Workers Table Company's Employment Plan

said that inability of the company to give definite answers about how much sub-contract work could be expected and how long a work period would be involved were considerations in the employees' decision.

The three-year contract between the union and the company expires June 15 and negotiations will begin in about two weeks for a new contract. Elected by the union membership yesterday to represent them in the negotiating sessions were Mrs. Hazel Huot, president; Harvey Lund, chief steward in the plant; and Merle Lundeen, steward in the fork lift department. They will be joined in the joint bargaining by Carol Hanson, department steward in the Karlstad plant, and Kenneth Brein, chief steward in the Clearbrook plant. The latter two were elected at previous plant meetings.

Also joining in the negotiations for the union will be Bjornrud as business agent; William Gooder, regional representative from Duluth; and Frank Gillespie, regional organizer.

Informed of the union decision by the times this morning, Penn and Swenson prepared a joint statement which notes the following:

"We are extremely disappointed with the action taken at the union meeting to table our proposal for a special rate for sub-contract work. We had been contacted by many employees who wanted to go to work and believed that other employees had not understood our proposal. We called the meeting to clarify our proposal and answer questions so that a more informed vote could be taken again at the union meeting.

"We have accepted orders from several companies for work involving fiberglas, welding and assembly. We also believed we could obtain substantial other sub-contract work with the cooperation of our employees and approval of the proposed rate. As we explained at the meeting we will now be doing this work at other Arctic-owned plants which are closer to our customers. We sincerely regret that the employees who wanted to go to work have been denied the opportunity.

"Unfortunately, many of our employees risked being ineligible to receive unemployment compensation next winter without benefit of having worked on some sub-contract work.

"We hope that we can expect better cooperation from the union representatives and our employees in the up-coming snowmobile contract negotitations."

It was noted that snowmobile production likely will not begin until late June or early July this year and may not allow workers the necessary 18 weeks of employment necessary to qualify for unemployment benefits.

Sub-contract work which might have been done here will now be shifted to plants at Moorhead and Minneapolis or Omaha. Work at Moorhead will be on fiberglas motorcycle fairings for Kawasaki corporation which could have been manufactured here.

Building of sailboats for two companies at the Silverline plant at Moorhead which will be explained more fully in a later edition of the Times—is not related to the local situation since it is suited only for the Moorhead operation.

County Cancer Series Continues Here Next Week

Last in this spring's public education programs will be conducted by the Pennington unit of the American cancer society Monday at the school in St. Hilaire, Tuesday at the Lincoln high school cafeteria and April 17 at the school in Goodridge. Programs are free and everyone is invited to attend.

"During the past three programs we have had under discussion and on film such subjects as the nature of cancer (what kind of disease it is), the means by which it spreads in your body and why delay in seeking treatment makes the disease so much more difficult to treat," states Raymond Ptacek, president of the Pennington county unit.

"We have covered the early symptoms of cancer and have covered in considerable detail the most common cancers, the ones responsible for the greatest toll of life and the ones in which the most can be done right now to effect a cure," he said.

"Since many cancers are both curable and preventable and some, although difficult to diagnose early enough for a cure, are highly preventable, the topic of preventability was quite thoroughly covered in regard to these cancers.

"Other cancers can be detected long before the signs apparent to the person become known and consequently these cancers can be treated long before a full blown cancer develops, increasing the chance of cure many fold," he added.

"This last class will be devoted to these examinations, what they are, why they are improtant and what they consist of. Two especially prepared films will be shown and a doctor will be present to answer any question you may wish to ask.

"During previous sessions questionaires were passed out and we would like to urge as many of you as can to fill these out, all or in part, as you see fit and return them to us at this last meeting. Your cooperation will help us plan for a better cancer program for the future," Ptacek concluded.

Camp Courage Reception Center Burned Thursday

Camp Courage lost more than a building last week when its beautiful reception center was burned to the ground as a result of a fire of undetermined origin early Thursday morning. According to W.B. Schoenbohm, executive director of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the building was the focal point of the camp operation.

It housed the camp office, library, gift shop, food commissary, campcraft storage and a unique nature museum. The museum contained a number of valuable nature collections which are irreplaceable. Loss of the building, however, will not interfere with the planned summer program.

The reception center museum included a large collection of butterflies and moths given by Charles Vogt of Eden Valley; two collections of wildflower paintings by Mrs. Louise Curtis, Morris, and Mrs. Lotus Williams of Annandale; a valuable collection of early Minnesota lore; bird and flower identification panels, an original birch bark canoe and many other items. The loss was increased by the fact that much of the food for summer camping season had been preordered because of rising prices. Estimated loss is in excess of $100,000.

The facility was built in 1965 with a major part of the funds coming from the Department of Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars posts and auxiliaries, and was dedicated in 1966 by then Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

The building, which was insured, will be rebuilt as soon as possible, and interim arrangements are being made in existing buildings to accomodate the summer camping program.

Tax Bill Sent To Governor For His Signature

A comprehensive tax bill, reducing the tax on oleomargarine, increasing the tax on railroad companies, and providing tax credit for the working poor, was repassed by both the House and the Senate Thursday, March 28, and sent to the governor for his signature.

The measure, which broke a House-Senate deadlock before either body would adjourn, is the result of a conference committee compromise reached Wednesday night.

The tax bill eliminates state income tax for persons with small incomes. The tax credit will have no effect until Jan. 1, 1975. Taxes will be credited to eligible persons, ranging from a single person with no dependents making under $3,200 to a person with five dependents making $6,400 or less a year.

It is estimated that tax credits for the state's working poor will result in a loss of $7 million annually for the state.

Minnesotans will pay five cents less for colored oleomargarine beginning July 1, 1974. The current 10-cents-per-pound tax will be completely repealed on July 1, 1975. House sponsor Douglas Johnson (Cook) said that colored oleomargarine is the only food product taxed in the state. The repeal of the oleomargarine tax will mean a net loss for the state of $2.1 million each year.

Part of the expected loss of tax revenue will be made up by increasing the tax on little cigars. About $600,000 is anticipated annually through the little cigar tax, the same tax that is currently imposed on cigarettes. More revenue will be raised with an income tax on railroads. About $1.4 million is expected to be raised each year, when this section of the law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1975.

Additional taxes will be imposed on newly-discovered iron ore, property value of taconite plants; and by reduction in the shrinkage allowance for iron ore deposits.

The bill also changes the tree growth tax law from a county stumpage rate to the state stumpage rate. When a timber land owner withdraws from the tree growth tax schedule, all back taxes and penalties must be paid for 10 years prior to expiration of the contract.

Total gain to the state from the tax revenues is estimated at $930,000.

PUSHING Kathy Horachek out of her way, Carolyn Dahlen rehearses a scene from Goodridge high school's junior class play, "Stranger in the Night", a mystery-comedy by Paul S. McCoy. The public performance is scheduled for Saturday at 8 p.m.

On April 5, 1955, A USAF Atlas ICBM was successfully launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to the impact area some 600 miles away.

Farmers To Have Returns Filed By April 15th

Reporting only 251 reports required of all corporations engaged in any type of farming operation in Minnesota have been filed through March, assistant agriculture commissioner Bill Walker warned that the filing deadline is April 15th.

"Filings to date, compared with past registrations, indicate that more than half of the existing farm corporations must submit reports to the Minnesota department of agriculture within the next two weeks," Walker said.

In 1973 over 600 corporations filed reports that they were engaged in various types of farming operations in Minnesota.

"Examination of the reports received thus far identifies 23 corporations that had not filed in prior registrations. This is an indication that the final 1974 registration should approximate 700 or more corporate farming operations. We have received no evidence of any significant dropout of corporations from farming in this state," Walker commented.

The registration is the first required under the Family Farm Act of 1973, which is designed to restrict expansion of existing non-family farming corporations and any new non-family corporate investments in Minnesota agriculture.

Registration forms were mailed last December to all previously identified Minnesota farming operations. Forms are available on request from the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 420 State Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 and at County Agricultural Extension Offices.

Walker emphasized that all corporations engaged in any type of farming, whether on its own land, on leased or rented land, or contracted production, and including all types of corporations—family, non-family, public, private and non-profitable or charitable—are required to file the detailed reports not later than this April 15th.

Failure to file or filing after the deadline is a gross misdemeanor under the state law.

Gasoline Supply Is Low In Minn. At End Of Month

Prices paid for gasoline in Minnesota this week were essentially the same as last week, according to the Minnesota state automobile association. (AAA), but supplies of gas continued to dwindle as allocations ran out near the end of March.

In its weekly survey of 86 stations around the state, the motoring organization found stations in Minneapolis having the biggest problem with gasoline supplies. According to the Twin City auto clubs, 40 per cent of the stations surveyed in Minneapolis reported they were closed on Saturdays as well as Sundays. In St. Paul, about 12 per cent of the stations contacted said they were closing on Saturdays.

The average price paid for regular gasoline this week was 52.2 cents, unchanged from last week. The average price for premium was 55.9, down from 56.1 cents the week before. However, several oil companies announced gas price increases of up to five cents per gallon this week shortly after the survey was taken.

Only about three per cent of the stations surveyed said they were limiting gasoline purchases, down from about nine per cent last week. Many operators find limiting of any kind is very unpopular with their customers and its use has declined despite worsening gas supplies.

Stations in outstate Minnesota appear to be the most stable in terms of price, gas supplies and hours of operation. But three stations in the survey reported they had closed for the sale of gas altogether until next month's supply arrives.

Only 27 per cent of the stations said they were open on Sundays. But several said they planned to open Sundays when summer tourist travel begins.

University Has Stable Enrollment Of Minorities

Enrollment of minority students at the University of Minnesota has remained stable over the last two years, the period of time during which an accurate minority county has been made.

In contrast, a recent national survey of higher education institutions shows that minority enrollments are on the decline elsewhere.

A fall quarter count taken at the university shows that 4.2 per cent of the student body identified themselves as either American Indians, Afro-Americans, Asian-Americans or Spanish-surnamed Americans. A count taken a year earlier showed that 4.1 per cent of the students identified themselves as minorities.

The national survey showed that the percentage of minority students at universities nationally dropped from 7.2 per cent in 1972 to 6.5 per cent in 1973. The percentage of minority freshmen enrolled in all higher education institutions dropped from 14.8 per cent to 13 per cent in the one-year period.

"For some months," according to an article in a recent issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education, "observers of the campaign to widen access to higher education have suspected that the effort had begun to lose momentum."

Administrators who speculated on possible reasons for the decline mentioned tuition increases, the uncertain student loan market and low level of financing in federal grant programs as possible deterrents.

"All of the above reasons could apply at the university," said Bettye Ward, coordinator of the Martin Luther King scholarship program, "but we annually make adjustments for increases students encounter throughout the year."

She gave several reasons why the university's minority percentage, stable as it is, still is lower than the national average.

"The talent pool of minority students is not as large in Minnesota as it is in other metropolitan areas where most large, predominantly white institutions are located," she said.

She added that Minnesota has "traditionally been behind the rest of the nation in the area of minority affairs."

In looking at the national decline Ward said she feels that part of the reason may be that "The honor usually associated with attending the large, prestigious institutions has been tarnished."

The national survey, which is taken annually, is jointly sponsored by the American Council on Education and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The university has taken an anonymous minority survey for the past two years, asking students tto fill out ethnic background cards when they register fall quarter. This fall 93 per cent of the student body filled out the cards and the figures were adjusted to represent the entire student body.

EGF Man Named Grand Master Of Minn. Masons

Harry P. Larson

Harry P. Larson, was elected grand master of Minnesota's 56,000 Masons in 262 lodges at the fraternity's 121st annual meeting March 29 in the Masonic temple, St. Paul. Larson succeeds Verne E. Long, who served as 1973-74 grand master.

Grand Master Larson was born in Grand Forks, N.D., and attended school there and in East Grand Forks, where he now is a general insurance agent. He is active in community affairs, and during World War II served in the U.S. army corps of engineers.

Among his numerous Masonic affiliations he is past master of Red River Lodge 292, East Grand Forks; member of the Scottish rite and York rite; past potentate of Kem Shrine temple, Grand Forks; and an honorary member of the Grand Lodge of North Dakota.

A highlight of this year's Minnesota Grand Lodge meeting was presentation of the Masonic Heritage award to the Minnesota Newspaper association, in recognition of the role of the state's editors and publishers who "have served importantly to undergird those principles and philosophies which today hold the destiny of America."

Arch C. Pease, publisher of the Anoka Union and past president of the M.N.A., accepted the award on behalf of the association's president, Harry Davey of International Falls.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Lundin:

As I opened a box of Betty Crocker cake mix purchased last week at a local "discount" store, I noticed a round label marked 48 cents as the list price. Under that label was another for 44 cents, and on the package top itself, the price marked was 39 cents!

If all the protests against the spiraling cost of living I've heard in the past year were put on slips the size of an "Uff-da Days" ticket and placed end to end, I think they would cover the sidewalk from First street to the east side water tower. And who can say that the consumers' gripes are not justified? they are not griping just for the sake of complaining, but because they are hurting.

I once read the commentary that when we can't make both ends meet we should try fish! So have you priced fish lately? Or eggs, or cheese, all substitutes for the costly meat?

So much for the rise in living costs. Some of it is unavoidable, but when we are "taken" in the manner mentioned at the outset of this letter, we are furious. When we see merchants who took a mark-up on a produce the first time it was placed on the shelf, and then find two subsequent mark-ups, we restrain ourselves, but it is time we speak out plainly against this dastardly, naked kind of exploitation. We would rather ask for the protection of anonymity and request that our name be withheld, but will not, on second thought, hide behind that screen.

You may be sure that, much as we dislike having to say these things, we feel that they must be said. And you may also be sure that we are not alone in our feeling when we resolve to boycott any product having evidence of altered prices.

No one will deny a merchant his fair profit. When each new shipment of goods he receives costs him more than the last one, naturally we expect him to raise his price. But on that shipment only, and not on what is already on the shelf. Anything that has two or three variant prices stamped on it should be left on the shelf in protest. It's bad enough to have to shudder each time we buy something, then shut our eyes and take it anyway because we need it, and feel powerless to change things. But when we are expected to grant a retailer two or three mark-ups, we feel we must at least try!

We can write letters, watch carefully the voting record of our elected officials, find out where they stand and what they are doing to better the situation. And we can boycott goods that have had price raises stamped on them since they were originally put on display. We do not have to tolerate this kind of victimization.

Mrs. Ben Hagglund

To The Editor:

I hope you publish this letter in regard to the Marshall county argument in your paper. My idea would be to divide Marshall county in four appropriate parts. The northwest section I would add to Kittson county, the southwest one to Polk, the largest southeast part would be connected to Pennington and the small northeast part to Roseau.

These counties have been all laid out years ago in the horse and buggy days. They are not large enough now to be run in the most efficient manner and they are not as convenient to everybody as they could be.

With the Marshall county courthouse becoming obsolete, it would be a good time to bring everything up to date.

Sincerely
W. C. Searle

Uniform Probate Code Adopted By Legislature

Minnesota joined 10 other states that have adopted major probate reform legislation when the House and Senate passed and sent to the governor a bill that adopts four sections of the uniform probate code (UPC).

The UPC was drafted by the commissioners of uniform state laws, an organization of experts who are attempting to standardize state laws. Fifteen identical versions of uniform probate code legislation have been introduced in the Minnesota House of Representatives and the Senate this session.

"Probate" usually refers to the entire process of settling a dead person's estate whether or not he left a will, although the term literally refers to proving that a will is genuine.

Rep. John Lindstrom (Willmar) said the legislation has three main objectives:

(1) To simplify probate procedure by clarifying the intent of the decedent; and speeding up of the distribution of assets of the estate;

(2) To adjust the probate system to a changing society. (With increased mobility, persons often have property and financial interests in more than one state. The bill provides for settling of problems involving more than one state); and

(3) To provide more flexibility in probate procedure. An estate may be settled informally (without close supervision of the court) if the interested parties agree.

Heirs or creditors may petition for formal (court supervised) probate, and the court will administer the estate. Parties may choose to use parts of each procedure, so the court could handle complicated matters, or settle disputes between heirs, but noncontroversial matters could be settled out of court.

If the court anticipates problems in settling an estate informally, a supervised probate could be ordered. In informal probate, the estate must be closed within 18 months, or the administrator must show why this has not been done.

In addition to the provisions included in the UPC, the new law will regulate attorneys' fees and fees for estate representatives and trust companies. Attorneys and representatives may not charge a fee based only on the size of the estate.

The court will now determine a fair fee based on work-time, responsibilities and experience of the attorney, and the complexity and value of the estate. No one factor will override others in determining the fee.

Another change from current probate practice involves bonding of the estate representative. In the new law, a bond is required only if the court, the will or a beneficiary of the bill demands it. Remedies for protection from fraud are also included in the legislation. There is a separate method provided for probating small estates.

Minnesota's new law includes articles I, II, IV and VIII of the uniform probate code. The proposed code was approved in 1969 by the commissioner of uniform state laws and by the American Bar association. It has been adopted in total by six states and four states have adopted parts of it. The UPC is under study in 20 other states at the present time.

Farmers To Have Returns Filed By April 15th

Reporting only 251 reports required of all corporations engaged in any type of farming operation in Minnesota have been filed through March, assistant agriculture commissioner Bill Walker warned that the filing deadline is April 15th.

"Filings to date, compared with past registrations, indicate that more than half of the existing farm corporations must submit reports to the Minnesota department of agriculture within the next two weeks," Walker said.

In 1973 over 600 corporations filed reports that they were engaged in various types of farming operations in Minnesota.

"Examination of the reports received thus far identifies 23 corporations that had not filed in prior registrations. This is an indication that the final 1974 registration should approximate 700 or more corporate farming operations. We have received no evidence of any significant dropout of corporations from farming in this state," Walker commented.

The registration is the first required under the Family Farm Act of 1973, which is designed to restrict expansion of existing non-family farming corporations and any new non-family corporate investments in Minnesota agriculture.

Registration forms were mailed last December to all previously identified Minnesota farming operations. Forms are available on request from the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 420 State Office Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 and at county Agricultural Extension Offices.

Walker emphasized that all corporations engaged in any type of farming, whether on its own land, on leased or rented land, or contracted production, and including all types of corporations—family, non-family, public, private and non-profitable or charitable—are required to file the detailed reports not later than this April 15th.

Failure to file or filing after the deadline is a gross misdemeanor under the state law.

Gasoline Supply Is Low In Minn. At End Of Month

Prices paid for gasoline in Minnesota this week were essentially the same as last week, according to the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA), but supplies of gas continued to dwindle as allocations ran out near the end of March.

In its weekly survey of 86 stations around the state, the motoring organization found stations in Minneapolis having the biggest problem with gasoline supplies. According to the Twin City auto clubs, 40 per cent of the stations surveyed in Minneapolis reported they were closed on Saturdays as well as Sundays. In St. Paul, about 12 per cent of the stations contacted said they were closing on Saturdays.

The average price paid for regular gasoline this week was 52.2 cents, unchanged from last week. The average price for premium was 55.9, down from 56.1 cents the week before. However, several oil companies announced gas price increases of up to five cents per gallon this week shortly after the survey was taken.

Only about three per cent of the stations surveyed said they were limiting gasoline purchases, down from about nine per cent last week. Many operators find limiting of any kind is very unpopular with their customers and its use has declined despite worsening gas supplies.

Stations in outstate Minnesota appear to be the most stable in terms of price, gas supplies and hours of operation. But three stations in the survey reported they had closed for the sale of gas altogether until next month's supply arrives.

Only 27 per cent of the stations said they were open on Sundays. But several said they planned to open Sundays when summer tourist travel begins.

University Has Stable Enrollment Of Minorities

Enrollment of minority students at the University of Minnesota has remained stable over the last two years, the period of time during which an accurate minority county has been made.

In contrast, a recent national survey of higher education institutions shows that minority enrollments are on the decline elsewhere.

A fall quarter count taken at the university shows that 4.2 per cent of the student body identified themselves as either American Indians, Afro-Americans, Asian-Americans or Spanish-surnamed Americans. A count taken a year earlier showed that 4.1 per cent of the students identified themselves as minorities.

The national survey showed that the percentage of minority students at universities nationally dropped from 7.2 per cent in 1972 to 6.5 per cent in 1973. The percentage of minority freshmen enrolled in all higher education institutions dropped from 14.8 per cent to 13 per cent in the one-year period.

"For some months," according to an article in a recent issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education, "observers of the campaign to widen access to higher education have suspected that the effort had begun to lose momentum."

Administrators who speculated on possible reasons for the decline mentioned tuition increases, the uncertain student loan market and low level of financing in federal grant programs as possible deterrents.

"All of the above reasons could apply at the university," said Bettye Ward, coordinator of the Martin Luther King scholarship program, "but we annually make adjustments for increases students encounter throughout the year."

She gave several reasons why the university's minority percentage, stable as it is, still is lower than the national average.

"The talent pool of minority students is not as large in Minnesota as it is in other metropolitan areas where most large, predominantly white institutions are located," she said.

She added that Minnesota has "traditionally been behind the rest of the nation in the area of minority affairs."

In looking at the national decline Ward said she feels that part of the reason may be that "The honor usually associated with attending the large, prestigious institutions has been tarnished."

The national survey, which is taken annually, is jointly sponsored by the American Council on Education and the University of California at Los Angeles.

The university has taken an anonymous minority survey for the past two years, asking students to fill out ethnic background cards when they register fall quarter. This fall 93 per cent of the student body filled out the cards and the figures were adjusted to represent the entire student body.

Harry P. Larson

Harry P. Larson, was elected grand master of Minnesota's 56,000 Masons in 202 lodges at the fraternity's 121st annual meeting March 29 in the Masonic temple, St. Paul. Larson succeeds Verne E. Long, who served as 1973-74 grand master.

Grand Master Larson was born in Grand Forks, N.D., and attended school there and in East Grand Forks, where he now is a general insurance agent. He is active in community affairs, and during World War II served in the U.S. army corps of engineers.

Among his numerous Masonic affiliations he is past master of Red River Lodge 292, East Grand Forks; member of the Scottish rite and York rite; past potentate of Kem Shrine temple, Grand Forks; and an honorary member of the Grand Lodge of North Dakota.

A highlight of this year's Minnesota Grand Lodge meeting was presentation of the Masonic Heritage award to the Minnesota Newspaper association, in recognition of the role of the state's editors and publishers who "have served importantly to undergird those principles and philosophies which today hold the destiny of America."

Arch C. Pease, publisher of the Anoka Union and past president of the M.N.A., accepted the award on behalf of the association's president, Harry Davey of International Falls.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. Lundin:

As I opened a box of Betty Crocker cake mix purchased last week at a local "discount" store, I noticed a round label marked 48 cents as the list price. Under that label was another for 44 cents, and on the package top itself, the price marked was 39 cents!

If all the protests against the spiraling cost of living I've heard in the past year were put on slips the size of an "Uff-da Days" ticket and placed end to end, I think they would cover the sidewalk from First street to the east side water tower. And who can say that the consumers' gripes are not justified? they are not griping just for the sake of complaining, but because they are hurting.

I once read the commentary that when we can't make both ends meet we should try fish! So have you priced fish lately? Or eggs, or cheese, all substitutes for the costly meat?

So much for the rise in living costs. Some of it is unavoidable, but when we are "taken" in the manner mentioned at the outset of this letter, we are furious. When we see merchants who took a mark-up on a produce the first time it was placed on the shelf, and then find two subsequent mark-ups, we restrain ourselves, but it is time we speak out plainly against this dastardly, naked kind of exploitation. We would rather ask for the protection of anonymity and request that our name be withheld, but will not, on second thought, hide behind that screen.

You may be sure that, much as we dislike having to say these things, we feel that they must be said. And you may also be sure that we are not alone in our feeling when we resolve to boycott any product having evidence of altered prices.

No one will deny a merchant his fair profit. When each new shipment of goods he receives costs him more than the last one, naturally we expect him to raise his price. But on that shipment only, and not on what is already on the shelf. Anything that has two or three variant prices stamped on it should be left on the shelf in protest. It's bad enough to have to shudder each time we buy something, then shut our eyes and take it anyway because we need it, and feel powerless to change things. But when we are expected to grant a retailer two or three mark-ups, we feel we must at least try!

We can write letters, watch carefully the voting record of our elected officials, find out where they stand and what they are doing to better the situation. And we can boycott goods that have had price raises stamped on them since they were originally put on display. We do not have to tolerate this kind of victimization.

To The Editor:

I hope you publish this letter in regard to the Marshall county argument in your paper. My idea would be to divide Marshall county in four appropriate parts. The northwest section I would add to Kittson county, the southwest one to Polk, the largest southeast part would be connected to Pennington and the small northeast part to Roseau.

These counties have been all laid out years ago in the horse and buggy days. They are not large enough now to be run in the most efficient manner and they are not as convenient to everybody as they could be.

With the Marshall county courthouse becoming obsolete, it would be a good time to bring everything up to date.

Sincerely
W. C. Searle

Uniform Probate Code Adopted By Legislature

Minnesota joined 10 other states that have adopted major probate reform legislation when the House and Senate passed and sent to the governor a bill that adopts four sections of the uniform probate code (UPC).

The UPC was drafted by the commissioners of uniform state laws, an organization of experts who are attempting to standardize state laws. Fifteen identical versions of uniform probate code legislation have been introduced in the Minnesota House of Representatives and the Senate this session.

"Probate" usually refers to the entire process of settling a dead person's estate whether or not he left a will, although the term literally refers to proving that a will is genuine.

Rep. John Lindstrom (Willmar) said the legislation has three main objectives:

(1) To simplify probate procedure by clarifying the intent of the decedent; and speeding up of the distribution of assets of the estate;

(2) To adjust the probate system to a changing society. (With increased mobility, persons often have property and financial interests in more than one state. The bill provides for settling of problems involving more than one state); and

(3) To provide more flexibility in probate procedure. An estate may be settled informally (without close supervision of the court) if the interested parties agree.

Heirs or creditors may petition for formal (court supervised) probate, and the court will administer the estate. Parties may choose to use parts of each procedure, so the court could handle complicated matters, or settle disputes between heirs, but noncontroversial matters could be settled out of court.

If the court anticipates problems in settling an estate informally, a supervised probate could be ordered. In informal probate, the estate must be closed within 18 months, or the administrator must show why this has not been done.

In addition to the provisions included in the UPC, the new law will regulate attorneys' fees and fees for estate representatives and trust companies. Attorneys and representatives may not charge a fee based only on the size of the estate.

The court will now determine a fair fee based on work-time, responsibilities and experience of the attorney, and the complexity and value of the estate. No one factor will override others in determining the fee.

Another change from current probate practice involves bonding of the estate representative. In the new law, a bond is required only if the court, the will or a beneficiary of the bill demands it. Remedies for protection from fraud are also included in the legislation. There is a separate method provided for probating small estates.

Minnesota's new law includes articles I, II, IV and VIII of the uniform probate code. The proposed code was approved in 1969 by the commissioner of uniform state laws and by the American Bar association. It has been adopted in total by six states and four states have adopted parts of it. The UPC is under study in 20 other states at the present time.

Senate Report

— by —

Senator Richard Fitzsimons
Minnesota District One

Another session of the Minnesota state legislature is over. Those words have a little different meaning now that the legislature is in annual session. I want to devote a few lines in this letter to some legislative post mortems on the just-completed session.

During the coming months, and especially during the coming campaign, there is certain to be discussion on the annual Minnesota legislative session. One of the most consistent criticisms of the just-concluded split session was that it takes too much time away from home for many people to serve in the legislature. This is indeed a legitimate criticism and I am sure some changes will have to be made for the next session.

I am going to suggest to the House-Senate coordinating committee that they review the committee structure that existed during these two sessions and see if it could not be revamped to allow outstate legislators more time to pursue their business at home and keep in touch with their constituents as well. With so much of the business of the legislature now dealing with Metropolitan problems, I am sure a little re-scheduling of committees can well free up outstate legislators from some Monday and Friday sessions and committee meetings.

Another innovation that I feel should be considered is designation of a certain day for floor discussion for all important bills. This would greatly facilitate outstate legislators in local scheduling problems.

This annual session has given much more time for debate and discussion on many more bills than ever before. Some of the bills had much more oratory than they deserved, but every person is entitled to have his or her legislator seek committee consideration. I feel certain the legislature can still guarantee the same freedom of discussion, only not quite so much of it, with earlier deadlines for committee and floor action on bills.

There were still too many last minute bills demanding action right up to the time of adjournament. Likewise, many state department bills were still being introduced long after they should have been heard in committees.

All in all, this first experience in Minnesota under annual sessions was a learning experience for everyone. Much fine legislation came out of the session and in spite of an unusual amount of oratory on some trivial subjects, all the important matters did receive detailed consideration.

If the leadership in the House and Senate eliminate some of the obvious shortcomings of this experience, the citizen legislature will continue for some time. If they don't, there appears to be no other route except a full time professional legislature, which I hope can be avoided.

Gjovik Sisters To Appear At Ev. Free Church

Gjovik Sisters, Carole, Renae and Lois, will appear at the Evangelical Free church in Thief River Falls tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m.

The girls are originally from this area and are former members of the King's Messengers group, of which Carole served as music director. Since then she has been director of music at Soul's Harbor church in Minneapolis and their television outreach.

All the girls have been active in the music department at Soul's Harbor, and have traveled extensively with various groups, as well as doing backup work at recording sessions for several recording artists in the Minneapolis area.

The concert will also feature their three brothers, Grant, Jim and Bob with their guitars and bass. Renae's husband, Dan Peers, will also take part in the program.

There will be no admission charge but a free-will offering will be taken.

DISTRIBUTORS
EWING

BEING WELCOMED as new distributor for Olympia beer in this area—the first time the Washington state product has been distributed in Minnesota—is Duane Glass of Glass Sales company in Thief River Falls. Robert A. Schmidt, right, president of the brewing company, made the welcome. The first carload of the new product in Minnesota was unloaded at the local warehouse about a week ago.

Glass Sales Co. To Distribute Olympia Beer

Cy and Dunne Glass of the Glass Sales company of Thief River Falls have announced that their firm has been appointed as distributor of Olympia beer for this area. According to the distributors, Olympia is now available with the first carload received in late March.

A unique program carried out by the company is its "Cash on Delivery" recycling program whereby all Olympia bottles, 7-oz. steel cans and any brand of aluminum berverage container may be redeemed for cash at any Oylmpia distributor location. Cy and Dunne Glass stressed that their firm is fully participating in this program.

In describing the recycling program, they noted that Olympia has been conducting it for several years as a means of assisting in protecting the environment. Over the past two years, the company has paid out over $7 million for the return of their containers.

The distributors said that persons or groups that wish to take part in this program should call their office for the specific times that they will be open for this purpose. They will pay one cent for each Olympia bottle, 10 cents per pound for all-aluminum beer and soft drink cans, and one-third cent each for Olympia 7-oz. steel cans.

During February, Duane Glass visited the brewing firm in Washington.

On April 12, 1959, the first World Congress of Flight, sponsored by the Air Force Association, began at Las Vegas, Nev.

JACK KRAMER has joined his wife Jan in real estate sales for Johnson Realty in Thief River Falls. They operate the company for Gordon Johnson of Hallock who acts as broker. Jan Kramer has managed the office, located in the State Farm building at 1304 Main av. N., since September.

Senate Report

— by —

Minnesota District One

Another session of the Minnesota state legislature is over. Those words have a little different meaning now that the legislature is in annual session. I want to devote a few lines in this letter to some legislative post mortems on the just-completed session.

During the coming months, and especially during the coming campaign, there is certain to be discussion on the annual Minnesot legislative session. One of the most consistent criticisms of the just-concluded split session was that it takes too much time away from home for many people to serve in the legislature. This is indeed a legitimate criticism and I am sure some changes will have to be made for the next session.

I am going to suggest to the House-Senate coordinating committee that they review the committee structure that existed during these two sessions and see if it could not be revamped to allow outstate legislators more time to pursue their business at home and keep in touch with their constituents as well. With so much of the business of the legislature now dealing with Metropolitan problems, I am sure a little re-scheduling of committees can well free up outstate legislators from some Monday and Friday sessions and committee meetings.

Another innovation that I feel should be considered is designation of a certain day for floor discussion for all important bills. This would greatly facilitate outstate legislators in local scheduling problems.

This annual session has given much more time for debate and discussion on many more bills than ever before. Some of the bills had much more oratory than they deserved, but every person is entitled to have his or her legislator seek committee consideration. I feel certain the legislature can still guarantee the same freedom of discussion, only not quite so much of it, with earlier deadlines for committee and floor action on bills.

There were still too many last minute bills demanding action right up to the time of adjournament. Likewise, many state department bills were still being introduced long after they should have been heard in committees.

All in all, this first experience in Minnesota under annual sessions was a learning experience for everyone. Much fine legislation came out of the session and in spite of an unusual amount of oratory on some trivial subjects, all the important matters did receive detailed consideration.

If the leadership in the House and Senate eliminate some of the obvious shortcomings of this experience, the citizen legislature will continue for some time. If they don't, there appears to be no other route except a full time professional legislature, which I hope can be avoided.

WELCOME DISTRIBUTORS EVENING

BEING WELCOMED as new distributor for Olympia beer in this area—the first time the Washington state product has been distributed in Minnesota—is Duane Glass of Glass Sales company in Thief River Falls. Robert A. Schmidt, right, president of the brewing company, made the welcome. The first carload of the new product in Minnesota was unloaded at the local warehouse about a week ago.

Glass Sales Co. To Distribute Olympia Beer

Cy and Duane Glass of the Glass Sales company of Thief River Falls have announced that their firm has been appointed as distributor of Olympia beer for this area. According to the distributors, Olympia is now available with the first carload received in late March.

A unique program carried out by the company is its "Cash on Delivery" recycling program whereby all Olympia bottles, 7-0z. steel cans and any brand of aluminum berverage container may be redeemed for cash at any Olympia distributor location. Cy and Duane Glass stressed that their firm is fully participating in this program.

In describing the recycling program, they noted that Olympia has been conducting it for several years as a means of assisting in protecting the environment. Over the past two years, the company has paid out over $7 million for the return of their containers.

The distributors said that persons or groups that wish to take part in this program should call their office for the specific times that they will be open for this purpose. They will pay one cent for each Olympia bottle, 10 cents per pound for all-aluminum beer and soft drink cans, and one-third cent each for Olympia 7-0z. steel cans.

During February, Duane Glass visited the brewing firm in Washington.

For the first time in 23 years Thief River Falls athletes will not be hosted at a traditional spring athletic banquet this year.

Annually held in mid-April, the athletic banquet will be dropped this year because of its increasing size. The banquet, held every spring since 1951, honored all athletes and cheerleaders from Lincoln high school and Northland community college.

"The banquet has just out-grown its sponsorship; it became too big," explained Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith. "It might be resumed again, possibly next year with more sponsors involved, but its been discontinued this year because of the large number of students involved," Smith pointed out.

Last year's 23rd annual banquet, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees, Rotary, Sports Boosters and Lions clubs, feted nearly 200 athletes and cheerleaders. That number would jump even higher this year with the advent of girls interscholastic basketball, volleyball, track and golf teams at Lincoln.

"The format for the athletic banquet was 30 years old; set up to accommodate the number of students participating in athletics 20 years ago, not for the large number we now have," noted Smith.

Instead of one large athletic banquet of past years, each sport will hold its own season ending affair this spring. The Lincoln swimming team banquet will be held tomorrow (Thursday), with the Lincoln hockey banquet scheduled Mon., April 8, and the Lincoln basketball banquet set for Tues., April 16. Northland athletes and cheerleaders will be honored at the school's annual spring banquet May 22. All banquets will be closed affairs, not open to the general public.

Although the temporary termination of the athletic banquet is understandable, its disappointing too. The discontinuation of the banquet will end a string of top name banquet guest speaker appearances that began when the University of Minnesota football coach Wes Fesler addressed the 1951 banquet crowd.

Other banquet guest speakers included: 1952 Ozzie Cowles, University of Minnesota basketball coach; 1953 John Mariucci, University of Minnesota hockey coach; 1954 Murray Warmath, University of Minnesota football coach; 1955 Joe Hendrickson, Minneapolis sportswriter; 1956 George Mikan, Minneapolis Lakers basketball star; 1957 Jim Adelson, Fargo sportscaster; 1958 Bob May, University of North Dakota hockey coach; 1959 John Kundla, University of Minnesota basketball coach; 1960 Steve Myhra, pro football player; 1961 Marv Helling, North Dakota high school football coach; 1962 Billy Bye, University of Minnesota football star; 1963 Bud Grant, Winnipeg Blue Bombers football coach; Chuck Bentson, North Dakota State University basketball coach; 1965 Carl Eller, Minnesota Vikings defensive end; 1966 Bill Fitch, University of North Dakota basketball coach; 1967 Bob Reid, Minnesota North Stars director; 1968 Pinky Kraft, University of North Dakota baseball coach; 1969 Jim Kolbuchar, Minneapolis sportswriter; 1970 Dave Osborn, Minnesota Vikings runningback; 1971 Doug Hart, Green Bay Packers defensive back; 1972 Paul Giel, University of Minnesota athletic director; and 1973 Rube Bjorkman, University of North Dakota hockey coach.

Statistics Announced For Northland Hockey Squad

Despite a below .500 season record, the 1973-74 Northland community college hockey season was labeled a success by head coach Swede Lund.

"I thought we played well," said Lund, the only coach Northland has had in four years of intercollegiate hockey competition. "Basically we played as well as we could have played. I think we had a better season than our record showed; we lost three or four games that we should have won."

Northland ended the season with an unimpressive 12-14 record, but participation in the state and national junior college hockey tournaments compensated for an 11-11 regular season finish.

A surprising 8-2 first round MJCAA state tournament win over top seeded Mesabi highlighted, and probably salvaged, the 1973-74 campaign for the Northmen who qualified for a spot in the NJCAA national tournament for the first time in history with the upset of Mesabi. Northland lost a 6-2 state tournament championship game decision to Hibbing and dropped two national tournament games to Canton, New York 9-3 and Henry Ford of Dearborn, Michigan 5-4.

The 11 regular season Northland wins included four triumphs over arch rival Crookston Tech, with three games being decided by identical 7-3 scores and the final meeting ending 9-4. Northland also posted four regular season wins over Rainy River of International Falls 4-1, 7-2, 5-3 and 5-0. Other Northland wins were recorded over Lakewood of White Bear Lake 5-4 and 8-3 and over the men's amateur Roseau Leafs squad 5-4.

Northland regular season losses were suffered at the hands of the Concordia college junior varsity 9-4; the men's amateur Crookston Pirates 8-3; Roseau Leafs 9-1; Hibbing 7-4 and 10-5; Mesabi of Virginia 6-5 and 5-0; and Itasca of Grand Rapids 8-5, 5-3, 6-1 and 5-3.

"Our biggest problem was scoring goals," pointed out Lund. "We had trouble putting the puck in the net. We did everything else well—we moved the puck well and we played reasonably well defensively—but we didn't seem to have any luck around the net."

Sophomore center Randy Schmitz and freshman wing Tony Demarais tied for the Northland individual scoring leadership with 26 points apiece. The two skaters accumulated their points in different maner, however, as Schmitz scored only five goals but accumulated a team high 21 assists while Demarais scored a team high 17 goals to go along with nine assists.

Close behind the two leaders in the scoring race were Jon Jensen and Al Eisenzimmer. Jensen, a freshman wing, collected 25 points on nine goals and 16 assists while Eisenzimmer, a freshman center, picked up 24 points with an evenly distributed 12 goals and 12 assists.

Lund alternated all three Northland goalies during the season, giving nearly equal playing time to sophomores Craig Carter and Gordin Landin and freshman Pete Sullivan.

The 12-14 record marked the first time since Northland's initial hockey season during the 1970-71 campaign that the Northmen finished the season below .500. After a rocky 4-19 first season record, Northland finished 13-11 and 14-9-1 in the next two years, giving Lund a four year record of 43-53-1 at Northland.

Letters to the Editor

We recently took our Squirt hockey team (The Canadian Warriors) on a hockey trip to the Twin Cities. We were hosted along the way by the Pee Wee B team from your city.

We would like to thank Ron Novak for arranging the game for us. We enjoyed playing your team very much. The game was very exciting and we ere very fortunate to win in overtime. I felt the Thief River Falls Team had the edge in play most of the time.

We would also like to thank the players and their parents for taking our players into their homes for the night.

We have visited your city a number of times with hockey teams and we always enjoy the competition and the very friendly people. We would like to have some of your teams visit us sometime in Winnipeg so we can return the many favours we have received from the people of Thief River Falls during the past number of years.

Yours very truly,
Jake P. Fleming, President,
Canadian Professional Hockey Schools Ltd.

Goodridge Trailblazers will meet Thursday (tomorrow) at 8 p.m. at the Highlanding hall. Discussion will be held to plan the year-end party. All are invited to attend.

ND Basketball School Announced

Lincoln high school head basketball coach Lee Swanson reminds all area basketball players that applications are now being accepted for the fifth annual University of North Dakota summer basketball school.

North Dakota head coach Dave Gunther supervises the annual UND summer program which includes three weekly sessions from June 2-8 and June 9-15 for boys and June 16-22 for girls. The clinics are offered to all boys and girls in grades 7-12.

Anyone interested in acquiring more information about the UND summer basketball schools can contact Swanson at Lincoln high school.

A study conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife reveals that state game lands, purchased with revenue from hunting license sales and an excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition, are more heavily used by nonhunting outdoor recreationists than by hunters.

David Dickey Named Honorable Mention JUCO All-American

Northland community college freshman David Dickey received prestigious post-season basketball honors today (Wednesday) when it was learned the 6-1 ball handling wizard from Canton, Ohio was named as an honorable mention choice to the 1974 national junior college All-American basketball team.

Dickey, who earlier became the first Northland player ever named to both the MJCAA Minnesota all-state and the NJCAA region XIII all-region first teams, was among the 26 honorable mention selections. Only two other region XIII players were awarded honorable mention All-American recognition along with Dickey. Jim Riles of Austin and Tim Getten of Normandale in Bloomington, joined Dickey from the five-state region XIII area on the honorable mention list.

Dickey was voted as Northland's most valuable player and was also named MVP in Northland's holiday basketball tournament as he paced the Northmen to a sparkling 20-5 1973-74 season record. Dickey led Northland with an 18.5 scoring average and handed out an unbelievable 319 assists.

The only player named to the 1974 junior college first team All-American squad that would be familiar to Minnesota basketball fans was Tom Barker, a 7-0 center for the college of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls. Barker played for the University of Minnesota as a freshman during the 1972-73 season before transferring to Southern Idaho—the same school that produced Minnesota's Ron Behagen.

Fire Detection Systems To Be Required In Home

Effective January 14, early warning fire detection systems must be installed in all new single and multiple dwellings constructed in Minnesota. The requirement is set forth in the new Minnesota state building code.

According to state fire marshal West Werner, at least one approved combustible detector, other than heat, must be mounted at a point centrally located and with access to sleeping areas. So far, five manufacturers have detection systems which meet state building code standards.

Werner also said that self-contained units can be installed in older dwellings by the owner.

Minnesota Outdoors

by Stu and Dee Mann

The Minnesota chapter of the nature conservancy has undertaken an ambitious program to preserve the prairie chicken which is now threatened with extinction with the loss of habitat as the primary factor contributing to the decline of the species.

Steven T. Oney, the assistant director of the conservancy, sends us this information:

"The Minnesota prairie chicken society is off and running; plans are for a second prairie chicken conference to be held this year on the weekend of April 26-28 at the Holiday Inn in Fergus Falls.

The conference program will consist of presentations from notable experts on the prairie chicken, including the Hammerstrom's of Wisconsin, as well as a number of informal get-together. Additionally, several excursions are planned to the adjacent prairie lands to view the prairie chicken during the peak of the booming season. If you have never witnessed the elaborate courtship display of the male prairie chicken as he courts his mate, I am sure you'll find it a colorful and unforgettable spectacle.

"As you probably know the Minnesota chapter of the nature conservancy has been working hard to purchase and preserve the vital habitat that is the key to the prairie chicken's survival. The chapter has been working closely with the society and plans to participate in the upcoming conference.

"For those people convenient to the Twin Cities and St. Cloud, the conservancy is willing to arrange bus transportation to and from the conference. We certainly hope you'll be interested in attending. It should be fun and worthwile and, of course, family and friends are all welcome. If you would like to join the bus expedition, please let us know and we will send you more specific details."

For your information telephone number of the midwest office of the nature conservancy is area code 612-339-7231 and the address is 325 West 15th Street, Park Terrace Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403.

Indian Week At UMC Has Full Schedule

Speakers, American Indian artists, and discussion groups will all be part of American Indian Week '74, to be held April 1-5 in Crookston. Events are sponsored by the University of Minnesota technical college, Crookston, and by the Minnesota Humanities commission, an agency of the national endowment for the humanities.

American Indian Week '74 is an attempt to bring together Indian and non-Indian persons to discuss and learn about the significant contemporary issues that affect Indians, especially in northwest Minnesota.

The week's events will begin at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 1, when Roger Jourdain, tribal council present from Red Lake, will discuss "Reservation Government and Indian Politics". Following Jourdain's presentation, the film "Little Big Man" will be shown. Both events will be held in Kiehle auditorium, UMC campus.

Carol Dodge of the teachers corps, Keshena, Wisc., will speak on Tuesday, April 2, in Kiehle auditorium at 7 p.m. Her topic will be "Political Self Determination: The Plight of the Menominees upon Termination of Reservation Status". All interested persons are welcome to attend. The session will be a joint meeting of the American association of university women, business and professional women, UMC faculty women, Mrs. Jaycees, federated women's clubs, and the league of women voters. A film titled "The Meek Shall Inherit the Earth" will also be shown.

Crookston's middle school auditorium will be the site of Wednesday's meeting, which will begin at 8:30 p.m. Paul Schultz, instructor in humanities at Rainy River community college, will discuss "Economics of the Reservation". Wednesday's speaker is endorsed by the Crookston ministerial association.

Thursday's events will begin with a noon luncheon at the Upper Deck restaurant. The luncheon will be a joint meeting of the Lions and Rotary clubs and the Crookston area Chamber of Commerce. The public is invited to attend the discussion that will begin at 12:45 p.m. The topic will be "The Treatment of Indian History and Culture in Education: Past, Present, and ??".

Presenters will be Dr. David Beaulieu, chairman of minority studies at Moorhead state college; Donald F. Bibeau, director of the Indian studies program at Bemidji state college. Responders will be Dr. Donald Sargeant, head of academic affairs, UMC; Ervie L. Glick, UMC general education division chairman; and Charles Potter, superintendent of Crookston public schools.

Displays of Indian arts and crafts will be located in the community rooms of the Crookston National bank and the First National bank and in the display window of the Tiny Tiger store all day Wednesday and Thursday and Thursday evening. A speakers' reception will be held at 9 p.m. at the Eagles club, hosted by the Eagles. Hors d'oeuvres will be furnished by the Crookston Jaycees. The reception will allow time for informal discussions with panel members, community leaders and involved citizens.

Friday's schedule begins at 4 p.m. at Central high school auditorium. Crookston public schools support the afternoon speaker, Flo Fluegel, urban representative on the North Dakota Indian affairs commission. She will discuss "Who Am I, What Am I ? Socialization Problems Among Indian Youth", and the program is scheduled to allow participation by area teachers and students.

A traditional Indian dinner will be held at 5:30 p.m. in Bede hall, UMC, Friday evening. At 7 p.m. an authentic pow-wow, featuring performances by Indian dancers and singers, will conclude the week's scheduled events.

All Indian Week events are open to the public, and the success of the program depends upon the active participation of interested citizens. The week's speakers have indicated times when they will be available to speak to any interested group.

All events are free except the Indian dinner and pow-wow and a 50-cent admission to "Litle Big Man". Charge for the dinner is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children.

Agriculture Day Is Approved By U.S. Senate

U.S. Senate recently approved legislation to honor American agriculture sponsored by Senators Bob Dole (R-Kan.) and Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.).

The resolution would establish the last full week of March each year as agriculture week and the Monday of that week as agriculture day.

Calling agriculture America's largest industry, Sen. Dole said, "The genius of the American farmer in providing for his fellow Americans and the world in the most efficient way possible is the essence of the American success story. He faces pressures unlike those in any other industry and yet has done a superior job in fulfilling our needs. He deserves a tribute, and agriculture week is dedicated to this purpose."

Said Humphrey, "Today's farmer produces more for his country than any of his predecessors ever did. Yet he does it on fewer acres, with a shrinking labor force, and from a smaller number of farms than this country has ever known.

"It is my hope that by establising an agriculture day and week that people generally will have a better understanding of this impressive contribution to the strength and welfare of our nation."

Humphrey and Dole originally introduced the resolution on Oct. 8, 1973. It is now pending action by the House of Representatives.

HOLT . . .

Newfolden band members attended the district band concert in Warroad on Saturday. They received an A rating which entitles them to go to Bemidji on May 4th. Those from here who are members are Connie Benitt, Tonia Larson, Jerold Larson, Marcie Reierson, Lauri Hanson, Jeff Hanson, Judy Garthus and Rozanne Swanson.

Darrin and Loren Haagenson spent the weekend at the Orville Larson home.

When we become mired in the routine of life, one day is like any other. This was just another working-day for most of the people in Jerusalem.

Three men died on Calvary Hill. One of them was the Galilean!

Business as usual in Jerusalem. Unless we understand the whole significance of what is happening we pay little attention . . .

Do you understand what happened that Friday? Do you realize WHO hung on that central Cross? Do you know WHY He died? And FOR WHOM?

There is nothing more necessary in our lives than the deep, personal knowledge of what happened that Friday . . . and the Sunday following.

Come to Church!

Pro-Life Group Rejects Changes In Abortion Bill

Officials of Minnesota citizens concerned for life (MCCL) charged recently that changes made by the House judiciary committee in an abortion regulatory bill (SF198) have completely altered the bill's intent by removing protections for the viable fetus contained in the version passed by the Senate February 18.

Rosemarie Johnson, MCCL vice-president, said that unless the safeguards for the fetus are returned, the bill is unacceptable to the pro-life group. "Hopefully," she said, "House members will take a long, hard look at this bill when it reaches the floor and will reinstate the provisions approved by the Senate and allowed by the Supreme Court that give the viable child a chance for life."

The Senate version defines a fetus as potentially viable at 20 weeks gestation and requires that abortions after that point be performed under circumstances which would reasonably assure the live birth and survival of the child. This provision would prohibit using the saline abortion method when the fetus is viable, or able to live outside the womb with or without artificial aid.

In the saline process, the child swallows and breathes a salt solution injected into the uterus and is usually delivered dead. If the hysterotomy method is used the child is removed surgically and has a chance for survival.

The House committee changed the regulatory bill to say a fetus is not viable until the end of the 22nd week, despite the fact that babies have survived as early as 20 weeks. It does not require efforts to save the life of the aborted child if the woman's health or future child-bearing capabilities might be impaired.

"The house judiciary amendments to the regulatory bill must be removed," Mrs. Johnson said, "or saline abortions will be done well after viability and that the fetuses involved will have no chance for survival."

She also expressed grave concern about its amendment that forces public hospitals to allow their facilities to be used for the performance of elective abortions. The original bill contained a conscience clause that allowed communities and their elected officials to refuse to allow their institutions to accommodate abortions.

Mrs. Johnson said the language of the amendment would make Minnesota law the most coercive of any state. "The supreme court decision said the Constitution does not require abortion on demand," she said, "but this bill would allow women to demand that all hospitals, agencies and institutions having any state connection must help them destroy their unborn children."

The bill is expected to come before the full House in the next few days. Mrs. Johnson emphasized that MCCL supports the bill as approved by the Senate but does not endorse the House version as it came of the judiciary committee.

DOT Proposes Heavier, Longer Truck Limits

United States department of transportation is proposing to liberalize weight and length limits for trucks by up to 35,220 pounds and 15 feet beyond the limits set by Minnesota law, the Minnesota department of public safety has been advised.

Under the DOT proposal, which is being offered as an amendment to the federal law establishing the 55-mile speed limit, trucks would be allowed an over-all length limit of 70 feet, compared with Minnesota's 55 foot limit, and a gross weight of 108,500 pounds compared with Minnesota's 73,280 pounds. The higher limits would expore with the expiration of the speed limit law, June 30, 1975.

Like the speed limit law the greater weight and length limits would be subject to state legislative action. Minnesota law now permits vehicle with an over-all length of 65 feet, under certain strictly defined conditions.

According to secretary of transportation Claude S. Brinegar, the new limits are designed to meet complaints of the trucking industry about losses resulting from the lower speed limits.

Minnesota weight limits are graduated according to a formula that takes into account the number of axles and the distance between foremost and rear-most axles. The limit on a single axle, 18,000 pounds, would be increased under the DOT proposal to 20,000 pounds.

According to the DOT, the higher limits would cause a 20 per cent increase in road and bridge maintenance costs.

U.S. Air Force Needs Engineers And Scientists

U. S. air force recruiting service has a new requirement to enlist 200 engineers, scientists and mathematicians for commissioning during fiscal year 1975, according to captain Fred J. Beezer, officer-airman selection branch, 3500th recruiting operations group.

The highly technical nature of the air force's mission and equipment creates a constant demand for persons with degrees in technical areas. Specific degree requirements for FY75 are 25 each in civil engineering and computer sciences; 20 mathematicians; 10 each aeronautical, aerospace and mechanical engineers, and 100 electrical engineers.

Other career opportunities exist for young men who qualify for navigator training and persons who hold degrees in the health professions.

MEA President Comments About Teacher Salaries

Teachers must be paid at least as much per hour as babysitters are paid if they are to catch up with salary losses.

That statement was made by president W. M. (Mort) Mondale of the Minnesota education association (MEA), who also urges a more systematic system of salary adjustment than "the boom-and-bust" method that has prevailed.

"Some years ago," Mondale explains, "teachers made great strides in the catch-up game—and we almost made it. But, during the last few years especially—and this is in the news daily—inflation has wiped us out.

"The way we see it, teachers must have 20 per cent increases across the board just to catch up."

Average salary of classroom teachers in Minnesota, Mondale maintains, simply has not kept pace with "the outrageous increases in cost of living."

"One of the troubles is," Mondale continues, "that teachers get salary increases only when conditions get so bad that the public insists raises be granted.

"That kind of planning is worse than no planning. Increases come in spurts. People get a distorted idea of teacher pay raises. It makes more sense to increase salaries for teachers steadily as they are increased in other jobs.

"This boom-and-bust method of salary adjustments has to go."

As far as being behind in the inflation spiral is concerned, Mondale continues, "we're back in that bag of teachers subsidizing their own jobs."

Mineral Heritage Stamps To Be Issued June 13

A block of four 10-cent postage stamps commemorating America's mineral heritage will be issued June 13 at the national gem and mineral show in Lincoln, Neb. The stamps call attention to the contributions minerals have made to making the United States a leader among nations and its people the most advantaged on earth.

The unique designs represent a new U.S. treatment of the classic square format. By rotating the block of stamps 45 degrees, designer Leonard F. Buckley achieved a near diamond shape for the individual stamps and for the set of four. In use, such rotation will be encouraged by the positioning of the stamp denomination—the numbers appear horizontally only when the stamps are rotated.

First day requests may be made to "Mineral Heritage Stamps, Postmaster, Lincoln, NE 68501," enclosing proper remittance and with requests postmarked no later than June 13. Enclose 40 cents for a block of four. Requests for single 10-cent stamps will be honored, providing the name of the gem is indicated in the upper right hand corner of the cover.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

How much of a price is the U.S. supposed to pay for "DENTENTE"? This fancy word is a way of saying we have better relations with the Soviet Communists. It must be very valuable because we are in the process of giving up an awful lot. This is especially felt when we read of continued drives by the North Vietnamese in Cambodia and South Vietnam. That war was supposed to have ended when we agreed to send wheat to Russia.

While it is true that we prefer talking to fighting, it is also true that we have been given powerful peaceful ways to improve things. If it seems important to help the power of Russian Communism, it is equally important to know what we are doing by trading with them.

In the first place, we are not trading with the Russian people. Our free enterprise system through our corporations is trading with a small number of political dictators. It is estimated that only about 3 per cent of the Russian people belong to the communist party. This means that trading for what this ruling class wants helps them increase their power over their people.

If, on the other hand, we could have a united voice and say certain obligations must be met before we trade, then something really good could result.

Trade can be a wonderful means for good and we should learn to use it. War is a loser for both sides, and it is not necessary, but trade is something else. The Kremlin bosses want computors, they want our technology, they want to know how we build so many wonderful trucks and machines, they want to know how we can farm better than anyone else; in other words, they want what we have.

They in turn have very little to offer us. For about 40 years they have exported terror and they are good at it, but do we want that? They have consistently broken agreements as they are doing in Vietnam right now. Why in the name of common sense do we want to increase trade with them? The quest for profit here, if it is our only concern, can only lead to trouble.

On March 19, the Associated Press reported that the Pentagon asked Congress to quickly approve an increase in aid to South Vietnam. The amount was an increase from 1.25 billion to 1.6 billion dollars. There was also a new request for $29 million to turn the present U.S communications site on the Indain Ocean atoll of Diego Carcia into a general support facility in the Indian Ocean. This was to counter the threat of domination in that area by the Russian fleet.

In my opinion, there is no such thing as non-strategic material. Everything we do to improve the industrial might of the communists in Russia increases the danger to the free world. We are spending too much money on defense now and it is all because of the Russian threat to others. China perhaps will be the next one to get massive help from us.

Trade is important to the communists, but it is not vital to our economy or our industry. We have the means to expect great things from our relaxation of trade with them. We should expect decent treatment of Christians and their release from Soviet labor camps and prisons. We should expect the Vietnam war to stop completely because we know the Russians provide the hardware for the North. We should expect the Berlin Wall to come down.

Unless there are some solid examples of agreement on what we want, trade should be considered out of the question. We hear much about a new world at peace; let's use the power we have for good.

Why should anyone support the Republican Party? Although most would agree that we need a two party system, there is a negative reaction to Republican politics to say the least. The thoughts of corruption, payola, abuse of power, etc., are natural to the casual observer. The real story is quite different and if our system of government is to survive, the facts must be understood.

In 1972 a solid majority of voters elected a lot more than a protest against communist appeasement and new socialistic programs. This same majority also elected something a lot more real and positive than the lesser of two evils. What a lot of taxburdened people did was to think about government power and growth enough to desire some changes. It was not possible to change Congress over night but the Presidency offered immediate hope.

For 40 years this liberal Congress had created the most enormous spectacle of a bureaucracy the world had ever seen. The next best thing to do was to find in the Presidency some opposition to government growth and irrational spending. It was hoped by this majority to see some light at the end of the road so our national debt would shrink instead of swell. The dollar needed common sense economics like never before.

Watergate has not changed this mandate from the majority. There is a strong desire by working men and women to cut out the nonsense, or the waste, and at least approach a balanced budget. At the same time it was not their desire to become victims of nuclear blackmail through unilateral disarmament.

The tragedy of Watergate is that very few understand what created all that unwanted power in the Presidency in the first place. Instead of facing this root cause, our country continues its hysterical binge of the destruction of a President. What should be of most concern is to cut out the countless overlapping programs and shrink the bureaucracy to a tolerable size. The only party that can even try to do this is the Republican party.

The reason is simple. Those who are now in positions of power in Congress are chairmen of committees that control the purse strings. The pressure by selfish groups on these men makes it very hard for them to cut out programs. Some of them are very liberal and this only aggravates the situation. This is the challenge to the Republican party if it is to function as a loyal opposition. It must combine compassion with hard realism and offer to the voter an unpopular but necessary austerity in government.

Why should anyone support the Republican Party? Watergate was not a Republican party function. It should not disappear out of a sense of false guilt because even if we wanted a third party, finances alone put that alternative out of reach. Conservatives and working people, union or independent, should support only those politicians who are brave enough to be unpopular.

Hopefully the Republicans can offer these kinds of men. If they do, it might be possible for them to win a few elections before it is too late. If they nominate only those who will go with the stream and ignore the bureaucracy, the party has lost its purpose.

A new threat to political freedom in our Country is the drive to finance political campaigns by the government. Using the stimulating effect of Watergate, the liberals say this is the answer to corruption. The way it is proposed will have a place to check off a one dollar payment to the party of our choice.

The Sock Hop, where the dancers discard their shoes so as not to mar the floor of the school gymnasium, is featured in "American Graffiti," which opens Fri., April 5, at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

Timothy Bottoms as a freshman Harvard Law student gazes in awe at the books he will have to read in "The Paper Chase," premiering at the Galaxy Twin Theatre, Wed., April 3.

There has been a continual barrage of editorials and statements made by those who want this type of financing that it will eliminate corruption. The reverse, however, will be very probable.

There are two ways this system will increase corruption and the power of pressure groups. The first way is to cut down the expenses of these pressure groups for the actual campaigns. They can thus use their funds for increased lobbying. The second way is to eliminate the power of a free people to choose and elect candidates. This will be through the decreased amount of small individual contributions to local candidates. It is logical that if public funds are used for campaigns, individuals will feel no need to help candidates they might want. It will become even more impersonal and detached from the general public than it is now.

Minnesota will perhaps be one of the first states to pass a state public financing bill. This bill will provide state funds. All the taxpayer will have to do is indicate the party of his choice and one dollar will be paid by the state. State Sen. Robert Stassen in St. Paul objected to this bill by saying, "It creates the illusion of participation in politics without real participation." Since much party work is now being done by paid representatives of organized labor or corporations, the little being done by individuals will become less.

A recent survey indicates that only 24 per cent of the registered voters are Republicans and 43 per cent are Democrats. The rest called themselves independents. This will increase the trend into a one party system. With a one party system, corruption will be the only way a pressure group can get what it wants.

An interesting way of looking at this is to consider what happens when the government has a state church. In Norway the government pays the costs of the church. The result has been that church attendance is down. Interest is down and the criticism has been that the church is dead. The reason is simple. If the people had to support the church themselves, they would naturally have more interest.

The small gifts of the average voter to the party of his choice is the only present power to fight corruption. If the need for this is eliminated by public financing, the result for both parties could be a disaster.

It is my opinion that public financing of campaigns is fundamentally wrong. It will not correct anything and as it is now it will increase the danger of one party rule. The best way to counter this new threat to freedom is to increase the number of people who will be willing to give small amounts on their own to the party or the candidates of their choice.

The following is a fantasy. It could never happen here. After all, we have enjoyed personal freedom for two centuries. It is now 1976, the 200th anniversary of our republic. The secret of our success has been a stable government within which all people could move about and do whatever suited them best. Most important of all, we could worship God as we pleased.

The phenomenal growth of our nation made us rich and very busy. We were so busy with so many things. Many good people worked hard for the Volunteers, 4-H, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the lodge, charity drives of all kinds, and of course, church work of all kinds.

The Christians read about persecution in other lands—but that was far away—Russia or China or someplace. It certainly was not here. People worked hard making their living. As taxes increased to pay for all the good causes and programs created for us by government, the wives went to work too. It was the only way they could make ends meet, but nobody seemed to mind. Those who advocated more and more waste in government continued to be elected over and over again. In fact they had complete control of Congress.

Now all of that is different—people were busy like that in 1974, but now there aren't so many people around and the rest of us do as we are told. How it all happened is hard to say—it was all so legal. No one could really do anything about it.

It seemed that the business of precinct caucuses was taken over by the "Green Shirts". They packed the caucuses of both parties all over the country and with this power they passed "The Resolution". It was a resolution to do away with certain people. Just who was to go, I'm not really sure. Anyway, it was terrible.

"The Resolution" became the law, the candidates were chosen who supported it. It was done by working from the precinct to the county to the district and thus to the state conventions. It became the policy of both national conventions. There was only one man who ran for president. Those who were named enemies of the state were efficiently and swiftly eliminated.

The Green Shirts were everywhere. They understood the political process and power. They were disciplined. The homes and businesses of those who opposed the regime were sacked and burned. The people in them seemed to disappear.

The country remained very strong—foreign countries understood power and discipline. The army, of course, had doubled. Research for defense had produced many new and wonderful weapons. No country dared to defy us.

Sunday mornings were a bit lonesome because there were no churches open for worship. No one dared to go—besides they had to work Sunday since Monday was now the day of rest. Anyway, we can now worship silently as we look at the beauty of a flower or the northern lights.

Oh yes, there are to be no more precinct caucuses. There is now only one party. It is supported by the federal governement—so elections will be fair and not a burden. It is a new and wonderful day—since the precinct caucuses of 1974.

Lowered thermostats of the energy crisis may be a boon to your skin, says Thelma Baierl, University of Minnesota extension clothing specialist. And the same will be true this summer when air conditioners are used more sparingly to save energy.

Home heating and air conditioning dry the skin. Some dermatologists say that wrinkles and itchy skin are common results of Americans' devotion to year around artificially controlled temperatures.

Winter heat and summer air conditioning limit the humidity ino our homes and dry the skin. More moderate temperatures for heating and air conditioning will slow moisture evaporation from the skin and curb the dry, itchy feeling many people experience all year, Baierl says.

If you still suffer from uncomfortably dry skin depite cooler homes and offices, Baierl suggests bathing less frequently, adding oil to your bath water, limiting the amount of soap you use and lubricating your skin thoroughly at least once a day.

In-furnace and portable humidifiers also may help make skin more comfortable in dry winter climates such as Minnesota's, Baierl says.

It may be fortunte that people will need fewer moisturinzing creams, lotions and oils to preserve their complexions at the moderate indoor temperatures recommended for fuel conservation. Many of these cosmetic products will be in short supply because they are made of scarce petrochemicals. This will mean higher prices to the consumer, according to Baieri.

Only skin care products made of animal and vegetable oils such as lanolin and coconut oil will continue plentiful and at fairly stable prices. Even common hygiene products such as shampoo may become more expensive as raw material supplies dwindle.

Are you curious about how you are doing on energy conservation? Let your utility bills tell the tale, says Edna Jordahl, extension home management specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Compare this month's heating fuel and electricity statements with those you received for the same perod in 1973, she says. Don't just look at how much you paid in both months because the rates per unit may have increased.

Instead, compare the number of kilowatt-hours of electricity (KWH) and the number of hundred cubic feet of heating fuel (CCF) to gauge whether lowered thermostats, daylight savings time and other economy measure are having the hoped-for result in your home.

If it appears your efforts to conserve aren't working, it may be because of changes in lifestyle, differences in heating or cooling requirements because of weather variation or differences in the number of people at home, Mrs. Jordahl says. If you have additional appliances this year such as dishwashers or clothes driers, you may be using more energy despite cut-backs in lighting, heating or cooking.

Are there more people living in your home now to explain increased use of energy? A college-age youth who returns to the parents' home, for example, will increase energy requirements through stepped-up demands for hot water and service from household appliances. Similarly, a new baby's arrival may mean heating a room that prevously was closed off and using a washing machine and automatic dryer more regularly.

Keep these changes in mind when deciding if your conservation measures are successful, Mrs. Jrdahl says. Without fuel-saving steps, you probably would use considerably more energy than you do now.

Have you been notified that you are the lucky winner of a free prize? If so, chances are that you might not be as lucky as you think.

Many merchants conduct legitimate contests to stimulate business. However, some unscrupulous businesses conduct phony contests as gimmicks to sell their products. All that the winners of these contests generally receive is a chance to buy the seller's product. Sometimes even at a price in excess of its actual value. In these contests almost everyone is a so-called "winner."

There are several variations of the phony contest fraud. In one the prize is generally an article of inferior quality, but the "winner" is told that he can apply the value of his prize as a discount towards the purchase of better quality, more expensive merchandise. The price the "winner" pays for his purchase, even with the so-called discount, is more than he would have paid for the same merchandise from another merchant.

Another scheme requires the prize-winner to pay a service charge for his prize. This is usually expressed as pennies per day or per week. When the total amount to be paid is computed, it turns out that the prize-winner is paying full value or even more for his prize. A variant of this scheme requires the winner to purchase another product at an inflated price to receive his prize.

If you are told that you have been selected as a winner of a sales-promotion contest you should take the following steps to insure that you actually have won something of value:

1. Ask to see a list of winners.
2. Don't be pressured into buying something you don't want or need, just to get a free prize.
3. Compare prices on items comparable to those you have won. Remember the service charge or cost of items you must buy to get your prize is really the cost of obtaining your prize.
4. Beware of high pressure sales tactics. Don't sign anything without reading and understanding it.
5. Rember if you are told you must accept the deal offered at once, you are really being asked to give up your ability to compare prices.

If you have an encounter with a phony contest contact the attorney general's office, 102 State Capitol building, St. Paul, Minn. 55155.

"Negative selling" is a sales tactic being used with increasing frequency in Minnesota. It is sometimes used to manipulate consumers into making unwise purchases.

If a salesman has ever asked, "Do you feel that you really qualify to take advantage of this great opportunity?" "Are you sure you are the right man for this?" you may have been the object of this sales technique.

Many consumers have been approached to buy a product, become a member of a buying club, or participate in a business opportunity scheme by salesmen using negative sales techniques. The theory behind the technique is to place the consumer on the defensive and make him defend his personal qualities rather than examine the value of the product, organization, or business opportunity scheme offered.

Prospects are made to believe they must possess numerous strict qualifications to be eligible to take advantage of the opportunity being offered. In this way consumers are decieved into believeing that the only decision to be made is whether a salesman will find them qualified.

The technique is aimed at denying consumers the opportunity to decide whether or not to buy the product by diverting them from inquiring about the quality of the product, organization or business opportunity. Any searching question a consumer may ask will be turned around.

For example, if a consumer asks, "How do I know I will make money in this business opportunity?", the salesman will reply: "How do I know you'll take care of it?" if the consumer says: "I would like to think this over; can I call you back?", the salesman will reply: "My company feels that it only wants to do business with people capable of making prompt decisions."

When confronted with a negative selling presentation consumers should take the following steps:

(1) Insist that your questions regarding the quality or value of the product, organiztion or business opportunity are answered.

(2) Insist that the salesman provide you with references to contact regarding the value or quality of the item to be sold. Contact as many of them as you can to determine whether they are satisfied.

(3) Do not agree to make the purchase or sign a contract during the initial presentation. Review the contract with an attorney before you sign it and discuss the items to be sold before you make your final decision.

(4) Be certain that all agreements and guarantees are written into the contract. Do not rely on oral assurances or promises.

(5) Check the age, history, responsibility and credit standing of the company. To do this contact the Better Business Bureau for a report on the seller or ask the consumer division of the attorney general's office.

Consignment sales has recently gained popularity as a method of disposing of consumer owned goods, particularly automobiles.

The reason for this popularity is that most of us are of the opinion we could sell it ourselves at a better price than that which would be allowed as a "trade in."

This is a method of selling whereby the owner physically delivers his car to another person along with authority to sell it, usually at a specified minimum price.

If you are considering selling or purchasing your car in this manner there are a number of hazards you should be aware of.

First, as the owner entrusting the vehicle to an agent you may not be able to "repossess" the car if it is sold for less than your asking price, or if anything else goes wrong. By law, in most states, the buyer will be entitled to keep the car and your only recourse would be to sue the selling agent.

Second, as a buyer you may be purchasing an automobile that is mortgaged or otherwise has a lien against it. In such a case, you could be faced with a demand for its return or face litigation to defend your title.

There are a number of ways you can protect yourself if you are considering selling or purchasing anything by consignment.

As a purchaser:

1. Demand to know who owns the vehicle.
2. Demand to see the title. If it is a titled automobile, that document will disclose any financing.
3. If the vehicle is not titled, check with the owner to insure that it is not financed or otherwise used as collateral for personal loans.
4. If you are satisfied that there are no loans against the untitled vehicle, have both the selling agent and the owner guarantee a clear title on the purchase agreement.
5. Always make payment by personal, cashier's or certified check.
6. Always make that check payable to all parties that may have an interest in the vehicle, the owner, the selling agent and any lien holder.

As a seller:

1. Deal only with reputable firms and check with reporting agencies such as the Better Business Bureau for their consumer experience and reliability.
2. Never sign over your title or registration card in advance of the actual sale.
3. Demand to know who is purchasing your car. Contact that person to insure that the price meets with your approval and instruct him to make his check payable to all interested parties.

If you have any complaints regarding consignment sales practices, contact the Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

If you are a mobile home park tenant, a state law which became effective on Aug. 1, 1973, provides you with a number of new protections regarding your lot rental agreement, fees and utility rates.

The new law requires that every agreement to rent or lease a mobile home lot must be contained in a written document signed by the lessor and the tenant.

The agreement must specify every term and condition in connection with the lot rental, including a description of the location and size of the lot, the monthly rental, a statement of all personal property, services and facilities to be provided by the lessor to the tenant, and the amount of any security deposit, installation charges and other fees imposed on the tenant.

It must also specify the rights, duties and obligations of the lessor and the tenant and all rules and regulations of the mobile home park which, if violated, would be cause for eviction. The law also requires that the tenant be notified in writing at least 60 days before any change in the terms of a rental agreement.

Fees which had been charged mobile home tenants for the right to obtain or retain a lot and to sell their mobile homes are now prohibited. The lessor may, however, charge a reasonable fee for goods or services which he actually furnishes in setting up a mobile home on a lot. Also security deposits are limited to no more than two months rent.

The new law also regulates utility rates imposed on mobile home park tenants. It prohibits the park owner from charging for utility services at a rate greater than the larger of either that which the tenant would pay if he purchased the services from another source in the same area or that which is charged to single family dwellings with comparable utility needs in the same area.

Finally, the law provides that any person who is injured by a violation of the law can file a lawsuit for damages and recover his costs, disbursements and reasonable attorneys fees. The attorney general is also given authority to investigate alleged violations and to bring an action seeking an injunction and civil penalties of up to $25,000.

If you have information of a violation of this law, contact the Consumer Division of the Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

New Home-Made Ice Cream

This Almond Brittle Ice Cream is a scrumptious dessert that can't be bought in any store. Refreshing and not too rich, it's perfect for any spring or summer occasion.

You won't find ground almonds in many stores, but you can easily prepare them yourself. Grind whole shelled almonds — or coarsely chopped, slivered or sliced almonds — a few at a time, in an electric blender or a food chopper with a fine blade. Use natural almonds (almonds that have not been blanched) for deeper color and more pronounced flavor, or blanched almonds for a more subtle taste.

Almond Brittle Ice Cream

½ cup ground natural or blanched almonds
½ cup sugar
¼ cup margarine, softened
1 quart vanilla ice cream
½ teaspoon almond extract

Combine almonds and sugar in heavy saucepan or skillet; stir over low heat until sugar melts and almonds turn a golden brown. Turn out onto foil; cool. Wrap foil around brittle and smash into crumbles. Mix with margarine and almond extract; chill. Allow ice cream to soften slightly; stir in brittle mixture; freeze. Makes 1 quart.

"WHERE THE SIGN FLASHES TIME AND TEMPERATURE TWENTY-FOUR HOURS A DAY"

New System Of Transportation Needed, FU Says

Adoption of legislation creating a state department of transportation could be helpful in developing a better balanced and more effective transportation system, Minnesota Farmers Union said recently.

Officials of Farmers Union testifying before House and Senate government operations committees endorsed bills which would place planning, development and regulation of air, barge, truck and rail transportation in a new department.

Farmers Union spokesmen warned that the transportation system, which was near total breakdown in 1973, may deteriorate in 1974 because of the energy crunch.

"It is high time, steps were taken to improve all types of transportation rather than to have them rival each other and block measures which could improve efficiency," said Cy Carpenter, Farmers Union state president.

"No single system of transportation can do the job alone," he warned. "A shift to total reliance on trucks is impossible and undesirable as well. It would result in lack of competition, higher rates, greater consumption of fuel per ton mile and the necessity for vast new highway building programs."

Farmers Union urged that the bills be amended to provide for a five-year moratorium on rail line abandonments.

"The legislature should bring a total halt to rail line terminations and to establish a system in which future abandonments would be delayed until alternative transportation services are available," he recommended.

"Transportation is the backbone of our economic system and if rail or other service is allowed to be pulled out of our rural areas, the effect will be to nullify all the efforts towards regional development and recovery," he said.

The statement pointed out that if all rail terminations now contemplated by the railway companies in Minnesota were to be allowed, it would cost $80 million in highway construction to bring roads up to standard so that trucks could furnish the needed services.

It noted that a truck consumes three times the amount of fuel to move a ton of freight one mile, compared to a rail locomotive.

Farmers Union pointed out that whereas major highways are already chocked with traffic and near their ultimate capacity, the railroad track system could easily accomodate 200 to 300 per cent in volume with improvements in scheduling and in car availability and utilization.

Farmers and rural communities lost heavily in 1973 because transportation was not available as needed.

"The situation will not be much better in 1974 and could be worse because of the fuel shortage," Carpenter warned. "Adoption of the legislation for a state department of transportation could at least give us a public policy comitted to improved services and facilities in the future."

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Sugar is not always "forbidden fruit" for the diabetic. Sometimes it's a necessity according to the physicians of the Minnesota State Medical Association.

The blood sugar level of a diabetic on insulin can take a sudden drop causing loss of sugar supply to the nervous system and producing such symptoms as weakness, shaking, fatigue, drowsiness, extreme hungar, and sweating. There's an excessive buildup of insulin in the body, and this can lead to insulin shock or diabetic coma.

Before this happens, he must have sugar, and the seasoned diabetic carries sugar lumps or hard candy with him for just such an emergency—along with his card identifying him as a diabetic.

What causes this diabetic trauma? It can be improper food intake, diarrhea, or unusual exercise. Or, it can mean that the diabetes is under control to a point where there is no longer a need for injected insulin. When difficulty in swallowing or unconsciousness occurs, the diabetic must have a doctor at once for an injection that will raise the sugar level immediately.

Prevention? The key is self control of diet, time, health, and exercise. The diabetic must follow his diet carefully, eat his meals on schedule, control infections promptly, and exercise regularly.

Beginning with the discovery of insulin in 1921 by two Canadian physicians, medical science has steadily moved ahead—changing diabetes from a disease of the dying to a controlled condition of people with a lot of living to do.

"It sure is rough raising kids today." People have said this, in one way or another, for generations; but, obviously, the physicians of the Minnesota State Medical association point out, they haven't stopped taking on the job.

An authority on the treatment of disturbed children, in a featured article on child rearing, tells us that we may be protecting or insulating our children too well from the problems of life.

It's in childhood, he says, that we learn to meet difficulties, to struggle through them, and to not let them defeat us. According to this expert, the technological age has forced us into smaller, more isolated family units, and children no longer have the benefit of the flow of generations living together—or the Grandma's house on Sunday life style their parents knew.

Parents today, therefore, are more than ever, the single most important influence on children. It's good for a child to have compatible parents whose personality differences complement each other--giving him a large reservoir of traits to draw upon for his own adult development.

This doctor says society must help educate parents to acquire a rich pool of personality resources for their youngsters, or we will continue to have "children of despair" with deep psychiatric problems.

The role of parents and teachers should be to provide consistent, healty authority, to equip their children to face the challenges of life—to share rather than shelter.

Loneliness is painful. Its victims feel cut off from people, unaccepted and blue. They want to lift their depression, to "fit"; to feel good. Thus begins the desperate cycle for some alcoholic patients. They're lonely; they're unaccepted—they drink.

A current medical journal describes one Twin Cities' hospital's approach to the treatment of the hospitalized alcoholic.

The program attempts to get such patients to isolate the problem—chemical dependency on alcohol. To the alcoholic, this means admitting he must drink to get through his days and nights. He needs to understand that his behavior clashes with his values and causes the inner, mixed-up feelings which literally "drive him to drink." "Values" isn't a term he commonly uses. To him, this is just the way he feels about things—himself, his family, his job, etc.

A man may long for the closeness of family life but is unable to express this need. He feels cut off, unaccepted—lonely. He drinks. The result? . . .a clash between his values and behavior, causing more family injection and more of the thing he drinks to escape—loneliness.

The alcoholic builds up "Defense mechanisms" . . another term he may never use but he must understand—meaning ways in which he keeps from admitting his chemical dependency—that he is an alcoholic.

Once the patient recognizes his conflicts as a sign of his illness, counseling and therapy with his family can begin.

Don't lean on liquor. It's a crutch that can crush you. The physicians of the Minnesota State Medical Association urge you to get help. You don't have to fight it alone.

Remember how you laughed as you read the funnies when Maggie raised a lump on Jigg's head with her rolling pin?

Lumps and swellings aren't always a laughing matter, warns the Minnesota State Medical association. A lump or a swelling may be due to an insignificant cause, such as wens or fatty tumors. However, it is always wise to have them investigated to make certain that they are not of a more serious nature.

The appearance of a lump or a mass where it does not belong is one of the warning signals of cancer. Lumps in the female breast or lymph nodes in the arm pits are common sites of lumps. Fortunately, many of these are not cancerous and are simple to remove. Others are malignant and require extensive surgery, including removal of the breast. This must be done in time if the patient's life is to be saved.

Whenever an abnormal lump appears on the body or in it, either the male or female, it should be examined and diagnosed without delay by a physician, and his suggested treatment should be accepted.

Swellings in the limbs, particularly at the end of the day, may mean the gathering of fluid in the tissues. When this occurs the physician may want to do an examination to determine whether the heart, kidneys, blood or secretion glands are involved. When normally well fitting footwear begins to feel tight at the end of the day or the flesh "pits" when pressure is applied, it's time to see the doctor.

There is a difference between the absence of taste and smell and abnormal taste and smell, advises the Minnesota state medical association. Both senses in the human being are rather poorly developed compared to some animals - and ordinarily if we lose our sense of smell, we also feel that we have lost our sense of taste because the two are so intermingled.

Sense of smell is more delicate than the sense of taste, and can be lost for a multitude of reasons. If we have a plugging of our nose by polyps or tumors or allergy, the substances we wish to smell cannot get up there to be smelled. If we have a fracture of the bone in the area where the smell nerves come through the upper nose, they can be cut off, and we lose our sense of smell.

If we have a lesion in the tracks of the brain that carry the sense of smell, we can either have a loss of smell or abnormal smell. Many times there is no history of any injury, no evidence of any tumors or closure of the inside of the nose, and we don't know the reason why the patient loses his sense of smell. Smell may return spontaneously.

If a patient has an abnormal sense of smell, like burning rags, or things smell different than usual, it may mean a brain lesion, and the patient should certainly consult his physician for diagnosis of the problem.

MIRACLE WATER

Steve Woale

As animals go, man is long lived. Only some kinds of tortoises or land turtles live longer than man. An elephant lives to be around 60 years of age, a parrot 50 years. As large as a whale is, he reaches full maturity at the age of 12 years and lives approximately 40 years. A butterfly only lives a few months. A marigold plant is old in three or four months, while some plants live to be hundreds of years old. The tree family puts all to shame, as some of the species live to be thousands of years old, such as the giant California trees.

Your water bearing appliances, your sinks, plumbing fixtures, your clothes, in fact, almost everything in your home will keep its new look longer and perform longer and better with Refined Water from Miracle Refined water and a small amount of soap are all that is needed to keep your household in tip top shape. Humphrey Says FEO Policies Shorted Fuel

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey recently charged that the federal energy office's decision to announce gasoline price adjustments in advance of implementation contributed to shortages experienced by the American people.

"FEO's announcement that dealers and refiners would receive higher markups on gasoline after March 1 resulted in a buildup of supplies along the distribution chain and accounts for much of the shortage prior to March 1," Humphrey said.

"This would explain the big jump in primary gasoline inventories reported by the American Petroleum Institute for the week ending March 1," said the Senator.

Humphrey's remarks were made at the second day of hearings on gasoline distribution by the joint economic committee's subcommittee on consumer economics, which he chairs.

The Minnesota senator maintained that "the delay in pass throughs of crude oil cost increases until the first of each month may also help to explain the end of month shortages that have caused such inconvenience to motorists each month since November."

And he said that testimony received by the Subcommittee on Tuesday indicated "that federal regulations were at least partly to blame for the astronomical price levels reached this winter in propane which is widely used for heating in rural areas, especially by lower-income people.

"The price of propane went up to many times its normal level during the heating season and now at the end of the season we are told that a surplus of this fuel exists all across the country," Humphrey added.

Pointing out that the oil companies have raised retail gas prices 30 per cent in the last year at a cost of about $200 a year for the average American family, Humphrey said "the oil companies' strategy has worked. ,

"The oil embargo is to be lifted, oil companies are reaping exorbitant profits, the ranks of independent dealers have been decimated and thousands of franchise operators threatened with contract termination.

"So these, along with a number of other maket factors, make the future outlook bright for the oil companies and bleak for the consumers."

Humphrey also expressed concern that "rural gasoline dealers, which are supposed to supply farmers with the full amount of their gasoline needs, are getting the same reduced quota of gasoline as other distributors.

"In other words, the priorities system does not apply at the dealer level and rural dealers, especially farm cooperatives, are not getting enough to meet fully the requirements of their priority customers."

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

(Q.)—I was honorably discharged from military service last month, and plan to buy a home with a GI loan from the Veterans Administration. Will my wife's income help me qualify for the loan?

(A.)—Yes. The VA since 1973 has been giving full recognition to income of both veteran and spouse in determining ability to repay loans.

(Q.)—How many individuals trained under Veterans Administration educational programs during fiscal year 1973?

(A.)—Enrollments in the agency's three programs reached 2.2 million, the highest level since World War II. Included were 2.1 million veterans and servicemen under the GI Bill; 29,600 under the vocational rehabilitation program, and 68,200 under the dependents' educational assistance program.

(Q.)—I draw compensation from the Veterans Administration for a service-connected disability suffered in Vietnam. Am I entitled to a $150 annual clothing allowance?

(A.)—That depends upon the nature of your disability. If you wear one or more prosthetic or orthopedic appliances (including a wheelchair) which tend to wear out or tear your clothing, you are eligible. But you must apply to the Veterans Administration to get it.

Q—My father was killed in service during the Vietnam Conflict which makes me eligible for War Orphans Educational Assistance from the Veterans Administration. However, I have joined the Army and would like to take advantage of the program while in service. Is this possible?

A—No. A person eligible under the War Orphans Educational Assistance program may not utilize its benefits while in service.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

by Arch N. Booth

Executive Vice President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Will we still have the Republican party to kick around after the 1974 elections? A lot of people are speculating that we might not, and the preliminary evidence is hardly evidence is hardly reassuring.

Still, Americans have a habit of greatly exaggerating political obituaries.

After the McGovern debacle—which many commentators ascribed to a "takeover" of the Democratic party by its extremist left wing—there were predictions aplenty that the Democrats were "committing suicide."

Same predict on about the Republicans, following Goldwater's race against Johnson.

And how's this for a chronicle of political failure: Failed in business in '31. . .defeated for legislature in '32. . .again failed in business '33. . .elected to legislature '34. . .had nervous breakdown '36. . .defeated for speaker '38. . .defeated for elector '40. . .defeated for Congress '43. . .defeated for Congress '48. . .defeated for Senate '55. . .defeated for vice president '56. . .defeated for Senate '58.

What kind of political future would you give a man like that? Well, in 1860 Abraham Lincoln finally on one. The big one.

So I don't think there is much danger of the Republicans becoming extinct, even if they have a terrible year at the polls.

There is another danger that concerns me more. Historically, when either party has been overwhelmingly dominant the result has been much bad legislation. Indeed, it is usally public reaction against the excesses of the dominant party that ultimately breathes life back into its moribund oppositon.

Our tendency to react against political excess is one of the greatest bulwarks of our liberty. But rapid swings between political extremes exact a price we would be better off avoiding. The man with one foot on hot coals and the other on a block of ice may feel fine "on the average," but he's suffering burns at one extreme and frostbite at the other.

When the ruling party is confronted with an oppositon of healthy size, it is forced to proceed cautiously and to compromise reasonably. That's the way it should be.

I know an executive—a Democrat—who lies to suggest to his fellow executives that more businessmen should join his party. His audience usually responds with the observation that the Republicans are supposed to be more "pro business." "If that's true," he answers, "then the Democrats need more members from the business community so they will have the benefit of their views, too."

Whether or not these simplistic assumptions about the orientation of the two parties is true, it is undeniably true that both encompass within themselves a wide diversity of political philosophy. That fact sometimes makes choices frustrating, but it also has a stabilizing influence that has served the country well.

Practically everybody seems to be in a "throw the rascals out" mood right now, and no wonder. But first, let's count to ten and then take a close look at the record of each particular rascal. Some of them may be worth preserving. And remember, too, no matter what party you support, it's a good idea to have enough of the other party around looking over their shoulders to keep your boys on their toes.

Thought For The Day

When a spider starts to build a web, he strings one thread from a rafter in the ceiling to the floor. He then proceeds to spin his web around that one thread which is the anchor.

One day in a fit of smugness, he cuts loose the one anchor thread and his whole life is cut loose and falls in a heap around him.

We are not unlike that spider. We need the anchor around which everything else can be built.

A Good Show

Even after procrastinating in selection of a night until the reserved seat section was sold out. . . .arriving an hour early to purchase general admission tickets and find and hold a good seat. . . and sitting in that seat for something like three and one-half hours. . . .this writer greatly enjoyed the Lincoln high school production of "The Music Man". The standing ovation accorded by the Saturday night crowd of which we were a part was richly deserved.

And it might be noted that the standing ovation was started by a group of visiting students from another school who occupied a special section in the right front of the auditorium. Tribute from students to students for excellence in performance is worthy of recognition.

We profess no knowledge of music or the fine points of theatrical performance, but we know what we enjoy in entertainment. To that end, "The Music Man" was most enjoyable.

Greg Sorenson and Karen Lindquist in the lead roles performed with expected excellence. Their precedent set in previous musicals and other appearances in and out of school would lead the audience to expect nothing else from them.

Although we are more accustomed to watching little Robbie Blankenfeld in a pair of hockey skates or basketball trunks, he did not look unfamiliar with the musical stage. In his role as the shy Winthrop Paroo, applause for his rendition of "Gary, Indiana" was perhaps the loudest and most enthusiastic of the night before the final curtain call evoked clapping in unison from the crowd attending.

Kathy Wald and Greg Gilbert as Zaneeta Shinn and Tommy Djilos played their roles to the hilt and the harmonizing of the quartet consisting of Rod Sletten, Kjell Melvie, Jon Foster and Phil Swenson was quite appealing. Freshman Delano Bue as Marcellus gave promise of appearances to come and third grader Barb Laidley as Amaryllis displayed a good deal of stage presence.

One of the high points of the musical, however, was that which wasn't readily apparent. That was the scene changes and lighting effects which were done so well as to go unnoticed except as they helped create the mood intended. Art work on the backdrops was exceptional.

Again, the Lincoln musical was a good show. We thank the director, advisors and students for presenting it for us.

The Only Solution

According to a report from the U.S. consumer product safety commission, approximately 135,000 persons in the United States received emergency treatment for injuries associated with non-glass doors and screen doors in fiscal 1973.

Apparently a lot of vital research went into the study and report. It was discovered for instance, that the most common injuries involving non-glass doors were lacerations, followed by contusions and abrasions. Also resulting were a lesser number of fractures, crushing and amputation. The screen door injuries were similar to those for non-glass doors.

Since there are a large number of injuries caused by doors, the government should approach the problem in the same manner in which it would approach the firearms situation.

First, all doors should be registered and a permit issued to open or close them. Permits should be issued only after a three-week waiting period (perhaps less for bathroom doors) following application in quintuplicate to a medical clinic or hospital outpatient department designated as representative for that purpose by the federal government.

Particular attention should be paid to swinging doors—commonly known as tavern doors or "Saturday night specials". These should be completely outlawed and those in existence should be confiscated.

Relationship of doors and crime can not be over-emphasized. Nearly all armed robberies are conducted by persons who enter a building through a door. It is only reasonable to assume that the elimination of doors would eliminate or substantially reduce the incidence of armed robbery.

It should be pointed out that in many instances where an intruder gains entrance to a home or other building by a window or other opening, exit is commonly made through a door. The door is therefore highly contributory to the intruder type of crime.

Countless accidental injuries to young children who handle unattended doors indicate the necessity for their control by the federal government. While registration may not keep doors out of the hands of children—or vice versa—it will make it more difficult for convicted felons, drug addicts or mental incompetents to gain access to them.

There is no constitutional provision for allowing the citizenry to keep and possess doors, therefore there can be no citizen objection to their eventual total elimination from the American scene. True, some zealots will insist that they are traditional and serve a functional purpose, but these arguments should be discounted in the light of modern day situations. Statistics have shown doors to be a threat to public health and safety and their restriction and control should be implemented immediately with a view toward eventual total elimination.

It would appear to be the only solution to the untold suffering doors cause every year in the United States.

A Matter Of Habit?

"I have long been skeptical of the value of playing our National Anthem at each and every sporting event in this country, and I have also been dismayed at the oft-times lack of respect shown to the 'Star-Spangled Banner' and to the flag as it is displayed at these sporting events." So states F.G. Clasen in an editorial in the Anoka County Union.

"A friend of mine recently commented," he continues, "that a pastor in another community had made this the topic of a sermon, asking 'Does sports have a monopoly on patriotism or is this custom a part of the commercial stage setting for sporting events?'

"He has a good point," Clasen adds, "if it is true that rendition of the National Anthem and raising of the flag is proper homage to the emblem and nation, then why not open every assemblage or gathering of people with the same ceremony? Why is it mainly confined to sports?

"We've all seen crowds at games and contests, as the TV camera moves close-up to varous members of the gathering. The attitude of those listening to the rendition of the anthem ranges from boredom, to tolerance to disrespect. A singer of the anthem at a hockey game in Detroit...presented an off-beat arrangement and style of singing it and the resulting furor of boos and criticism hasn't yet subsided.

"Perhaps," Clasen states, "the incident will force a look at prevailing custom and priorities. I don't believe I would feel any less patriotic if the crowd sang 'God Bless America' or 'America' at the next football, hockey, basketball or baseball game I attend, instead of our National Anthem which has become almost a matter of habit rather than an act of respect."

We think we understand what Clasen is trying to say and can respect his opinion, but we think he and the unnamed pastor are further off base than Maury Wills in his best base-stealing season. Familiary should not breed disrespect and we don't believe that it does.

Have you heard the "Star-Spangled Banner" lately? Of course you have. Where did you hear it last? Probably at a sporting event. And the time before that? Another sporting event.

Which brings up an interesting point: When and where, except for sporting events, does the average citizen of the United States of America hear the National Anthem? Not often...anywhere.

Even when the President speaks the band plays "Hail to the Chief" instead of the "Star-Spangled Banner".

And you don't hear many pastors advocating singing of the National Anthem for the opening or closing hymn in their churches, even if one questioned the monopoly of sports on patriotism.

Does your service club or veterans organization or lodge group use the National Anthem in its regular programs or even in special ceremonies? Not on your life, they don't.

The furor of boos and criticism over the off-beat version in Detroit tells me something about Americans. They may be bored to tolerant about their National Anthem as it precedes a sporting event, but they very much resent any attempt to degrade it or put it down. We see that as a healthy indignation.

If there is disrespect in people when the National Anthem is played, there is disrespect in the same people when the anthem is not being played. The problem lies not in the playing of the anthem but in the attitude of the people.

Our country, its flag and its anthem should be familiar to all of us and respected by all of us. We should wave our flag and we should sing our anthem and if we have to do it at sporting contests alone then we shall do it at sporting events. But let us be thankful it is done somewhere rather than knocking the fact that it is done at all.

notes from the governor

People who reach the age of retirement should be able to look forward to their leisure years with some sense of security.

But for many, those years without the familiar weekly paycheck are cushioned only by Social Security checks and filled with fear of inability to make ends meet.

Some workers have the additional protection of pensions earned by longevity of service in private industry or public service.

Two things have happened to cloud the "golden years" of retirement. Rampant inflation has cut the buying power of those whose income is limited to Social Security.

In addition, workers in private industry who thought they had assured retirement income from pensions have found pension funds depleted or nonexistent when firms have sold out, closed or moved due to changing economic conditions.

A cry for national pension reform has risen across the nation. One national insurance company is conducting an advertising campaign on the slogan, "When you've worked all your life for a pension, the law should see that you get."

I am pleased to report that the 1974 Minnesota Legislature has responded by taking an important first step in implementing that slogan. Last week, legislators passed and sent to my desk for signature the Private Pension Protection Plan bill.

Briefly, the bill provides for the levying of a pension funding charge on any covered employer whose curtailment or termination of a pension plan results in forfeiture of pension credits earned by his employees with 10 years or more covered service.

This pension funding charge is then used to buy a prepaid, deferred annuity payable to the employee when he reaches retirement age.

This legislation was the subject of intensive consideration between labor, industry and legislators before it reached my desk.

It represents a compromise that is designed to meet one phase of pension reform until federal legislation (now pending in Congress) provides for full reform. Particularly needed is re-insurance protection, which probably would not be operative for nearly two years, even were Congress to enact the legislation tomorrow.

Senate Report

— by —

Senator Richard Fitzsimons
Minnesota District One

As I write this report, the second half of the sixty-eighth session of the legislature is coming to a close.

The adjournment date was over-shot by almost a week and the 120-day session total is nearly reached. This week there has been a rising tide of suggestions to better utilize the time of the legislature in the next session.

One thing does stand out, however, and that is regardless which party controls the legislature, or who is governor, rancor does develop. Some of the same angry charges that have reverberated across the Capitol halls between the House and Sente for many past sessions were heard again during these past two weeks.

House DFL leaders have been charging the Senate DFL leadership with being excessive in their spending, stubborn in recognizing House priorities and holding House-passed bills "hostage" for a better bargaining position. This situation was not supposed to happen under the new flexible session system; but from this standpoint, it is very reminiscent of sessions gone by. I will have some more comments on thoughts I have to improve this situation next week.

One of the great benefits of a two-house legislature is the opportunity to see two points of view and the compromise the differences. One of the most outsanding examples of that occurred with the passage of the energy bill this week. The compromise bill that was worked out was a much improved bill over either the House or Senate passed measures.

The bill that became law provides for a commission type approach with an energy coordinator. This law expires at the end of six years which guarantees legislative review of the necessity of such a commission at that time. I feel the strong points of the law are the "gentle persuaders" that are built into the law. These "persuaders" are an attempt on the state level to get all of us headed in the direction of either new and different patterns of energy consumption or a slowly phased reduction in an ever decreasing source of certain supplies of energy.

The crash program as advocated by many people, it appears to me, is much too destructive of our economy and would only lead to determined resistance by a large segment of the public. I think this bill is one of the finer achievments of this session of the legislature.

During the week, the Senate took decisive action in passing a highway funding and bond issue. The bill provided for a one-cent increase in the gasoline tax and, an increase of one per cent on the excise tax on new cars. This provided for a six year $150 million bond issue to be repaid from these two sources in six years. This bill would take care of the outstate highway needs including those areas outside the backbone system, which is highly important to northwest Minnesota.

Likewise, it provided funds for mass transit in both the metropolitan area and outstate Minnesota. While the imposing of these two taxes for six years is not easy to advocate, the necessity for responsible action and proper funding are so urgent I supported it. The final outcome of this proposal in the House-Senate conference committee is undecided as I write this article.

Protecting your dollar!

By
Warren Spannaus
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

One of the most common consumer frauds is called "bait and switch" selling.

Generally, "bait," which is the advertisement of merchandise at an extremely low and attractive price. This "bait" is used to lure prospective customers into a receptive mood and entice them to either go to the seller's store to view the merchandise or to invite a salesperson to their home.

The second element, the "switch", is made up of two steps. Once the buyer has taken the bait, the seller discourages the purchase of the advertised merchandise.

For example, he might tell the customer that the merchandise has "just been sold out" or that the merchandise is not well suited for the customer's needs. In some cases, he simply displays obviously defective merchandise.

In one lawsuit brought by the attorney general's office against a "bait and switch" seller, it was learned that his sales personnel were infomed that they would receive only $1 in commission for the sale of bait merchandise. This proved a strong incentive for his sales force to discourage its purchase.

Now that the buyer is convinced that he should not purchase the advertised merchandise, the salesperson quickly "switches" him to other merchandise which he claims is superior in quality, and also much more expensive. The price on this merchandise is set so that both the salesperson and his employer will make a good profit from the sale.

Instances of "bait and switch" selling have been discovered in Minnesota in the sale of sewing machines and bulk meat. The technique is also widely used to sell furniture, automobiles, home appliances and other products. Frequently, the technique is supplemented by a strong dose of high pressure salesmanship, particularly when the sale is made at the customer's home.

If you have a complaint regarding "bait and switch" advertising and selling, contact the Consumer Division, Office of the Attorney General, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Beards In Bags Required In 'U'M Food Service

by Nichole Vick
University Environmental Science Writer

To beard or not to beard—that was the question.

In response to recent employee complaints, the University of Minnesota has modified its three-year-old policy completely prohibiting beards on campus food-service workers.

Now facially hirsute food-service workers can bag their beards while on the job. The modified policy permits beards if a beard bag, discarded after a normal work period, covers the beard.

"Complete beard and hair control is fundamental to good personal hygiene. Therefore, we still feel that beards have no place in a food preparation area," said Walter Jopke, assistant professor in the school of public health and senior environmental-health specialist at the University health service.

A recent objection came from a bearded food-service worker hired by a supervisor unfamiliar with the ban-the-beard policy. When advised to shear the beard or find another job, the employee protested.

Jopke's opposition to beards stems from federally sponsored laboratory research showing that beards retain microorganisms despite washing with soap and water. Comparative tests also recovered more microorganisms from washed and unwashed beards than from washed and unwahed clean-shaven facial skin.

Theoretically, a beard exposed to disease-causing organisms could subsequently shed those disease-causing organisms, possibly enough "to produce disease upon contact with a suitable host," Jopke said.

Whether that contact is an aesthetically unappealing whisker in your food or pathogens too small to be seen, the potential effect is disease in the susceptible consumer.

The revised policy corresponds to a 1972 federal ruling charging sex discrimination if an employee is fired for violating an employer's facial and hair policies.

The new university policy requires bearded "individuals involved in the preparation, serving, dish, pot or pan washing in a food service facility" to wear beard bags as provided by the food service, Jopke said.

"A so-called hair net or net bag or multiple use cloth bag does not meet these requirements," he said. Specifying single-service beard bags ensures that the bearded employee must get an uncontaminated beard bag from his supervisor each work period before he can go on duty.

Although the state of Minnesota earlier adopted a more lenient beard policy, Charles Schneider, chief of the hotel, resort and restuarant section of the Minnesota health department, said, "The individual establishment or employer has the right to tell employees how to dress to come to work"—and that includes restrictions on beards.

Both the Minneapolis and St. Paul health departments echo Minnesota's beard policy, requiring men sporting bushy or lengthy beards and who actually prepare food to cover their beards and snoods.

Consistent with those policies, the university permits neatly trimmed mustaches without any facial covering. At the university, both male and female food-service workers must confine all hair above their uniform collars with a cap, net or scarf.

Although the University's beard policy is more stringent than State or city standards, Jopke explained, "Our basic philosophy is that we would rather err on the safe side when evaluating a public health situation."

Compromise On No-Fault Auto Insurance Plan

A compromise version of no-fault automobile insurance bills approved earlier by the Senate and House of Representatives was repassed by the Senate on a 55-6 vote.

The bill provides, among other things, that persons injured in car accidents may be paid damages up to $30,000 without a court suit. Correspondingly, it requires all drivers to carry at least $30,000 in insurance to cover personal injury and economic loss.

A 30 per cent reduction on parts of premiums is mandated by the bill, according to a report by Bill Richardson, public information officer.

Senator Davies told the senate that the compromise was not what he would have desired, but that it nonetheless "accomplishes the basic objectives of more adequately compensating the seriously injured accident victims and eliminating a high percentage of nuisance claims from the court system."

Victims would be allowed to sue the driver at fault only if medical expenses and the victim's economic losses exceed the insurance coverage or if medical costs exceed $2,000. Victims would also be allowed to sue if they suffer permanent disfigurement or disablement or if they are disabled for more than 60 days.

Car repair costs would be paid by collission insurance, as they are now, a facet that Senator Davies termed the most serious "defect" because it will require that insurance firms continue to spend money investigating accidents.

Another provision that came in for criticism was one that empowers the insurance commissioner to allow higher premiums if he discovers that the reduction damages an insurance firm's financial condition or hinders its ability to provide adequate coverage.

Senator Harold Krieger (R—Rochester), the minority leader, said the provision will permit continued premium increases.

The 30 per cent reduction was mandated for medical expenses, liability and uninsured motorist coverage.

Additional liability coverage is required of $25,000 per person, $50,000 per accident, $10,000 for property damage and for accidents involving uninsured motorists.

When Governor Wendell Anderson signs the compromise measure, Minnesota will become the 13th state to permit no-fault insurance in some form.

Cranberries And Beets — A Super Soup

Cranberries and beets combine together in a cheery colorfully red-hot and hearty soup that can be relished as a meal in itself. Beetberry Soup is a perfectly delectable blending of nourishing ingredients including whole berry cranberry sauce, shoestring beets and beef broth. It will be a great hit with the family, so be sure to make enough for a second serving later in the week. As most smart soup lovers know, a good soup is even tastier the second time around, — and sensibly budget-wise. Serve boiled potatoes and sour cream along with your soup. Hmm! Berry Good!

BEETBERRY SOUP
(Serves 6-8 — Makes 2 quarts)

- 1¾ cups Ocean Spray whole berry cranberry sauce
- 2 cans (1 pound each) shoestring beets, undrained

- 3 cups Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail
- 2 cans (10-½ oz. each) condensed beef broth
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- Salt and pepper
- Boiled potatoes, sour cream

Combine all ingredients except salt, pepper, potatoes and sour cream. Simmer until cranberries are tender, about 30 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve hot with peeled boiled potatoes and spoons of sour cream.

MCCL Accepts Challenge Of Abortion Suit

Calling the lawsuit brought against Minnesota citizens concerned for life and three of its officers a "challenge for the pro-life movement," President Majory Mecklenburg, and co-defendants Rosemarie Johnson and Darla St. Martin, asserted the validity of Minnesota's new abortion regulatory statute.

Five physicians and an unnamed pregnant woman are seeking to strike down portions of the law signed by Governor Wendell Anderson last Thursday. The governor and several other persons were also named as defendants in the suit.

MCCL "can see no reason to delay this important test except possibly because the legislature is still in session. Two of the defendants are the law's chief sponsors, Senator Stan Thorup and Representative Bill Quirin.

"The Minnesota state legislature recognized its obligation to protect unborn life as best it could under the guidelines of the U.S. supreme court's 1973 abortion decision," Mrs. Mecklenburg said. "The authors of Senate File 498 studied long and hard before they wrote the law, and they are proud of it. MCCL will do all we can to assist the authors, the governor and other defendants in proving the Minnesota has a good and constitutional law.

"It seems only right that the test of a strong abortion regulatory law should come here in Minnesota, where the right to life movement started many years ago. Although MCCL has no way of knowing how many lives have been saved in the intervening years, we do know that the protection of each human life is worth any and all effort, and we are ready to continue speaking out as the voice of the unborn child."

Mrs. Mecklenburg stated that plaintiffs' suit is a "blatant attempt to silence through intimidation the thousands of Minnesotans who wrote to their elected representatives and requested passage of a strong regulatory statute.

"MCCL will not be intimidated. Moreover, we are certain that all MCCL members and all other citizens of the state will continue to exercise their constitutional right of encouraging their elected officials to enact pro-life legislation," Mrs. Mecklenburg said.

Plaintiffs' suit is also seen by MCCL as an attempt to undermine the legislative process by preventing lawmakers from authoring controversial bills and citizens from freely supporting such bills. But Mrs. Mecklenburg expressed confidence that plaintiffs' attempt will not succeed. "Although we accept the challenge of proving the constitutionality of the new law, we strenuously object to plaintiffs' efforts to subvert the democratic processes by which the Legislature enacted the statute.

"MCCL has always accepted the challenge of protecting all human life in the past," Mrs. Mecklenburg, said, "and we will continue doing so in the future with the donation of time, talent, energy and financial support of all Minnesota citizens who share our respect and concern for human life."

The MCCL state office is located at 4803 Nicollet Avenue, Minneapolis, 55409.

Spring Resembles Winter As March Chills Region

March weather in the Thief River Falls area normally reflects the coming of spring with temperatures becoming progressively warmer toward the end of the month. March 1974 reversed that pattern. The first two weeks averaged about 20 degrees. However, the third week had a mean of less than nine degrees and the fourth week, containing the month's low reading, averaged more than two degrees below zero.

In addition, unseasonally cold temperatures caused local residents to speculate about what the rest of the spring and summer might hold in store for this area. The month's mean of 12.73 degrees was more than eight degrees colder than March's 10 year average of 20.94 degrees.

The low for the month was -29 degrees, recorded both on the twenty-third and again on the twenty-fourth. That is more than 13 degrees colder than the 10 year average low of -15.6 degrees. The last time a reading of -29 degrees was recorded in March was in 1967. In 1973 the March low was 15 degrees above zero.

The high for March 1974 was just 38 degrees on the twelfth. Only once in the past 10 years has the month's high been colder and that was in 1965 when 36 degrees was the top reading. The highest temperature recorded in March during the past 10 years was 72 degrees in 1967. The month's 10 year average high is 54.7 degrees, well above the 1974 reading.

Three times during the month the mercury failed to climb above the zero mark for the daily high reading and on the twenty-fourth the high was -9 degrees. Only once in the past 10 years has March recorded a daily high which remained below zero. That was in 1972 when a daily high of -6 degrees was recorded.

Precipitation was difficult to assess with more than 10 inches of snow recorded with an additional two inches of rain. Both rain and snow fell on several occassions, creating hazardous driving conditions and posing a threat to pedestrians. However, at the end of the month there was 14 inches of snow remaining on the ground, according to official weather records.

Smiling Tower Is Accepted In TRF

by Dennis Johnson
Times Reporter

"Great", "cool" and "it's different" were some of the comments received Thursday when this Times reporter asked about 30 area residents what they thought of the council's recent action to paint smiles on the city's new water tower. Although not everyone was enthusiastic, no one expressed disapproval. In fact, about 25 per cent of the people questioned vigorously favored the idea. Only four individuals expressed indifferent acceptance of the action.

One of the businessmen who supported the idea had believed that the city's old water tower, on the east side of the river, was to receive the adornment. He indicated that he believes the word "welcome" should be added under the smile. However, the design of the new tower apparently would not be suitable for this addition. If and when the old tower requires a new coat of paint, this could be considered, he believed.

Another individual stated that the smile couldn't hurt the city's image and any effect it might have would be beneficial. He theorized that anyone noticing the "happy face" would have to smile too.

Before beginning this survey there was some speculation that reactions to the innovative tower design might be predicted somewhat by age groups. It had been suggested that older, more conservative people, might object to the idea while younger people supported it. That did not prove to be true. In fact, some of the oldest people interviewed were among the staunchest supporters of the project.

Local businessmen were the most consistent group favoring the water tower smiles. Several expressed the belief that the happy faces would tend to produce a pleasant mood in persons visiting this city or just passing through. In either case, the city's image would benefit.

As expected, the enthusiastic support for the council's action comes from fifth grade classes at Northrop school. The effect created in the young people could only be expressed as pride and it shows whenever they hear mention of the design they proposed to the council.

HISTORICAL GIFT was presented to the Pennington county historical society Friday evening by the Sons of Norway in Thief River Falls. The Sons of Norway have donated a log cabin for the community's historical village and will also have it moved to the site from the Gatzke community, restored and furnished. Purchase of the cabin and moving is estimated to cost $850. Left to right in the photo are Charles Syverson, president of the Sons of Norway; Herman Hanson; Mrs. Inga Geving, president of the historical society; A. B. Stenberg, Harry Engen and Lawrence Aase, all members of the Sons of Norway. The local lodge accepted the project in appreciation of the services of Art Rambeck, treasurer of the Sons of Norway for 27 years, who was greatly interested in the work of the local historical society. Rambeck, a member of the city council, was killed in an airplane crash early this year.

Election Filings Open Wednesday For City Council

Filings for the special municipal election to be held May 28 will open Wednesday. Anyone interested in running for alderman of the fourth ward or alderman-at-large may file affidavits of candidacy at the city clerk's office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily through April 24. The filing fee is two dollars.

This election will be held to fill the vacancies created by the deaths of William Frolland and Arthur Rambeck. Authority to conduct the election was granted by recent legislation allowing Thief River Falls to fill such vacancies by this method. The former practice was for the remaining members of the council to appoint someone to fill the unexpired term of office. Both positions presently open will expire on December 31, 1977.

Airport Road To Be Improved In 1975 Projects

No one attended Wednesday's hearing to testify concerning the proposed improvement of County Road 17, commonly referred to as the airport road. Widening, regrading and surfacing of the road from Greenwood boulevard to State Aid Highway 3 is presently scheduled for the 1975 construction season. Under this project no work is planned on the section from First street to Greenwood boulevard.

Most of the construction involved in the improvement project will be contracted by Pennington county. However, a section of the roadway which will be rerouted to accomodate expansion of the airport will be the responsibility of the Minnesota highway department, acting for the department of aeronautics.

Closing date for 1974 federal crop insurance protection for small grains in Pennington county, is Monday, April 15, according to Amos Larson FCIC agent for the county.

For the first time farmers can receive loss payments from both federal disaster payments and federal crop insurance. Union President Issues Response

Hazel Huot, president of Local 4-348 of the International Woodworkers of America, has issued a response to the statement by Arctic enterprises management published in Wednesday's edition of the Times. The statement was included in a story on union membership tabling action on performance of sub-contract work for the company at a wage rate lower than snowmobile contract rate.

In a letter to the editor which Mrs. Huot requested be published, she stated the following:

I feel that the statement Mr. Swenson and Mr. Penn made in the April 3 issue of the Times is unfair. I'm referring to the part which states, "We hope that we can expect better cooperation from the union representatives and our employees in the upcoming negotiations".

First of all, at our special union meeting at the armory, Wayne Bjornrud, our business agent, went over the company porposal, step by step, and explained it even better than the company did at the special meeting they called for April 2 "to clarify things". Not once did Wayne try to influence the people!

After Wayne got done, I took a microphone and went to any member that had a question or to anyone that had any comments to make. All members had a chance to ask about anything they didn't understand!

We had 475 members that voted and like so many said afterwards, "Don't worry, I knew what I was voting for!!" So the people made the choice!

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Clifford Johnsrud
Star township

This is Holy Week, ending the Lenten season. The events leading up to the crucifixion will soon be forgotten as people resume their way of life on Easter Monday. Already forgotten is the day of Crucifixion, better known as Goody Friday. There was a time when Good Friday was considered a holiday. Then it lost its religious significance. As people placed earthly wealth at the top of the list, the Good Friday holiday was reduced to half a day, then three hours, and finally, it was decided that "Business will continue as usual."

Good Friday is not a day of jubilation. A hymn written in the early 1800's describes it in words that any parent can understand.

At the cross, her station keeping, stood the mournful mother weeping, Where he hung, the dying Lord; For her soul, of joy bereaved, Bowed with anguish, deeply greeved, Felt the sharp and piercing sword.

O, how sad and sore distressed Now was she, that mother blessed Of the sole begotten One. Deep the woe of her affliction, When she saw the crucifixion Of her ever glorious Son.

Who, on Christ's dear mother gazing, Pierced by anguish so amazing, Born of woman, would not weep? Who, on Christ's dear mother thinking, Such a cup of sorrow drinking, Would not share her sorrows deep?

For his people's sin chastised, She beheld her son despised, Scourged, and crowned with thorns entwined; Saw him then from judgement taken, And in death by all forsaken, Till his spirit he resigned.

How different that day was in comparison to a Good Friday, hundreds of years later, on a farm in northern Minnesota. On that beautiful spring morning, the songs of the robins and meadow larks floated through the open windows, as if they rejoiced with us over the birth of our first child, a daughter. Happy birthday, Vivian and thanks for the years of happiness!

Forget Good Friday? Regardless of its date, it is a day of special meaning in our family.

John Kolisch, considered to be the world's fastest hypnotist, will present demonstrations in hypnotism, mindreading and E.S.P. at Northland community college on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 12 noon in the college auditorium.

This is the third year that Kolisch will be appearing at Northland to entertain his audience with feats of mental wizardy, including reading serial numbers off ten dollar bills while blindfolded.

Volunteers from the audience will become a part of the audience participation acts of hypnotism performed by John Kolisch. This part of the program will have pandemonium filling the auditorium and inhibitions disappear as participants do what they have never done before.

As a community service, the Northland college student association invites area residents to join the Northland students to this hypnotic happening and the laughingest—screamingest—roaringest fun show ever at no admission charge.

Pennington Co. Savings Bonds Total $68,876

In announcing February savings bonds sales, Clifford Sommer, Minnesota volunteer savings bond chairman, termed it an exceptionally good month. Total E and H Bond sales were $12,004,712, compared with total sales of $9,419,118 for 1973.

Pennington county had a two month sale of $68,876. Other counties in this area included Beltrami with a sales of $72,300, Clearwater $29,859, Kittson with a total of $23,177, Mahnomen selling $7,809, Marshall equaling $50,267, followed by Polk county with $140,218 and Red Lake with $10,059.

Total year-to-date sales of both E and H Bonds are $20,590,583 which represents an increase of $3,736,389 over a comparable period in 1973.

Sommer stated that he expected March and April sales to hold up very well as citizens invest a part of their income tax refunds in United States Savings Bonds.

Mary Langlie Is Awarded Honor

The awards were presented in conjunction with UND's annual Governor's Day review. The Angle Flight is an honorary service auxiliary of the Air Force ROTC.

On April 7, 1959, the first operational Snark missile hit its target area after a 5,000-mile flight.

Family Of Four To Have Increase In Food Stamps

Secretary of agriculture Earl Butz announced recently that the food stamp coupon allotment for a family of four will increase on July 1 from $142 to $150, based on February food price statistics.

The food stamp act, as amended by the agriculture and consumer protection act of 1973 (Public Law 93-86), requires that coupon allotments be adjusted semiannually to reflect changes in the prices of food as published by the bureau of labor statistics.

Allotment adjustments are based on the cost of the department of agriculture's (USDA) economy food plan as it is computed from bureau of labor statistics food prices. The last adjustment was made this past January, reflecting the cost of the economy food plan for August of 1973.

USDA delayed the announcement of the July semiannual adjust until now in order to obtain the latest available data and still give cooperating state agencies enough time to implement the changes by July 1.

Cost of the economy food plan for February was $149.30 for a family of four with school children. Accordingly, USDA will raise the value of the coupon allotment from $142 to $150 for a family of four and make appropriate adjustments for other household sizes. The maximum income eligibility standard for the four-person household will increase from $473 to $500.

Maximum income eligibility standards by household size starting July 1 includes: one, $194; two, $273; three, $393; four, $500; five, $593; six, $680; seven, $767 and eight, $853.

Horticulture Program To Be Held Tomorrow

Snyder, who is presently director of the University of Minnesota landscape arboretum, has considerable background and experience in selection and use of flowers and shrubs and trees in beautifying the home yard. He will emphasize those species and varieties which are best suited to climate and soil type for this part of Minnesota.

North Central Airlines Holds Annual Meeting

North Central airlines in 1973 maintained its financial leadership in the regional airline industry with continued profitability, the highest retained earnings and strongest debt-equity position, stockholders were told at their annual meeting recently.

Hal N. Carr, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said the company which serves Thief River Falls achieved record revenues of $127,392,000 and earnings of $6,447,000 (52 cents per share). Retained earnings rose to $20,086,000, he reported, and stockholders' equity climbed to $40,611,000. North Central is the only regional carrier currently paying a cash dividend on common stock. The airline has nearly 40,000 stockholders and 12,462,752 shares of common stock issued and outstanding.

Carr predicted another excellent year for the company in 1974. "Although final figures are not yet available," he said, "we expect first quarter traffic and earnings to be the best in our history. More travelers are choosing to fly rather than drive, and the aviation fuel situation has stabilized considerably."

Stockholders voted to retain all directors on the board. They are: Hal N. Carr, Samuel H. Maslon, Jay Phillips, Morton B. Phillips, and H. P. Skoglund, Minneapolis; G.F DeCoursin, Dallas; Chan Gurney, Yankton, S.D.; Joseph E. Rapkin, Milwaukee; Bernard Sweet, St. Paul; and K.B. Willett, Stevens Point, Wis.

In reviewing 1973, Carr noted that the $127,392,000 in revenues were six per cent higher than the year before. Operating expenses rose seven per cent to $115,391,000, for an operating profit of $12,001,000. After interest and taxes, the company realized net earnings of $6,447,000. Based on these financial results, the board of directors declared a cash dividend of 10 cents per share to stockholders of record Feb. 8, 1974.

"Earnings in 1973 were entirely from operations," Carr commented, "and represent a $610,000 improvement over the previous year when $1,699,000 in extraordinary and out-of-period items boosted net earnings to $7,536,000. These two highly successful years reflect the prosperity we expect in the future. North Central is in an excellent financial position, and has operated profitably for 19 of the 20 years under present managment."

Red Lake County Redistricts As Required By-Law

Red Lake county commissioners have arrived at a plan to redistrict the county in accordance with state law. The proposal is the result of a district court petition entered by a Red Lake Falls citizen in 1971 under the law which states that if a county board fails to redistrict, any citizen may force the action in district court.

A public hearing is scheduled for April 22 at 2 p.m. in the county courthouse where voters may express their views on the proposal which splits Red Lake Falls township into two election precincts.

Under the redistricting plan, District 1 represented by Irving Beyer would consist of Louisville township, Wylie township, the west half of Red Lake Falls township and the third ward of Red Lake Falls.

Don Gagner's District 2 would consist of Lake Pleasant, Terrebonne, Gervais, River, and Browns Creek townships and the east half of Red Lake Falls township.

District 3, represented by Arnold Person, would not be changed and consists of Equality, Garnes and Lambert townships plus Oklee.

District 4 presently consists of the entire city of Red Lake Falls and is represented by Neil Prenevost. Under the proposed plan with the third ward of Red Lake Falls joining District 1, District 4 would consist of the remaining first and second wards of the city.

District 5 would include Emardville, Poplar River, Brooks and Plummer.

The present commissioner districts have 1,740 people in District 4 while only 196 people are represented in District 3. The proposed districts would include 1,196 people in District 3, the largest district, with 955 people in District 2, the smallest district.

TRF Man Gets 6 Month Sentence Suspended In GF

Henry T. Taylor, 21, of Thief River Falls received a suspended six month sentence Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to a charge for assaulting a Grand Forks police officer on February 16.

The felony charge for assault and battery reported resulted when Taylor struck Patrolman Michael Ripplinger at the jail while the officer was booking him on a traffic violation.

Earle R. Myers, assistant state's attorney, who recommended the suspended sentence, reportedthat Taylor's vehicle was stopped under suspicion of containing an open alcoholic beverage container. Taylor, who had been drinking (according to Myers), objected to being booked at the county jail when the incident occurred resulting in the assault charge.

Myers stated that he based his recommendation to suspend Taylor's sentence on the fact that Taylor had no previous record and the "degree" of the incident. The officer involved reportedly agreed with the recommendation.

No Shoe-String Operation

It now takes a capital investment of about $250,000 to start a typical full-time owner-operated farm, reports the Farm Credit Administration.

NW Commission To Hold First Annual Meeting

Ervin Strandquist, chairman of the Northwest Regional Development commission, has announced that the commission will hold its first annual meeting in Crookston April 23. The meeting will be held in the court room of the Polk county courthouse beginning at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in attending this meeting is encouraged to do so. Important items which will be discussed include annual report for 1973 and the commission's work program for it's next year of operation.

USDA Changes Disaster And Crop Insurance

Pennington county farmers can now receive payments from both federal crop insurance and federal disaster payments, according to Amos D. Larson, F.C.I.C. agent for the county.

The combined payment program was made possible under provisions of the farm act of 1974. It provides greater crop production protection than farmers have had before.

A feed grain or wheat acreage allotment is necessary for eligibility in the combined payment program, Larson said. Disaster payments are limited if full acreage is planted, however, he added. Farmers in this area are encouraged to sign up or "certify" for the disaster payments because the USDA program is free to farmers with acreage allotments.

An example of payment was given for a farmer with 200 acres of wheat with 100 acres allotment. If the farmer has a total loss, he would receive:

(1) Federal disaster payment, $1,700. His 100 acre allotment, at 25 bushels per acre eligibility yield would yield 2,500 bushels of what. He would be paid at the rate of 68 cents a bushel (one-third of target price in example county).

(2) Feder: crop insurance payment, $8,000. Loss figured on bushel wheat guarantee. He would be paid at the rate of $2 per bushel (if he chose that dollar selection).

In Pennington county, the 1974 federal crop insurance program will cover barley, flax, oats and wheat. Applications for crop insurance are available at Amos D. Larson's office at the PKM building in Warren.

Certification for disaster payments should be made at the county ASCS office after planting.

Unemployed To Get Extended Compensation

Approximately 10,000 Minnesotans who have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits will be eligible for additional extened benefits beginning April 7, commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of employment services announced recently.

Cushing explained the persons immediately eligible are those who filed a new claim for unemployment benefits on or after April 15, 1973; who have since exhausted their regular benefits; and who have been unable to find work. Claims for the extended benefits will be taken at any state employment service office beginning today, Cushing said.

Claims taken during the week of April 8 through April 12 will be dated effective April 7, he explained.

Persons now drawing unemployment compensation also will qualify if they exhaust their ordinary benefits during the period that the current unemployment emergency exists, the commissioner added.

"By the end of the fiscal year, we anticipate approximately 20,000 unemployed will collect an additional $9 million under the new federal and state laws," he said.

President Nixon signed the federal measure into law March 28. The state legislation was signed into law March 30 by Governor Wendell R. Anderson. The federal legislation expires June 20.

"This extended benefits program will provide at least 12 weeks of additional financial aid to the families of Minnesota workers who are unable to find jobs when their regular unemployment insurance benefits run out," Gov. Anderson said. "In addition to helping families in distress, the extra payments also will provide a boost to the state's economy."

Eligibility for payment begins the week in which filing is made so claims should be filed as soon as possible after April 7, Cushing said. He estimated the weekly payments will total about $500,000, paid on a 50-50 basis from state and federal funds.

Those who feel they are eligible should contact the same office with which their original claim was filed, he added. However, persons who have moved should contact the nearest state employment service office of the Minnesota department of employment services.

Weekly benefit checks under the extended benefits program will be the same amount as was received under the exhausted claim, Cushing explained. The extended benefits will continue until a claimant has found a job or received additional payments equal to 50 per cent of the total amount of his previous claim.

"When you come to claim extended benefits, you should bring your claim identification booklet and your social security card," Cushing said.

Union President Gives Response To Statement

The proposal was for about 80 people to make 1,000 grain boxes. One lady asked Mr. Swenson what other work the company had. Both he and Mr. Penn talked about other work, but said that so far the only definite thing was the proposal for the grain boxes. In their statement in the April 3 Times, the company said we could have made fiberglass motorcycle fairings for Kawasaki but now they will have the work done at the Moorhead plant. Why couldn't they tell that to the lady that asked him on Tuesday instead of putting it in the paper on Wednesday?

No, the people knew what they were voting for. With clothing, groceries, gas, etc., going up, can you blame the people for not accepting something that takes us back prior to June 15, 1971 in wage rates?

Our first meeting with the company for negotiations is set for April 17 and 18, so what's the big rush with this sub-contract work? The company said it will be a negotiable item in our contract that expires June 15, 1974, so why accept a proposal now and start negotiating on the same thing in one week?

Sincerely, Hazel Huot

Smiling Tower Well Accepted In Community

According to Peter Tri, a fifth grade instructor at Northrop, the actual idea for the smiles on the water tower was found in a recent edition of the students' "Weekly Reader". This prompted efforts to prepare a design for use on the local tower. Several suggestions resulted including an elaborate idea to paint the tower as a "head", completed with a collar around the neck. The simpler smile was selected for presentation to the council and was supported by the students who prepared posters and wrote letters promoting the idea.

One student reported that his father's first reaction to the smile proposal was skepticism but he later told his son that the more he (the father) thought about the idea, the more he liked it. Another student stated that his brother said the whole idea was "stupid". However, one of the girls in the class dismissed the criticism saying her classmate's brother thinks everything is "stupid".

Perhaps the highest tribute to the smile suggestion is rather "lefthanded". Some members of other classes have been making fun of the idea and chiding the students who supported it, apparently out of childish jealousy. However, this has served to bolster the pride and morale of Tri's class.

Regardless of the popularity of water tower smiles, the experience gained by the students proposing the idea will remain with them for a long time. Even students who did not participate in this project may gain by looking on it as proof that "good ideas" can still "find an ear".

AVTI Receives Test Car For Classroom Use

A dozen vehicles used by Chevrolet engineers as test and experimental cars will be given "extra mileage" in helping to train hundreds of Minnesota' vocational-technical students for automotive mechanical careers.

One of the cars being donated by the Chevrolet Motor Division to area vocational-technical institutes was given to the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls. It is a Chevelle coupe.

Under the Chevrolet donation agreement, the cars will not be driven on public or private roads and will be used only for shop training in auto repairs.

To make sure the cars are never operated again, schools receiving them must sign an affidavit agreeing to the no-driving stipulation. Donation tags are fastened to the cars and their identification numbers are removed by the Chevrolet motor division. All institutions receiving donated cars must be non-profit organizations.

In 1973 Chevrolet motor division donated 18 new cars damaged in transit to dealers to the Minnesota vocational-technical system.

Gene Nelson Has Top Dairy Herd During February

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association, has recorded the following herds as the top in the association of the month of February with average pounds of milk and butterfat listed respectively:

Gene Nelson, 51.3 and 2.1; Orlan Stolaas, 50.9 and 1.8; Albert Chruszch, 50.0 and 1.7; Knute Nesland, 48.6 and 1.8; Donald Erickson, 47.0 and 1.7; Darrow Lundeen, 40.8 and 1.6; Myron Erickson, 46.5 and 1.7; Dunne Krohn, 43.7 and 1.6; Mehrkens Farm, Inc., 42.6 and 1.6; Mylo Carlson, 41.4 and 1.8.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. Amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd of the month.

If too many dry cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low, even though the cow which is milking produces a lot of milk.

There were 39 herds on test in February with a total of 1,607 cows in the Pennington association.

Seven cows finished with over 600 pounds of butterfat during the testing year in a 305-day or less lactation. They were from the following herds:

Clyde Swenson, 631; Duane Krohn, 673; and 620; Donald Erickson 600; Swanson Bros. 639; and Warren and Lowell Hamrick 715 and 678.

Dear Sirs:

I want to write and tell you how much I appreciate the Thief River Falls Times. I really like the way you cover all activities which also includes youth and school activities and the recognition of our senior citizens.

Your stories or articles are nearly always accompanied by pictures which makes it all the more interesting. Often times I see pictures of people I used to know and associate with years ago when I lived there.

Now I want to tell you about some very wonderful people in Thief River Falls and how they helped me. My mother, Julia Thompson is a resident at the Oakland Park nursing home and she was 92 years old on March 14. It was not possible for me to be there at this time, so I called the home and I assume it was the supervisor I spoke to. I asked if I may send cake and ice cream for all the residents and staff on that day and she said she would be happy to help and have it on that day.

I then called Carlson's Rainbow Bakery and asked about the cake and if they had delivery service. I spoke to the lady manager. She said they didn't deliver as a rule, but in this case she would be happy to be of help and deliver the cake, plus she also volunteered to order the ice cream and have it delivered and to sweeten things up even more, she said she would pay for the ice cream and just add that to the bill for the cake, making it very easy for me. I don't know how anyone can be more wonderful than these two ladies have been to me.

I wonder if in some way you can mention the kindness of these people. They are really deserving of recognition.

Thank you very kindly.
Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Gust Thompson

NCC Computer Use Featured In Company Booklet

An article about the Northland community college program under the direction of John Kramer was recently featured in a booklet entitled "Perspective" published by the Control Data corporation of Minneapolis.

The article reported the accessibility of a computer for Northland students via terminal and telephone lines linked to CDC systems over 250 miles away at the University of Minnesota.

The article further stated that Northland students use computer capabilities at the college in many ways, from studying computer programming, mathematics or genetics to processing statistics for the Northland basketball team.

Presently Northland college has two computer terminals with student usage time running better than 200 hours per month—one of the highest usage rates of computer time in the community college system.

GTA Division To Pay Bonus For Sunflower Seed

Upper Midwest sunflower growers will receive a bonus payment of $1 million this spring from the Minnesota linseed oil company, Minneapolis, a division of Farmers Union Grain Terminal associaton.

Sunflower seed and flaxseed crushing firm announced the bonus at a series of meetings with managers of country elevators who contracted acreage with growers for the firm last year. The bonus will be $10 a ton, or about 50 cents a hundredweight, for seed purchased from cooperating elevators between Sept. 1, 1973, and April 1, 1974.

Contracted growers were promised a bonus if sales of oil and meal proved profitable. Company officials said, strong export demand made the bonus possible.

Payments will be made through the cooperating elevators late this month or early in May. A co-op dividend also will be paid to growers at the end of the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association (GTA) fiscal year in June.

Growers marketed 100,000 tons of oil-type sunflowerseed through Minnesota Linseed Oil last season, more than a third of the nation's production. The co-op is the nation's largest crusher of oil-type sunflowers, which contain a high poly-unsaturated oil used in salad and cooking oils and in margarine and shortening products.

A pioneer in the field, the firm is seeking to develop a domestic market for the relatively new crop. Last year, however, the strong export market and the company's access to GTA-related export terminals brought growers the greatest return.

Officials said most of their production has been exported since the oil-type sunflowers first appeared in the Upper Midwest in the last half of the 1960's. Overall U.S. production last year was four times the amount produced in 1970, but it was still only two per cent of the world production. Company officials said U.S. producton will have to double before a broad-based domestic consumer market can be practical.

Officials said the firm is now arranging price agreements with growers through its cooperating country elevators for 1974 production, but will not have a good indication of 1974 acreage until later this spring.

Gas Prices Show Steady Climb In Minn. Last Week

Gasoline supplies were more plentiful this past week with the arrival of April's allocations, according to the Minnesota state automobile association and the Twin City auto clubs. But the price of gasoline continues to increase at a steady pace.

In its weekly survey of 86 stations around the state, the motoring organization found 30 per cent of the stations reporting improved supplies over the week before. Only 15 per cent said their gasoline supply was worse than the week before.

Average price paid for regular gasoline this week was 53 cents per gallon, up nearly one cent from the week before. Average price paid for premium was 56.3 cents, up nearly a half cent from last week. On the average, gasoline prices have risen about one per cent per week since the beginning of the year. Standard and Mobil dealers announced price increases late this week of up to 5.6 cents per gallon.

About 10 per cent of the stations surveyed reported longer operating hours this week. More than 60 per cent are now open past 7 p.m. on weekdays, the report showed. The number of stations open on Sundays also increased this week, and now more than 30 per cent are open for sales of gasoline.

Minneapolis continues to be the hardest hit by the shortage. That city reports the fewest stations open on Sunday and the highest prices in the state. St. Paul's gasoline picture was much brighter this week with nearly 80 per cent of the stations surveyed open for gas on Sundays.

Less than three per cent of the stations are limiting sales of gas to customers, the survey found. Operators say the increase in prices has cut demand enough to make limiting unnecessary.

Thought For The Day

Taking time to think things through can be the most valuable investment of time which we can make. As a nation we think almost exclusively in terms of production—how much we get done. If we do not take time to reflect on where we are going, however, we may wind up with a lot of action but without going anywhere.

Thinking is uncomfortable sometimes, because it forces us to live for a time completely within ourselves. Sometimes we don't find ourselves to be very good company. Then we are uncomfortable. Could it be, then, that we need all the more to make peace within ourselves? Then we can make peace with one another and we can make peace with God.

Just think for a bit about what some time spent in thinking could mean to everyone—including yourself.

America—How Beautiful?

As the spring sun dissolves winter's cover of snow in preparation to bestowing a mantle of green upon Minnesota, much of man's winter misbeheavior will become readily apparent. Litter, litter everywhere will be exposed for all to see.

We agree with this appeal in the Minnesota Motorist publication;

America the beautiful!

Or is it? How beautiful is America today. . .compared to before the white man came? Or, even 100 years ago?

Today, we have billboard blight. . .air, water and land pollution. . .misuse of water and land resources due to commercial development, and a soaring problem of scarring the landscape and littering it with everything imaginable.

There once was a tremendous pride rampant thoughout this country in the natural beauty of the land. There still is. . .for some people. For others, the land is only something to misuse and litter.

Last year, the cost of debris removal from Minnesota highways rose to a new high—$742,275; this was up nearly 30 per cent from the previous year. Nearly 12,000 truckloads of paper, bottles, cans, garbage and other debris were picked up by Highway Department maintenance crews. The money spent for litter pickup could have been put to much better use—like improving our highways and bridges.

In our parks, litter has become a year-around problem now because of the snowmobile and ski touring boom. And, in addition to the litter problem, our scenic national parks are becoming a national disgrace because of a growing rash of vandalism. Picnic tables are being chopped up and used for firewood. Park signs are being shot at by "marksmen." Trees are being burned by careless smokers. And, graffiti is defacing our most revered monuments.

Not everyone is guilty of being a litterbug and not everyone is destroying our natural beauty through vandalism and misuse of land and water. Many youth groups, community organizations and service clubs have joined hands in clean-up projects throughtout Minnesota.

Let's all join in this month in a campaign to keep America. . .and Minnesota. . .clean and beautiful.

There Must Be A Way

Thousands of Marshall county residents—primarily but not entirely from the eastern part of the county—want very much a chance to vote on a building project which would affect the entire county. A new law enforcement center, proposed for Warren, is at the center of the controversy.

There hasn't been as much local politically-oriented excitement in Marshall county since its earliest days when partisal provincialism was read into every action of every community. Left to relatively restful slimber for many years, this provincialism has now awakened with renewed vigor.

Marshall county commissioners seem to have been caught in the jaws of a dilemma not entirely of their own making. In attempting to respond to a county need in an expeditious manner, the board is now being taken to task for its efforts. Only if the commissioners do not respond reasonably to the wishes of the people do they deserve any of the verbal abuse which is being directed toward them.

What would we consider to be a reasonable response?

First, a thorough and complete explanation of the events leading up to the law enforcemet center proposal and exactly what is proposed for construction—both in facilities and cost. This should be made through the news media of the county and should certainly be a part of the board meeting Tuesday. Not anticipating a major controversy, the board can be forgiven for not attempting a more complete public explanation earlier.

Second, a sympathetic hearing of the wishes and desires of the newly-formed Marshall county improvement association, so that everyone concerned is fully aware of what is wanted. Association members should be given the time to completely present their arguments and opinions so that all of the commissioners are familiar with them.

Third, a concerted effort should be made to abide by the wishes of the majority of the residents of the county. In our estimation, it would be almost impossible to accurately assess the concensus of the entire voting population without some form of referendum vote. We don't think that individual public pulse-felling by county commissioners would be an accurate enough diagnosis.

The question may be asked why the Times—as a newspaper in the county seat of another county—chooses to comment editorially on a problem restricted to Marshall county. A hurried look at our subscription list would soon answer that question, for we have a heavy readership in eastern Marshall county. It is our obligation to present their news.

We do not presume to comment at this time as to proper location for the law enforcement center or what should be contained in it. We would concur with Ervin Strandquist, chairman of the Northwest Regional commission, who said at the Newfolden public meeting that a split in county opinion should not be allowed to prevent the construction of a necessary facility for the county.

Out of fairness to all of the people of the county, however, we believe a full disclosure, attentive ear and commitment to majority opinion are no more than right.

It may be true that law does not provide for the taking of a binding referendum vote on county building construction. By the same token, we find it difficult to believe that the county board does not have the legal freedom to conduct an informational referendum on any question it chooses. If the people and the commissioners really want a vote to be taken on the question, there certainly must be a way.

Watergate And Yalta

Another look at history is provided in this editorial from the Garrison, N.D., Independent:

Ah, today we're an "enlightened society". . .the day of the demagogue is dead; no longer do we accept without question that which is doled out to us by government leaders. No, siree, there may be some shady things in politics, there may be some dirty tricks, but one can't get away with those kinds of things today.

Just look at Watergate! One of the most fumbling attempts at political espionage ever may well bring down a President of these United States. Just think of it, how some stupid political maneuvering (and some ill-advised attempts at cover-up) have almost destroyed not only a leader of a political party, but maybe even that political party itself.

Compare this, if you will, with what happened nearly 30 years ago when those great leaders, Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, "sold out" millions of Soviet citizens through their Yalta agreement with Joseph Stalin.

The story has never been fully told, it's wrapped in secrecy. But hopefully more of Roosevelt's and Churchill's crime will be read and understood with the publication of Julius Epstein's new book, "Operation Kelhaul: The Story of Forced Repatriation."

In his book, Epstein tells how Russians were forced to return home. Hundreds tried suicide; others were clubbed, gassed, drugged or shot to force them back to Russia—by Americans, British and other Western forces (in accordance with the agreement signed by Roosevelt and Churchill).

A quarter century later, the exiled Russian Nobel laureate, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, relates "the majority of them have perished in camps. . .and those who have survived are living out their lives in the extreme north" of the Soviet Union.

Solzhenitsyn writes: "In their own countries, Roosevelt and Churchill are honored as examples of statesmanlike wisdom. To us, in Russian prison discussions, their systematic shortsightedness and stupidity stood out as astonishingly obvious. . .

"What military or political sense was there," he asked, "in the surrender by them to death, at Stalin's hands, of several hundreds of thousands of armed Soviet citizens determined not to surrender."

Too bad the American press couldn't have uncovered the tragedy of the Yalta agreement nearly 30 years ago.

ALTHOUGH ONLY 45 remain in the wild, the regal whooping crane may avert extermination as a result of wildlife biologist Ray Erickson's effort. Since Erickson (above) began hatching the birds artificially from eggs taken in the wild, 17 whoopers have been born at Maryland's Patuxent wildlife center. This success story and the plight of other threatened wildlife are detailed in the April-May 1974 issue of "National Wildlife", published by the National Wildlife federation, a special issue devoted entirely to endangered species. Don Palm, head swimming coach at Southwest State College in Marshall, journeyed nearly the entire length of the state to address members of the Lincoln high school swimming team at the squad's post season banquet Thursday.

Palm, who is recognized as an expert in his field and has guided the Mustangs into a national swimming power and perennial NIC champions, admitted, however, that his trip to Thief River Falls had a two-fold purpose.

Featured in a recent Sports Illustrated article, Palm traveled to Thief River Falls to address the banquet crowd and to recruit Thief River Falls senior Doug Williams.

"I have Doug listed as one of the top sprinters in the state," said Palm who's anxious to land the 1972-73 Prowler co-captain. "Doug hasn't been involved in a concentrated AAU program, and that's the kind of fellows we want, the one's that are still hungry for success and are still willing to work toward achieving their ultimate success. About 80 per cent of our team are individuals like Doug who have not been involved in highly competitive programs."

Palm feels Williams would fit right into the Southwest program. "Doug is one of the top three sprinters in the state that I'm interested in," said Palm. "Right now I feel he would be among the top three swimmers on our team in the 50, and he's got all the potential in the world to be even better.

"This is a very important recruiting year for our program," poined out Palm. "Our program has been successful in the past and we should be strong again next year—we'll be setting our sights at the number one spot in the national rankings—but we need a good freshman group this year that will enable us to continue our success without falling apart one year."

Lincoln high school received a letter from John E. Friedmann, managing director of the St. Paul Civic Center, praising the conduct of Thief River Falls in the recently completed Minnesota state high school basketball tournament. The letter read:

"We would like you to know how pleased we were to have the students from Thief Rier Falls high school here during the state high school basketball tournament.

There was not a single incident of vandalism, misconduct or disturbance of any kind during the entire tournament here in the Civic Center.

The young people from your school should be congratulated for their conduct. It was a pleasure having the students, coaches and team members in the Civic Center."

Thief River Falls also received a special message from Murrae Freng, executive director of the Minnesota state high school league. Part of his message read:

"On behalf of the board of directors (of the MSHSL) and all of the member schools, I would like to express our appreciation for the contribution of your school, your team and coaches, band and cheerleaders to the tournament. You are to be commended for your fine representatives."

Dave Thompson, Charlie Lofton and Larry Coltom, Team Arctic professional snowmobile race drivers who were disqualified for "road running" before the final leg of the 1974 St. Paul-Winnipeg "500" while running in first, third and fourth positions, have decided not to take legal action against the St. Paul winter carnival or its race committee, according to Bill Decker, Arctic public relations and advertising manager. The three racers had previously announced intentions of sueing winter carnival officials.

Decker said that, "The drivers still cannot understand how virtually all if not all other drivers could avoid being disqualified when the Arctic drivers were penalized."

The three Arctic drivers expressed confidence that the race procedure will be revised to prevent any recurrence of the problems in future years and they did not want to take any action to harm what they consider to be one of the outstanding events of the snowmobile season.

Thief River Falls' first state tournament appearance in over a decade naturally highlighted the 1973-74 Lincoln high school basketball season, according to Prowler head coach Lee Swanson who released his team's final season statistics Thursday.

"At the beginning of the year we thought it would be a real effort to finish at .500 or better," pointed out Swanson who was pleasantly surprised at his team's district 31 and region eight championships and its final 17-8 overall season record. "At the start we thought our experience, or lack of it, would hurt us. But we gained experience as we went along - experience against strong teams in the Northwest Conference that helped us at tournament time."

Thief River Falls compiled a 12-6 regular season record as the Prowlers posted wins over Mahnomen 66-61 in overtime, Roseau 79-42, Fosston 78-66, Grafton 65-55, East Grand Forks 71-60 and 54-44, Ada 59-47, Crookston 51-49, Warren 57-38 and 57-42, Stephen 76-45 and Argyle 62-61.

Prowler regular season losses were suffered at the hands of Crookston 81-50, Breckenridge 51-38, Bemidji 67-59 and 60-47, Fergus Falls 69-58 and Moorhead 72-65.

Thief River Falls won its first district 31 tournament crown since 1969 by beating Oslo 65-44, Fisher 53-51 and Goodridge 58-50 in the championship game. A week later the Prowlers captured their first region eight title since 1960 by beating defending champion Mahnomen 62-52 and Blackduck 60-54 in the championship game to advance to the 1974 Minnesota class A state tournament in St. Paul.

The Prowler tournament dreams ended in St. Paul's Civic Center, however, as Thief River Falls lost to strong Waseca and Simley teams. Waseca stopped the Prowlers 60-53 in the state's first round and Simley posted a 70-55 consolation round triumph over Thief River Falls.

"I didn't expect it," reflected Swanson about his team's surprising state tournament appearance. "We just never thought we would get that far. It was really a thrill playing in St. Paul. It's the biggest state tournament in the United States, and it was really something just being part of it."

Swanson pointed to defense and persistence as the keys to Thief River Falls' tournament success. "Our defense during the tournaments was outstanding," he said. "We knew we would have to play good defense to win and we did. Our persistence paid off too. The kids wanted to win and they worked hard until they accomplished their goal."

Wayne Peterson, the team's towering 6-8 junior center, led the 1973-74 Prowler squad in scoring with a 15.6 average. Peterson also led the squad in rebounding with 253, an average of nearly 12 caroms per game.

Dallas Kemmer, a 6-1 junior forward, was second to Peterson in both scoring and rebounding with a 12.6 scoring average and 147 rebounds. Co-captain Duane Dicken, a 6-0 senior guard, finished third in scoring and rebounding charts with an 11.7 scoring average and 128 rebounds.

Peterson led the team's regulars with a 59 per cent shooting percentage from the field by hitting 154 of 260 attempts. Randy Dallmann, a 6-2 senior forward, led the team's accurate free throw shooters with a sparkling 85 per cent figure from the gift line. Dallmann made 52 of 61 free throw attempts during the season. Kemmer topped the team's other individual category with 77 assists, one more than Dicken.

Swanson expressed deep gratitude to the Thief River Falls basketball fans who followed the team during the season. "The fans were really great. The telegrams, calls and support the city gave us was really a great help to us during the tournaments."

Swanson also singled out the Prowler assistant coaches — Glen Peters, Vern Treat and Tom O'Brien — for special praise. "They all did a tremendous job, and they all played a big part in our success this year."

Peterson Is Named NWAC All-Conference

Northwest Athletic Conference champion Bemidji, winner of the recently completed Minnesota class AA state tournament, placed three players on the 1974 NWAC all-conference basketball team announced Thursday at the league's annual meeting.

Bemidji's three all-conference picks dominated the coaches' voting for the 12 player squad. Breckenridge, Crookston, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks each placed two players on the team and Thief River Falls landed one all-conference selection.

Bemidji players named to the post season conference honor squad included 6-7 senior center Steve Vogel, 6-3 senior forward Stan Drew and 5-11 senior guard Don Hubbell.

Thief River Falls, district 31 and region eight tournament champion, was voted just one all-conference spot Thursday after being granted three all-conference picks a year ago. The lone 1974 Prowler all-conference choice was 6-8 junior center Wayne Peterson. Thief River Falls all-conference representatives last year included now graduated seniors Jeff Rhoden, Kent Smith and Ordean Peterson.

Breckenridge all-conference selections included 6-6 junior center Terry Bohn and 5-9 senior guard Jay Vaghts. Fergus Falls picks were 6-3 senior center Randy Johnson and 5-11 junior guard Mark Toso. Crookston choices were 6-2 junior center Brent Reichert and 6-3 senior forward Pete Schnabel. East Grand Forks was represented by 6-3 forward Dan Driscoll and 6-3 senior center Steve Wald.

Bemidji's trio of Hubbell Vogel and Drew, along with Wald of East Grand Forks, were all repeaters from the first ever Northwest Conference all-conference team selected at the end of the 1972-73 season.

Bohn won the 1973-74 Northwest Conference individual scoring title with an even point average, followed in order by Vogel 19.7, Schnabel 19.4, Reichert 18.3, Driscoll 17.0 and Toso 17.

Bemidji won the 1973-74 Northwest Conference team title with a 6-1 league record, followed by Fergus Falls 4-2, Crookston 5-3, Thief River Falls 3-5, East Grand Forks 2-5 and Breckenridge 1-5. Breckenridge reversed its record and tumbled from first to last in a year's span after the Cowboys won the initial NWAC basketball crown in 1972-73.

LHS Swimmers Hold Banquet On Thurs.

Lincoln high school swim team members were honored Thursday at the team's post season banquet at the Steak Knife in Thief River Falls.

Kopari presented athletic letters to seniors Doug Williams, Brian Phelps and Neil Sjulson; juniors Wayne Ortloff, Jeff Houfek, Carter Green and Dave Borning; sophomores Mark Storhaug, Dan Heieren, Dan Cork, Jeff Carter and Scott Oen; and student managers Jody Dallmann and Joy Grant.

Special recognition awards were also presented to Williams as the team's most valuable squad member; Borning as the team's most improved swimmer; and Cork as the team's hardest worker.

Williams and Borning were also given special state meet participation certificates from the Minnesota state high school league.

Kopari announced that teammates voted Borning and Ortloff as the 1974-75 Prowler swimming co-captains.

Palm, who guided Southwest State to the 1974 NIC conference championship and was featured in a recent Sports Illustrated article, praised the Thief River Falls swimming program in his speech, saying, "I think swimming in Thief River Falls is on the move." Palm, who has brought Southwest State national recognition in his four year coaching stay at Marshall, spoke about athletic success and the price athletes have to pay for winning.

Weekly HEALTH TIP

The U.S. Dept. of Agric. says: "One of the best methods of cooking vegetables to conserve maximum food values is to cook them only until tender in just enough water to prevent scorching. Covering the pan with a tight-fitting lid prevents the escape of steam so that vegetables can be cooked quickly in minimum water. This prevents loss of water-soluble nutrients such as vitamin C, the B vitamins, and minerals." The wise and economical cook will also use the cooking water with its valuable nutrients as gravy or soup stock for the family's good health.

Strong post season tournament performances through sub district and district 31 competition enabled Goodridge to overcome a frustrating regular season and prompted rookie head coach Mike Borgman to label the 1973-74 Huskies basketball season a success.

Goodrige finished the regular season with an unempressive 9-9 record, but the Huskies played their best basketball at tournament time to finish a close second in both sub district and district play.

The Cinderella Goodridge tournament success began in the sub district tournament when the Huskies beat Climax 77-41 and Alvarado 77-56 before falling to top seeded Fisher 56-54 in the championship game. Goodridge continued its inspired tournament play by shocking East Grand Forks 52-41 in a first round district 31 tournament game and then by knocking off a favored Alvarado team for the second time 64-59. The Huskies' surprising tournament success was stopped by Thief River Falls 58-50 in the district 31 championship game.

"I thought we would have a better regular season record than 9-0, but I didn't think we would go as far as we did in the district tournament," summed up Borgman who noted that his team's tournament success compensated for the poorer than expected regular season. "The potential was there all year," said the Goodridge coach. "We just didn't work together as a team—instead we had a lot of individual performances at the beginning of the year. At tournament time we played together; we seemed to take better shots; and we played better defense."

Goodridge regular season wins were posted over Plummer 86-49 and 77-61, Climax 53-50 and 71-39, Oslo 65-54 and 71-53, Red Lake Falls 63-45 and 73-45 and Warroad 62-35. Goodridge regular season losses were suffered at the hands of Alvarado 77-68 and 63-61, Oklee 61-49 and 72-52, Fisher 75-56 and 55-46, Gonvick 67-64 and Middle River 86-67.

Senior forward Tom Bendickson led a balanced Goodridge scoring attack during the seaon with the 6-0 sharpshooter averaging 13.9 points per game. Senior center Dan Grabowska was second in the individual scoring race with a 12.9 average, followed by junior guard Howard Vigen at 11.6 and senior guard Arden Hyland with an 11.5 mark. Paul Solberg, a junior forward, rounded out the Huskies starting line-up with a 6.6 average. Solberg, though, received special recognition from Borgman during the tournaments. "Paul really sparked us in the tournaments," mentioned Borgman. "I thought Paul was our most outstanding player during the entire tournaments."

Other individual team statistical leaders included Bendickson with an impressive 83.4 shooting per cent from the free throw line on 46 of 55; Grabowska with 296 rebounds; Bendickson with a 49.8 per cent shooting figure from the floor and 130 of 261; and Hyland with a whopping 170 assists.

Borgman announced that Grabowksa was voted as the team's most valuable player as the team's recent award banquet. Hyland received a pair of special post season honors, being named as the team's best offensive player and as recipient of the team's hustle award. Solberg was named as the team's best defensive player.

Grabowska and Hyland were both named to the 1974 Polar all-conference basketball team.

Bendickson, Grabowska and Hyland served as the team's tri-captains during the season.

"It was a very enjoyable year," said Borgman who was assisted by Ken Ewertz this winter. "All of the Goodridge people were really great and were loyal supporters. I'm already looking forward to next season."

Trap Club Will Hold Banquet On Tues., April 16

Thief River Trap Club will hold its annual spring banquet Tues., April 16, at the Thief River Falls golf clubhouse.

League members who paid 1973 dues will be hosted at the event which includes a social hour from 6:30-7:30 p.m., with dinner being served at 7:30.

Trophies will be presented to the 1973 league champions following the dinner.

Interior Dep't. Studies Status Of Grizzly Bear

Status of the grizzly bear in the lower 48 states will be reviewed to determine if the animal is a threatened or endangered species, the interior department's fish and wildlife service director Lynn A. Greenwalt has announced. The public is invited to submit comments on the bear's status.

In announcing the action Greenwalt said he has invited the governors of Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, and Colorado to submit pertinent scientific data for a biological survey of the numbers and distribution of grizzly bears in their remaining habitat.

This decision comes in response to a legally binding petition from the Fund for Animals seeking a review of the bear's situation in the lower 48 states to see if it should be listed as a threatened or endangered species.

Two separate but related issues exist today concerning the grizzly bear. The first concerns the population status of the species in Yellowstone national park, an issue now under detailed review by the national academy of sciences and for which an environmental impact statement is being prepared. The national academy report is expected in early June 1974.

The second aspect is broader, concerning the status of the bear in all of the lower 48 states. This second dimension of the problem is the one addressed today by Greenwalt.

If the biological review that governors and other interested parties have been asked to contribute to indicates the grizzly or any population there of is either threatened or endangered in the lower 48 States, the next immediate step will require the publication of proposed rule making in the "Federal Register". A period of at least 60 days following publication of the proposed rule making will be provided for the public to comment, and the interior department to analyze the submissions, before a final determination is made on the grizzly bear's status.

Any person or organization having information helpful in evaluating the grizzly's status should inform the Office of Endangered Species, Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Deadline Nears In Hall Of Fame Art Competition

"That memories may never fade of flying puck and flashing blade" is a phrase used frequently in reference to the goals of the United States hockey hall of fame. Area artists have been asked to assist the hall in the attainment of that objective through participation in the institution's first annual art competition.

Reviewing the rules of the contest:

Entries must have some aspect of hockey as a theme;

Competition is juried and open to all artists, professional and amateur, in both senior (18 and above) and junior (12-17) divisions;

Entries must be original and may be in any medium excluding sculpture. No more than three entries may be submitted per artist and each must include title, medium, artist's name and address, senior or junior division;

Entries must be received between May 1 and 10, 1974 at the United States hockey hall of fame, Eveleth. They will be displayed at the hall from June 1 to September 2 and must be removed between September 16 and 30. On entries shipped to the Hall, $5 per entry will be charged for handling and return postage;

Judging will be by a public vote of summer visitors to the hall, but the final decision will be made by a three person committee between September 2 and 15;

Winners will be announced in October. A $100 purchase award will be mae for the first place winner in the senior division. A pair of skates or the option to purchase will go to the first place winner of the junior division.

Private Funds Received By DNR For State Park

Minnesota commissioner of natural resources Robert Herbst has accepted on behalf of the DNR a gift of $4,300 from an Alexandria family to construct a well at the Lake Carlos state park trail center.

The donation was received from the Vernard Trenne family as a memorial to Mr. Trenne, an ardent conservationist and a leading supporter of state park improvement and development.

Ceremonies were held at Lake Carlos on June 10 to dedicate a plaque and a new park office to the memory of Vernard Trenne.

The Trenne family has continued its interest in park improvement and wildlife conservation and on March 20 the gift of funds for the well at the trail centers was formally turned over to the DNR at a ceremony held at Lake Carlos.

The trail center is a popular spot at the park, used by horseback riders in the summer and fall and by snowmobilers and skiers during the winter months.

Lake Erie, once thought to be a "dead sea", produced an excellent hatch of walleyes in 1972 and fishing has continued to improve since then.

Marshall County Group Seeks To Change County Seat

by Marvin Landin
Times Editor

What started out as a protest over location of a law enforcement center at Warren has now developed into a full-blown attempt to relocate the seat of Marshall county government. Approximately 200 people in attendance at the Tuesday meeting of the Marshall county board of commissioners in Warren heard Robert Fincher, chairman of the Marshall county improvement association, inform the county board of the change in purpose.

Called upon by Nilo Rantanen of Middle River, chairman of the Marshall county board, Fincher opened the meeting by stating his group had been informed that a county sheriff's office must, by law, be located in the county seat town. With no legal avenue apparently available at the present time to relocate the law enforcement center, the decision was made by the association board of directors to attempt to relocate the county seat.

At the insistence of the improvement association representatives and several others in the audience, the county commissioners adopted a resolution agreeing to take no further action on the proposed law enforcement center for 20 days. The resolution was introduced by commissioner Julius Kleinwachter of Strandquist, seconded by Herbert Pagnac of Stephen (who withdrew a previous motion to table) and adopted unanimously.

In the 20-day interim agreed to by the commissioners, the improvement association will attempt to secure 3,838 or more signatures on petitions requesting a change in location of the county seat. Fincher said the 3,838 signers would represent the legally required 60 per cent of the votes cast in the last general election to force a county vote on county seat relocation.

It was also noted by Fincher that petitions presented to the county board favoring construction of the law enforcement center in Newfolden contained between 3,000 and 4,000 signatures (3,718 by actual count). Since those petitions now have little more value than to show wide-spread interest of Marshall county citizens, new petitions requesting change in location of the county seat will now have to be prepared, circulated and signed.

Neil McEwen, Thief River Falls attorney who has been retained to advise the Marshall county improvement association, assured the group in Warren Tuesday that the new petitions are worded in proper form. The petitions simply state the following:

"To the county board of the county of Marshall, Minnesota: The undersigned legal voters of this county pray that the county seat thereof be changed to Newfolden, Minnesota."

In a telephone conversation with the Times Tuesday evening, Fincher said that the executive board of the improvement association met following its SEAT OF GOVERNMENT for Marshall county is located in Warren with county offices maintained in the courthouse building pictured above. A move is now underway by the Marshall county improvement association to secure signatures petitioning the county board to move the county seat from Warren to Newfolden. Association officers maintain that a law enforcement center proposed to be attached to the rear of the courthouse is actually the start of construction of a new courthouse. The county board has proposed to erect the two-story law enforcement center, move county and district court offices, courtroom and sheriff's office into the new building which would include a jail, and move the county welfare department from the courthouse basement to the second floor of the present building. The improvement association succeeded in securing a resolution from the county board that no further action would be taken on the law enforcement center for 20 days. During that time sufficient signatures will be sought to petition the county board to move the county seat from Warren to Newfolden.

Board Approves Improvement Of Road To Oklee

Authorization was given yesterday (Tuesday) by Pennington county's commissioners to advertise for bids to widen and repave State Aid Highway 23, commonly known as the Oklee road. The board also accepted a bid of $36,868.40 for culverts to replace four bridges. The low and successful bidder was Charles Hedeen of Thief River Falls. The next lowest of the five bids received was submitted by an Oklee firm and was about $3,000 higher than the bid accepted.

The mileage rate for the sheriff's cars was increased from 14 cents per mile too 15 cents.

Raymond Johnson, county week inspector, was appointed to administer the county's shoreland management ordinance. This will be in addition to his present duties.

A salary increase of $1,500 per year was authorized for the clerk of court who had appealed her former pay scale set by the commissioners. The board's action was taken in compliance with a district court order resulting from the appeal. The clerk's new salary is $12,815 per year and is retroactive to the first of the year.

A resolution was passed supporting continuation of the Economic Opportunity act, particularly the community action concept of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

The budget of the Northwest Mental Health center at Crookston was approved with Pennington county to contribute up to $32,437 for the 1974-75 fiscal year. An additional $13,181 was approved for the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital. These figures are about the same as last year's allocation.

FRAGRANT LILY is investigated by Michelle (left) and Marci Turenne, five-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Turenne of Thief River Falls. The girls observed their fifth birthday on March 27. When born at Northwestern hospital Michelle weighed three pounds five ounces and Marci weighed 2 pounds eight ounces. They weighed only four and one-half pounds each when they came home 27 days later. Now they are 30 and 28 pounds in weight and looking forward to attending kindergarten at Mark Twain school in the fall. The lily will help decorate the Turenne home this Easter Sunday.

TRF Liquor Law Signed By Gov. Anderson Tues.

Representative Andrew Skaar informed the Times this morning (Wednesday) that Governor Wendell Anderson has signed a bill to allow Thief River Falls to issue up to six on-sale liquor licenses without requiring a public vote and without altering present municipal liquor operations. The legislation was requested by the city council.

The bill signed yesterday by the governor states, "...the city of Thief River Falls may issue not to exceed six on-sale licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquor, including four to hotels or motels and restaurants, without discontinuing operation of its municipal on-sale or off-sale operations."

The resolution requesting this legislation was passed unanimously at the February 12 council meeting with all members present. It was signed by Mayor Bob Carlson on February 14 and forewarded to the legislature for action. This law will become effective upon approval of the city council.

Richard Jensen To Assist Area Law Enforcement

Alfon Hanson, Crookston regional corrections chairman, has announced the hiring of Richard Jensen to serve as director of the area corrections center in Crookston. Appointment was effective April 1.

One of Jensen's duties will be to assist in development of local lock-up facilities in Pennington and other counties of the Northwest economic region. He was in Thief River Falls Monday and Tuesday to view and discuss the local lockup situation.

In announcing Jensen's employment, Hanson stressed the concerns of the regional corrections board to provide a wide range of alternatives to incarceration. Jensen's duties will be to assist sheriffs, police, courts and local agencies in developing a wide range of programs to most effectively serve the total needs of offenders. He will serve as the coordinator of the new corrections center which is expected to begin construction this summer.

Jensen was most recently with the state department of corrections working as a community development specialist enacting the community corrections act of 1973.

School Board Hears Curriculum Review

Priority recommendations for the 1974-75 curriculum were received from the district curriculum council when the Thief River Falls board of education met in regular session Monday evening. The board also held its initial meeting with representatives of the Minnesota Teamsters Public and Law Enforcement Employees union.

The district curriculum council, which consists of faculty members who have reviewed previous reports made to the board, listed eight major areas where curriculum revision was suggested. The council also placed four areas in the intermediate category and two in the minor classification with three others recommended for reports.

Listed as major areas were business education, communications A and B, elementary library, hard of hearing, mathemeatics, reading and social studies. Intermediate classification was given to CAPP, elementary physical education, gifted and science. Minor value was placed on horses and horsemanship and physical education in the high school. Reports were suggested in the areas of career education, educable mentally retarded and in-service programs.

In accord with the categories recommended, the council also recommended: (1) Supply and textbook monies be considered on the priority list basis; (2) Summer work be negotiated and then allocated by category; and additional buildings and personnel should also be approved by category.

Ovitt-Trochmann Vows Spoken At Faith Lutheran

Miss Lona Ovitt and Lowell Trochmann, both of Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows on February 16, at an afternoon ceremony at the Faith Lutheran Brethren church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Pearson of Argusville, N. D., and Mr. and Mrs. Norris Trochmann of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Dunine Espeseth and Rev. David Molstre officiated at the double ring ceremony, attended by approximately 150 relatives and friends. Mrs. David Molstre served as organist and Mrs. Jonathan Overland, a friend of the bride, sang, "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Flowers corresponding with those carried by the bride and her attendant, graced the chancel.

The bride was escored to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a white floor-length gown made by her friend, Mrs. Reuben Gravseth of Souris, N.D. The gown, styled in empire silhoutte, with a chapel length train, featured long full sleeves with deep cuffs, a high neckline complemented by lace appliques. A crown of lace embroidered with pearls, held her bouffant veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow mums interspersed with ribbon, netting and greens.

Serving as the bride's personal attendant was Mrs. Steve Slaamot of Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Winnie Welty of Plains, Mont., a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmatron was Mrs. Linda Myhrer of Thief River Falls, sister of the groom. Mrs. Welty was attired in a floor-length gown of yellow polyester, accented with spring green polyester trim and green and yellow lace. She carried a long-stemmed green mum. Mrs. Myhrer wore a similar gown in spring green with yellow trim and green and yellow lace. Her long-stemmed mum was yellow.

Serving as flower-girls were the bride's nieces: Rondi Helland of Argusville and Katrina Bergman of Walhalla, N.D. Their polyester jumpers in yellow and spring-green, respectively, were contrasted by blouses in spring green and yellow.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother-in-law, Larry Myhrer of Thief River Falls. Jay Ovitt, a brother of the bride, was groomsman. The ushers were Raynard Trochmann of Fergus Falls and Bob Wold of Thief River Falls, cousins of the groom. All were attired in conventional suits with yellow and green carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Pearson selected a spring green three-piece street-length ensemble. Her corsage was of yellow baby roses. A similar corsage was worn by the mother of the groom, who was attired in a navy blue and red street-length dress.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Marie Pearson of Fargo, N. D., grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Anna Trochmann of Thief River Falls, grandmother of the groom.

A reception followed with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Trochmann, uncle and aunt of the groom as host and hostess. Centering the reception table was a three-tiered wedding cake made and decorated by Kathy Helland, sister of the bride. It was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of yellow and green, was accented with a stairway from the to to the base. Mrs. Helland and Mrs. Marilyn Bergman, another sister of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Mrs. Violet Holmstrom and Mrs. Ruth Johnson, aunts of the groom. Sisters of the couple, Susan Pearson and Laurie Trochmann, presided at the punch bowl. Irene Christianson registered the guests as Sharon Gilje, Zeann Morinville and Mary Jo Christenson arranged the gifts.

Relatives and friends attending were from Plains, Mont., Hagan, Sask., Canada, Wheatland, Minot, Souris, Argusville and Fargo, N. D., Fergus Falls, Borup, Trail, Gully, Fosston, Minneapolis, Detroit Lakes and the Thief River Falls area.

Following a wedding trip to Fargo, N. D., the couple is now at home at Basswood Trailer court in Thief River Falls, where both are employed. The bride is a graduate of the Bottineau high school, Bottineau, N. D., and the Lutheran Brethren schools, Bible department, at Fergus Falls. She is employed at Northwestern hospital. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school and the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute, is employed by Dwights Hartz Market.

Rev. Aldrich Huhne, OSB, officiated at double ring ceremony. Darcy Johnson served as organist and for the processional, played "We've Only Just Begun." She also accompanied Debra Johnson as she sang, "For All We Know," Colour My World," and "Ave Maria." Both are friends of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a monk styled, floor-length gown, which she and the groom designed. It was made by the bride's sister, Mrs. Ed Pederson. The gown was fashioned of ivory crepe with high neckline, full bell sleeves and a floor-length gold braided roping tied around the waistline. Complementing the gown was a hooded headpiece of ivory lace lined with matching crepe, corresponding with the five-foot train of ivory lace which was also lined with crepe. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Pederson served her sister as personal attendant.

Bridesmaid was Nancy Holman of Mankato, a friend of the bride. Bridesmatrons were Patricia Spaeth, Susan Buche, sisters of the bride, and LuWana Duke, sister of the groom. Sharron Duke, a niece of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. Their identical gowns of brushed dark green velvet with white flowers were in monk style with detachable hoods lined in ivory crepe. Each carried a bouquet of white daisies accented with ivy.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, Kelly Spaeth of Mahnomen, a niece of the bride.

To complete the monk-look, the bride and her attendants wore crosses at the neckline. The bride, junior bridesmaid and flower girl had gold crosses while the attendants wore antique black and gold crosses.

Lee Schultz of Thief River falls, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Duane Spaeth, Richard Buche, brothers-in-law of the bride, and James Busse, brother of the bride Patrick Offerdahl, friend of the bride, and Wayne Gulseth, friend of the groom, served as ushers. All wore brown tuxedos with ruffled shirts and white carnations tipped in green. The groom's coat was ivory textured with brown velvet lapels, and his boutonniere was a sprig of stephanotis.

The mother of the groom was attired in a sleeveless floor-length gown of red, white and navy plaid. Creating a layer-look was a navy blue knit underdress with long, fitted sleeves. Her corsage was composed of white roses.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Selmer Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Amiot and Mrs. Robert Dvorak.

Following the ceremony, the father of the bride hosted a reception in the church hall for approximately 200 relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. William Busse, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, served as host and hostess. Mrs. Dewey Amiot, aunt of the groom, presided at the guest book.

Highlighting the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake decorated with yellow flowers and topped with an arched ornament with a cherub bride and groom. Tall pillars supported each tier. Aunts of the couple, Mrs. Maurice Busse and Mrs. Robert Dvorak, cut and served the cake.

At the gift table were Mrs. Mark Trautner and Mrs. James Simon. Midge Offerdahl served the punch. All are friends of the bride.

Relatives and friends attending were from Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Minneapolis, Little Falls and Detroit Lakes.

TRF Has Assets Of $18,599,422 In '73

Thief River Falls had assets totaling $18,599,422 as of December 31, 1973, according to the official accountants' report accepted at last night's (Tuesday's) city council meeting. However, that includes the value of equipment and facilities as well as such cash sources as receivable taxes and assessments. Most of that amount is covered by liabilities, has been appropriated or is invested in the city's operation and does not represent a "bank balance" or "spendable cash reserves". That figure does, however, give an indication of the size of this city's government. By local business standards, more than 18½ million dollars in assets in "big." It also reflects growth from the 1972 figure of $15,862,422.

Business conducted at last night's meeting included the first reading of an ordinance to allow on-sale beer sales until 1 a.m. on Week-days, conforming to present state law.

The council acknowledged the formation of a committee to plan a community and youth center. Members include Peter Solem, Alfreda Anderson, Mariann Stark, Renee Bedard, Jeff Liden and Julie Flynn. Milt Reierson was appointed as the council's representative on the committee.

Progression raises were approved for Patrolmen James Haugen and James Hulteen and the resignation of Larry Joppru of the water department was accepted.

Authorization was given to prepare a letter refusing to grant reduced garbage rates for senior citizens' housing. Approval was given to hire Donald Mattson to replace Joppru.

Good Friday business hours for the municipal liquor stores were set with the facilities to remain closed until 4 p.m. on that day.

Minnesota 6th In Farm Labor Numbers In U.S.

February farm employment in Minnesota totaled 146,000 and was the sixth largest farm labor force in the nation, according to the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Statistics compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service revealed that the February total was 2,000 greater than in January and was 5,000 more farm workers than Minnesota had a year ago.

Minnesota's 136,000 family farm workers are the nation's fourth largest state group in that category, representing 5.1 per cent of the U.S. total.

The gain over January was equally divided, 1,000 each, between family and hired workers. Compared to February, 1973, the entire 5,000 gain was in family farm workers.

Farm work hours this February were shorter for family operators and longer for hired hands, than during January. Operators averaged 41.1 hours, other family members 28 hours and hired workers 29.6 hours for the February survey week.

An earlier survey, taken the second week in January, revealed the average hourly wage of all hired farm workers in Minnesota was $1.70, but the average for those workers drawing cash wages only—and not provided board, room or farm commodities—was $2.75 per hour, compared to the national average of $2.50.

Calculations based on the average wage and hours worked by Minnesota's 10,000 hired farm workers indicates the February payroll averaged about $814,000 per week.

School Board Hears Priorities On Curriculum

review committee, made the report for the curriculum committee. A list of priorities from the administration will also be presented for board consideration prior to board decision on establishment of curriculum for the coming school year.

In union negotiations, business manager Robert Weisenburger presented proposals Monday evening and again at a meeting Tuesday with the board to review information presented prior to meeting again with the union representatives on May 6 and 8.

Curriculum reports were presented to the board by Richard Sauer on special education and Joe Forberg on mathematics.

Approval was given to resolutions revising John Tofte's assignment to include one two-hour block of teaching and the remaining time as director of the vocational center school; charging the vocational center for one-half of Tofte's salary and benefits; and authorizing the superintendent to advertise, interview and make recommendations for employment of a full-time assistant director for the area vocational-technical institute.

Vivian Brekke was hired as secretary to replace Holly Rychlock and replacement bus drivers hired were Norma Estabrooks, Norma overby and Larry Kruse, Tom Kays was transferred from federal funding to district employment in the central office and Cynthia Brooks was approved as coach of the girls interscholastic volleyball team for 1974-75 school year. Dianna Kurtz was approved as spring supervisor for girls activities. Lillian Ranum was approved as census taker for the 1974 school census.

The board accepted Home Lumber company as low bidder for materials in the AVTI house project and Swenson Plumbing and Heating as low bidder on plubming for the project.

Authorization was given by the board to reassignment of some students in grades three, four and five at Mark Twain school to Knox, Washington and Northrop schools. Supt. William Corliss said this will provide the necessary room for a regular Franklin school classroom, Franklin special education classroom and Mark Twain library space and affords the superintendent the opportunity to reduce the number of elementary classroom teachers. The change would leave on section of grades three, four and five at Mark Twain. Reduction of teaching staff would come by not replacing retirees.

Resignation of Lawrence J. Brown as science instructor at Lincoln high school was accepted and the board extended appreciation on behalf of students, parents, administration and board for his 18 years of teaching in the Thief River Falls system and his contribution to the profession of teaching.

The district will advertise for bids for purchase of two station wagons to be acquired from the 1974-75 budget. Bids will also be called for on bakery products, sweet rolls and milk for the 1974-75 budget year.

Tentative summer school program was approved as well as a summer lunch program for the area vocational-technical institute. Membership was renewed in the Minnesota state high school league.

appearance before the county board. Each member of the executive committee will be responsible for four or five townships to circulate petitions to workers who will seek signers on a door-to-door basis.

On April 17 at the American Legion hall in Middle River at 8:30 p.m., a general meeting will be held to collect completed petitions, assess the progress being made and organize task forces to cover areas where difficulty in obtaining signatures is being experienced. Anyone interested may attend. Goal of the association is to have well over 4,000 signatures on petitions about a week before April 29—the end of the 20-day period granted by the county board.

Fincher said that 500 petitions are being prepared and may be picked up at the Newfolden Hardware Hank store today. He also noted that 18-year-old persons who have been residents of Minnesota for 20 days or more may be legal signers of petitions since they are legal voters.

Despite questions regarding the proposed law enforcement center and previous county board action, commissioners evidenced a reluctance to hold open discussion before the large crowd or offer any rationalization for their prior actions.

It was stated that the architect for the law enforcement center had not been paid but had submitted a claim for payment to the commissioners at their Tuesday meeting. The county is obligated to the architect for approximately $50,000 whether the law enforcement center proposed is built or not, according to opinions expressed by county officers at the meeting.

Question was again raised whether the proposed structure was in fact a courthouse rather than a jail facility. "What do you call a building that has a courtroom like this in it?" Fincher asked, indicating the county courtroom in which the meeting was being held. "A law enforcement center," commissioner Dale Zutz replied.

Persons in attendance expressed concern over lack of public information prior to the board's decision to construct the facility proposed. The commissioners replied that proceedings of the board had been published in the legal notices of the Warren Sheaf. When several persons commented that "everybody doesn't get the Sheaf", commissioner Nilo Rantanen stated that the board proceedings are also published in the Middle River Record but "they are a week late".

In discussion which at times became heated, representatives of the improvement association berated the board for seeming unwillingness to allow what was termed "our democratic right to vote".

"All we're asking for is the chance to vote," Fincher told the commissioners. "We have been told that the population is in the southwest part of the county. We don't think it is. If an election favors Warren, we will abide by it, but we believe the people should decide."

Supt. Gene Busch of Newfolden asked if the meeting was part of the regular county board meeting. Assured that it was, he said he believed it would be in order for the board to adopt a resolution agreeing to take no further action on the law enforcement center for a 20-day period. "And I'm looking for the commissioner from my district to make that resolution," he added. The resolution was then introduced and adopted.

Representing the improvement association at the meeting were its board of directors which included Fincher, Viking; Harry Engen and Earl Hanson, Holt; Orlin Ostby and Paul Saurdiff, Grygla; David Koehnstedt and Kenneth Nelson, Strathcona; Howard Lunsetter, Gatzke; Lowell Lindemoen and Percy Stokke, Newfolden; and Donald Blazejewski, Strandquist.

In his telephone conversation with the Times Tuesday evening, Fincher called attention to provisions of the law whereby—if sufficient names are presented on petitions—the county board must order a special election not less than 20 days or more than 30 days after the determination that a special election shall be held. The special election decision would not be at the discretion of the board; it would be required of the board.

Citing Newfolden as a centrally-located community in the county, Fincher stated that the village council of Newfolden had offered to provide the site for a courthouse, if one is to be located there, at no cost to the county.

Falling Prices Threaten First Farm Prosperity

"Falling farm prices are threatening the first real prosperity the farmers and the rural community have experienced in the past 25 years," agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald declared recently.

He said the value of January inventories of Minnesota farmer-held stocks of wheat, soybeans, oats, and rye dropped by more than $26-million in the 28-day period ended March 15. In the same period livestock and poultry rice cuts slashed an estimated additional $8-million from Minnesota farm income potential.

"These significant losses are dwarfed by the sharp falling of farm prices that has taken place in the past six months, since 1973 peaks were sent on many farm commodities in mid-September.

"In fact the over-all average of Minnesota farm prices has dropped by 14.1 per cent in the past six months. That is more than five times the 2.7 per cent price average drop between mid-Febrary and mid-March," Commissioner Wefald stated.

The economic injustice of the present market situation is well described, he said, by the comment made by Ed France Jr., a rural Pine City farmer: "I haves't heard of anybody else's dropping. All I've seen and heard is the prices going up on virtually everything else—including all the inputs we need for our operation."

Sharp recent cuts in grain prices, combined with continuing heavy losses in the livestock and poultry, should be matters of serious concern for every Minnesotan, he insists.

"Have we forgotten so soon the tremendous benefits of the extra billion dollars that Minnesota farmers received and spent back into our economy during the past year...the profitable experience of the business community...the thousands of new jobs generated by the new and deserved earned weath of the state's biggest industry?

"For example, while prices on many Minnesota farm commodities top earlier price records set is 1947, 1948, and 1951, the real income and purchasing power is actually less than it was 23 to 27 years ago. All of us know what continuing inflation has done to the value of the dollar, and to production costs," he added.

As Don Wiese of rural Comfrey put it: "if corn falls another 20 to 25 cents, Minnesota corn farmers will be getting less than what they got in 1947 for a bushel of corn, and that would be a disaster."

Commissioner Wefald said that unless the decline in farm prices is halted the ability of the agriculture industry to produce adequate quantities of food and fiber to meet consumer requirements may be seriously impaired.

"Farmers are looking at generally doubled production costs for the crop growing season now only a few weeks away. Input materials are sharply higher priced. Fuel and fertilizer prices are already more than double because of scarcities. Increased production demands also have skyrocketed seed, bailing wire, twine, tractor and implement part prices. Some credit resources have tightened, and interest rates are still at record levels.

"There is no way the farmer can meet these increased production costs and satisfy federal crop production goals set in the public interest, when his prices and income drop as severely as these have during the past two months," Commissioner Wefald warned.

Mid-March Minnesota farm prices compared to mid-February were down 42 cents per bushel on wheat, 10 cents on soybeans, 8 cents on oats and a penny on rye. Soybeans also were 21 cents a bushel lower than a year ago. Price averages on hogs, cattle, calves and lambs were $1 to $4 lower per 100 pounds this March 15 than in 1972.

Cuts were far more drastic when compared to highs set on farm prices during the past year. In percentage price cuts, chicken heads the list, down over 72 per cent, soybeans 42.5 per cent, wheat 8 per cent, rye off over 4 per cent, hogs down 39 per cent, turkey 40 per cent, wool 41 per cent, eggs 27 per cent, sheep 25 per cent, beef cattle 21 per cent, calves 15 per cent, lambs 14 per cent, oats down 6 per cent, and even the value of milk cows dropped nearly 7 per cent.

More than 20 employees have retired under the Hartz retirement pension plan, but Mrs. Anderson is the first female employee to do so. She was honored at a luncheon Friday noon at Lon's cafe, presented with flowers from Hartz and roses from the office girls at the company.

UMC Among 10 Schools To Have Ag Scholarships

University of Minnesota technical college, Crookston (UMC), is one of 10 colleges and universities participating in a unique scholarship program designed to encourage minority and female students to enter the field of agriculture.

UMC and nine other schools have each been awarded $1,000 scholarships by the program's initiator, the agricultural division of CIBA-GEIGY corporation. Schools participating in the program were chosen by the company on the basis of enrollment of minority and female students, quality of the school's agricultural curriculum and with consideration given to the school's geographic location.

The program is also unusual in that the only stipulations CIBA-GEIGY has placed on the scholarships is that the recipients be minority or female students in a school or college of agriculture and that awarding of the money be based on need, scholastic attainment and interest in agriculture.

In announcing the scholarship program, A.J. Adolfi, director of communications, agricultural division, noted, "By establishing these flexible criteria, we have allowed administrators to have at their disposal funds to help students who might not otherwise receive assistance. At the same time we have not tied their hands by adding a lot of strings and clauses."

The division of agriculture is UMC's largest division, and offers 20 majors in agriculture. Initial plans are to award two $500 scholarships to students meeting the criteria set forth by CIBA-GEIGY.

Annual Energy Report Sought By H. Humphrey

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey recently introduced legislation requiring the President to submit an annual energy report to the Congress and creating within the Congress a joint committee on energy.

Humphrey said that an annual report by the President will be "a strong incentive to the administration to establish a comprehensive and tightly coordinated policy on the development, use and control of energy.

And it "would ensure that the executive branch would assemble into one report the many and diverse elements of the energy problem at least once a year."

In calling for a joint committee on energy, Humphrey asserted that "congress must have an effective mechanism to assume the leadership in developing national policies to solve the energy emergency of today and the energy demands of tomorrow.

"Last year 32 of the 46 committees of the Congress held hearings on energy. This is an unwieldy and intolerable situation. There surely is a more efficient way for Congress to be informed on energy problems."

Humphrey's legislation provides for the joint committee to serve as a policy body, rather than a legislative committee, where the broad questions of the energy problem could be heard and discussed and where recommendations would be forthcoming.

The committee would assemble a profesional, nonpartisan staff, with in-depth knowledge of the energy industry and the capability to investigate and analyze the problems in employment policy, foreign policy and tax structure associated with a scarcity of energy supplies.

It would investigate and study the development, use and control of all forms of energy, except nuclear energy which is under the jurisdiction of the joint atomic energy committee.

Humphrey also wants the committee equipped to inquire into the worldwide aspects of the energy situation as well as domestic needs and to have a ability to look ahead into energy policy questions likely to be pressing the country 10 or 20 years from now.

"The current energy shortage caught this country pitifully unprepared to deal with it, either in governmental or the private sector," he said. "There is no question, but that this nation is going to have to deal with the problem for the foreseeable future.

"A coherent government policy must be developed and implemented where there has been none."

Minnesotans To Pay More Social Security Taxes

Cost of social security will be up, this year, for about 350,000 Minnesotans with income from salaries, wages, or self-employment, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

Under an amendment to the federal law effective January 3, the social security witholding tax of 5.85 per cent is being levied against the first $13,200 of salaries and wages. Previously the levy was against the first $10,800.

"The maximum tax collectible this year from the earnings of any worker is $772.20, up from last year's maximum of $631.80," Charles P. Stone, the association's executive director, said. "Since employers must match, dollar for dollar, the social security taxes paid by their employees, they, too, are liable for the increase of up to $140.40 per person.

"Those workers whose earned income exceeds $10,800 annually will pay more social security tax. Only those whose income is $13,200 or more annually will pay the new $772.20 maximum.

"There will be no increase in the amount of social security tax withheld from workers who earn less than $10,800 annually.

"Some self-employed persons will get a slight break under the new tax provisions. Those with income of $10,800 or less will have a social security tax liability computed at 7.9 per cent instead of the previous 8 per cent. But the top limit of taxability now is $13,200. In effect this puts the social security tax maximum for the self-employed at $1,042.80, up $178.80 from last year.

"Records of the Minnesota department of revenue indicate that about 350,000 state income taxpayers are in the $10,800-and-up income category which would make them liable for the increased federal social security tax."

Susan Malde To Study Norwegian At Bergen 'U'

Susan Malde, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roy K. Malde of Thief River Falls and senior sociology major at Texas Lutheran college in Sequin, Tex., has been awarded a Fulbright-Hays scholarship for further education in Norway.

The fellowship will allow Miss Malde to begin work on a master's degree at the University of Bergen. She will leave in June to attend international summer school in Oslo. At the university she will study Norwegian, research the communal movement and experience the culture and recreation of Norway.

Miss Malde, whose father is now associate pastor at Trinity Lutheran church here, has studied in Norway before. "Having had a taste of the country makes me more eager to return," she said.

After the year overseas she plans to return to the U.S. to complete her master's degree in sociology.

Local Dealership Participates In Energy Check

A consumer program developed to help drivers check cars for maximum engine efficiency and gasoline economy was announced today by Bob Dondelinger, owner of Northern Motors, Inc., in Thief River Falls.

It is part of a national campaign with the potential of saving U.S. car owners "literally millions of gallons of gas" this year, Dondelinger said. The program, titled "Energy Check USA," is being sponsored by General Motors parts division and involves mailing to over 12 million GM owners "checks" redeemable as discounts on automotive tune-ups or check-ups.

"If all car owners would check their cars for economy and keep them properly tuned, they'd not only save a lot of gas for themselves but millions of gallons would be saved for all of us," Dondelinger added.

Minn. Second Highest State In Milk Volume

Despite continuing herd cutbacks and another monthly all-time low in Minnesota's dairy cow inventory, the state's February milk production was 815 million pounds, up three million pounds from a year ago and the second highest volume among all states, according to the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Commissioner Jon Wefald said the increased production, reflecting a sharp gain in efficiency, along with a slowing of herd reduction, are good signs for the state's important dairy industry and its consumers.

"Increased production is a direct response by farmers to the somewhat improved prices that have been achieved only within the last year for the dairyman after too many years of actual depression. In mid-February a year ago Minnesota dairy farmers were receiving only about 48 cents a gallon for milk. This February 14 Minnesota dairymen were getting about 71 cents a gallon," Commissioner Wefald stated.

According to the latest state-federal crop and livestock reporting service estimates, Minnesota's dairy cow population in February was 896,000. That was 27,000 less than the same month last year, but only 2,000 fewer milk cows than this January.

During February Minnesota's milk cows averaged an output of 910 pounds, or 30 higher than for the same month last year.

Nationally during February average milk production per cow was 776 pounds, the same as a year earlier. U.S. production for the month was three per cent less than February, 1973. Minnesota's milk volume represented 9.4 per cent of the national supply for this February.

Only Florida and California, which have favorable climate advantage for winter milk production, topped Minnesota in the amount of increased output this February compared to a year ago.

GOP Neighbor To Neighbor Drive Chairmen Named

State Senator Robert J. Brown of Stillwater, Minnesota Republican chairman and Mrs. Ward Ring of Richfield, state Republican chairwoman, recently announced appointment of Senator Mel Frederick of West Concord and Mrs. Richard Romer of New Brighton as co-chairmen of the 1974 Minnesota Republican neighbor to neighbor drive.

The neighbor to neighbor (NTN) fund drive has been cited as an example by several political scientists as one of the best grass-roots political fund drives conducted by either political party in any of the 50 states. Over the past four years, an average of more than 50,000 people in Minnesota have contributed to the Republican party through the NTN program. Average contribution over the past four years has ranged from $6 to $8.

"Our goal this year is to reach and talk to 80,000 people across the state," Frederick said. "We hope to involve several thousand republicans as solicitors for the drive and we want to have personal contact with as many people as possible."

Mrs. Romer reminded Minnesotans that with a federal tax credit and a state tax deduction for political contributions, it is possible for a couple who file a joint return to contribute up to $20 together, and receive the $20 back as a tax credit for that year, half on the federal return and half on the state return.

Serious Crime Rises Again In Calendar 1973

Serious crime in the United States rose again in 1973 after registering its first decrease in 17 years in 1972, Attorney General William B. Saxbe has reported.

Preliminary statistics contained in the uniform crime reports released today by the FBI showed that serious crime rose five per cent last year compared with a four per cent decline in 1972.

The report is based on statistics supplied voluntarily by state, county and local law enforcement agencies, tabulated by the FBI and released by director Clarence M. Kelley.

"The renewed upsurge in crime is very disturbing to me because the statistics give no clue as to what is causing it," Saxbe said.

"But every American has a stake in the fight to lower the crime rate. The safety of our families, our businesses and our neighborhoods demands it.

"To stem this new increase, it is imperative that all of us cooperate and support all law enforcement agencies to an even greater degree than in the past."

The crime spiral of the 1960's peaked in 1968 when serious crime rose 14 per cent above the previous year. In 1969 the increase was nine per cent. It rose to 10 per cent in 1970, fell to six per cent in 1971, and then registered an actual decrease of four per cent in 1972.

The rise in serious crime across the country also was reflected in fewer major cities reporting actual decreases, down from 114 in 1972 to 59 last year. Crime in suburban and rural areas increased 10 per cent in 1973.

Washington, D.C., was one of the cities reporting a decrease in serious crime last year, down three per cent from 1972.

Violent crime increased four per cent in 1973, compared with a two per cent increase the year before. Forcible rape was up 10 per cent last year and murder and aggravated assault each rose six per cent.

Robbery, however, which makes up the largest number of crimes in the violent category, increased only one per cent in 1973.

Property crime increased five per cent last year, compared with a five per cent drop in 1972. Burgalry rose seven per cent, while larceny-theft and auto theft were each up four per cent.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

There is a great injustice going on in the Lincoln high school. Mrs. Goulet is accused of doing a great wrong because of disciplining a few Prowlins at the state basketball tournaments. These girls were reprimanded because they were out past the 12:00 curfew that was set up. She has decided to give up her Prowlins, the dance team she has devoted many years to.

We, as former Prowlins, learned much more than just dance routines. We have learned to respect a woman that gave up many of her hours a week to teach twenty-five girls respect, discipline, organization and responsibility. On our tours we never thought about the weight she had on her shoulders. We, as representatives of Thief River Falls, had a set of rules to follow. She was there to enforce them.

Mrs. Goulet worried and cared about us not only as a supervisor but as a friend. We belive she should continue her leadership of the Prowlins as in the past. She should not be harassed by the citizens of this town who do not know the true situation. We take this opportunity to thank her for all that she has done for the Prowlins.

Sincerely,
Teri Peterson

'U' Regents To Study Effect Of Legislative Act

Issue of the University of Minnesota's constitutional autonomy from political control was raised by the board of regents Thursday in a discussion of the impact of the 1974 legislature.

Members of the board questioned the wisdom of implementing an act which would require the university to report to the legislature the sex and race of applicants to the university's professional schools. "We do not ask applicants their race or sex," said Stanley B. Kegler, vice president for administration.

The 1974 law repeals the portion of the Minnesota civil rights act which precluded the university and other agencies from asking for the sex and race of applicants and requiring pictures of prospective students.

The legislature asked for a report by Nov. 15, 1974, and "every two years thereafter" from every professional school in the state on the "total number of applicants broken down into men, women and racial minorities for each class year" and the percentage of women and minorities for each class year" and the percentage of women and minorities admitted from the applicants.

Regents chairman Elmer L. Andersen said that the university may be better off not asking for such information, particularly in light of the "reverse discrimination" case before the U.S. supreme court in which a white man charges he was discriminated against by the University of Washington law school.

The board agreed that the proposal should not be implemented until the university administration has studied its ramifications.

"Anything that's in a legislative bill that requires a change in policy should come before the regents for consideration or action rather than being done by administrators because it's in some legislative action," Andersen said.

A portion of the act requiring a report on the percentages of women and racial minorities enrolled in professional schools and the progress in placing these graduates can be complied with, administrators said.

The issue of university autonomy was also raised during discussion of an act requiring the governor to name a three-member board to approve architects on all state building projects, including those at the university.

James F. Brinkerhoff, vice president for finance, planning and operations, said that the regents had two courses of action if they were to challenge the act.

He said they could seek the opinion of the attorney general on whether it affected the university's autonomy or they could challenge in court the withholding of any funds which might result from the university's failure to comply with the act.

Brinkerhoff and Stanley J. Wenberg, vice president for state and federal relations, said they are discussing with legislators a policy requiring all matters before the legislature to go through subject-matter committees before going to finance committees.

Wenberg said the policy would double the university's legislative workload.

And Brinkerhoff raised the question of whether the new method may be "pre-emptive of the constitutional responsibility of the regents" by having legislative committees make policy decisions before they appropriate University funds.

Wenberg also reported that the legislature appropriated $400,000 for working drawings for a proposed $10 million law school building.

Another $150,000 was given for a development study of the Minneapolis campus, $30,000 in planning funds for the St. Paul campus library, and $750,000 for construction of a kidney dialysis unit at university hospitals, Wenberg said.

Wenberg said he felt that the legislature, through informal discussions, had reaffirmed support for Unit B-C, the new building proposed for the health sciences complex.

The building was at first rejected by the metropolitan health council because of criticism of the university's relationship to the Twin Cities community. The council agreed to the need for the building after the university took some steps to reduce the size of the proposed outpatient clinic and to increase its support for community health clinics.

Stalled Vehicles Are Hazards On State Roadways

A stopped vehicle on a highway poses one of the more hazardous situations a motorist has to face, commissioner of public safety W.R. Hoaglund warned recently.

"One in eight of the pedestrian traffic victims is in fact a motorist or passenger out of his stalled vehicle. A review of these fatal accidents reveals that they can happen on all types of roadways from city streets and town roads to interstate highways. They happen at all hours of the day or night, under widely varying weather and lighting conditions. Causes of the stops range from flat tires to changes of driver.

"Several of the fatal crashes involved towing arrangements for disabled vehicles. A review of the accidents that happened last year to drivers out of their vehicles suggests these precaustions:

(1) Avoid standing or working on the traffic side of your vehicle, even when it is well off the traveled roadway. If you do have to, as in changing a tire, watch out for approaching traffic. Two tire-changers were killed last year. If possible, set out flags or flares to warn approaching traffic. Always activate your fourway flashers.

(2) Where one vehicle is stopped behind another, avoid standing between them. Several fatal accidents occurred when one of the vehicles was struck and pushed into the vehicle ahead.

(3) Be on the alert for oncoming traffic and unexpected occurrences. Where one accident has immobilized vehicles, it is always possible that another can happen at the same spot. That is what occurred in one case last year.

(4) Finally, before going on a main highway, be sure your vehicle is roadworthy."

Hoaglund said most accidents of this type occur on state trunk highways and freeways, but a number also occur on city streets and rural township and county roads.

St. Louis Park Teachers, Board Reach Agreement

In a compromise settlement, 31 St. Louis Park public school teachers proposed for termination in the state's biggest such action have been offered contracts for the 1974-75 school year, in exchange for resignations at the end of that year.

In the action, 79 elementary and secondary teachers in the district's bargaining unit were faced with loss of jobs. One tenured teacher resigned and 38 are probationary teachers, who can be terminated without legal recourse by the teachers.

Of the 40-remaining teachers, 31 asked for private hearings before the school board and asked MEA attorneys to represent them.

After five days and nights of hearings, attorneys for the board and the teachers reached a compromise and issued the following statement:

"At a meeting of the school board of Independent School District Number 283, St. Louis Park, on Thursday, March 28, 1974, a resolution was passed which was the culmination of a compromise reached between the school board and the representatives of the 31 teachers proposed for termination at the end of the 1973-74 school year.

"The resolution included the board's withdrawal of the proposed terminations and the board's acceptance of the letter of resignation from each of the teachers effective the end of the 1974-75 school year.

"Both parties view the compromise as a viable solution to a very difficult and compliated problem."

Business Agent Adds Statement On Arctic Work

(Editor's Note: Due to public discussion of the situation regarding proposed sub-contract work at Arctic Enterprises, Inc., IWA local 4-348 business agent Wayne Bjornrud has requested the opportunity to explain his and the local's position in the matter. Bjornrud's prepared statement follows:)

Approximately two months ago, Arctic management contacted me and asked if we, as representatives of the I.W.A., would be willing to meet with them and discuss sub-contract work for the plants in Thief River Falls and Clearbrook. Our response to this inquiry was, "Yes, we are willing to meet and discuss this mater."

"As a result of this, Bill Gooder, regional representative from Duluth, who covers all of northern Minnesota and part of North Dakota; Hazel Huot, local union president; Harvey Lund, chief steward in the TRF plant; and myself did meet with the company on several different occasions.

On at least two different occasions, after Bill Gooder had been able to change his busy schedule in order to be in TRF, Arctic management either postponed or delayed the meetings.

On March 7, a proposal was presented to us by Mr. John Penn, Arctic president. The proposal, for union employees only, was for an 80 cent per hour cut in wages for work on items other than snowmobiles. The work immediately available would be for 80 people for approximately seven weeks to build grain boxes, with the possibilities of other work.

We then called a special membership meeting for March 14 at the armory in TRF. At this meeting, I took a neutral position and explained the company proposal to the membership exactly as the company had presented it to us on March 7. Immediately following the meeting, in a secret ballot vote, 80 per cent of the membership turned down the proposal.

Arctic scheduled a meeting with all the union employees for April 2 at 2:45 p.m. to explain and to answer qustions regarding the proposal because, evidently, there was some feeling that the proposal had not been adequately explained to the people on March 14.

Arctic officials, at this meeting on April 2, said the work presently available would be for 100 people for 10 weeks—the work at hand is to build grain boxes—that there is another job that the company had obtained just last week and there were possibilities of more work.

When questioned from the floor, Arctic managment would not say what the recently obtained job was, nor what the possibilities were. However, the very next morning, Arctic managment, in a press release, stated that one job they had obtained for sub-contract work was to make fiberglass motorcycle fairings for Kawasaki corporation.

At the 4 p.m. union meeting on April 2, the membership voted almost unanimously to table further action on the company proposal until contract negotiations, as the contract expires June 15, 1974.

The statement by Arctic officials that they hope they can expect better cooperation from the union representatives in the future is a very misleading statement. We have cooperated in every way possible in the past and especially during the last two months. However, if by cooperation they mean that we, as representatives, are supposed to force the membership to go backwards over three years in wages, then I can say there will NOT be any cooperation in the future.

Robert Herbst Will Speak At '74 Sheep Days

Minnesota commissioner of natural resources, Robert L. Herbst will be the featured speaker at the awards banquet of the 1974 Greenbush Sheep Days on June 6, according to Carl Spong, Fargo president of the Minnesota sheep producers association.

Commissioner Herbst is expected to comment on the federal and state wolf management programs. This is a subject of great interest to the sheep producers of northern Minnesota, because proper management of the wolf is necessary for them to stay in business, according to Herbert Pfeifer Jr., Roseau county extension agent.

A native of Minneapolis, commissioner Herbst has worked with the U.S. forest service and the Minnesota conservation department except for his three-year executive position with Keep Minnesota Green Incorporated, and a two-year appointment as a national executive director of the Izaak Walton league of America.

Other speakers scheduled for the event on June 5 and 6 at Greenbush include Kenneth Ford, manager of the feed department, North Dakota mill and elevator, Grand Forks; Merle Light, professor of animal science, NDSU, Fargo; and Mary Jenkins, extension home economist, Hallock.

Judges for the breeders flocks, market lambs and wool show are as follows: Robert Jacobs, extension animal husbandman, University of Minnesota; Merle Light; William Marthaler and Howard Alberts, both of Central Livestock association, Inc. St. Paul; and Kenneth Wood, representative of Minnesota wool producers association.

A free noon meal will be served by the Greenbush Civic and Commerce organization which co-sponsors the sheep days event along with the Minnesota sheep producers association.

Other activities will include 4-H, PFA and adult judging contests; market lamb and breeder flock exhibits; wool exhibits; Minnesota 4-H junior shearing contest and senior shearing contest; and the annual meeting of the Minnesota sheep producers association. A short shearing school and preliminary elimination contest of the Minnesota state junior shearing contest are scheduled for June 5.

St. Bernard's To Have Full Week Of Activities

Order of service for Holy Week at St. Bernard's Catholic church this year follows the form of worship in use for centuries in the church, according to Rev. James Bernauer, pastor. Holy Week began Sunday with a procession of the faithful carrying palms and singing in praise of Christ as King, Rev. Bernauer said, reenacting Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem. The story of his suffering and death was read from Luke's account in four-part narration.

Services commemorating the Lord's Last Supper will be held on Thursday at 5 p.m. with the principal mass at 8 p.m. Sacrament of reconciliation will be available one-half hour before each mass and also 11 a.m. to 12 noon. "From 9:30 to midnight the parishioners are invited to honor Christ's abiding presence among us in the sacrament of the Holy Eucharist, by holding a night vigil," he added.

Commemoration of the Lord's suffering and death will be held in an ecumenical service in Trinity Lutheran church at 1 p.m. At St. Bernard's church, to accommodate parishioners from the city and visitors from Grygla, Goodridge, Viking, Gatzke and St. Hilaire, there will be two services at 2:30 and 7 p.m. Both will be communion services with reading of John's Gospel, solemn intercession for the world and unveiling of the cross.

This year's Easter vigil is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Saturday. A large Easter candle, symbol of Christ the Light of the world, is lighted. Old testament prophecies about the universal need for salvation and the new life of grace form the introduction to the blessing of water for baptism and for the congregation's renewal of it's baptismal vows. This year adults will be confirmed at this service. This vigil is concluded with an anticipated celebration of the resurrection mass and communion which fulfills Easter Sunday worship.

The Easter morning festive masses will be at: 7, 8:30, 10 and 11:30 a.m.

Headlight Use Is Affected In New Amendment

Greater use of headlights by motor vehicles is required under the terms of amendments to the Minnesota motor vehicle and traffic laws passed at the recent session of the state legislature.

Under the amended statute, headlights are required from sunset to sunrise, instead of from a half-hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise as was the previous rule. Lights are also required whenever fog, smoke or other conditions exist that make it impossible to clearly discern persons and vehicles on the highway at a distance of 500 feet.

Miriam Karlins To Chair Mental Health Week

Mrs. Miriam Karlins of Minneapolis has been named honorary chairman for May mental health month by the Mental Health association of Minnesota. In this capacity, she will try to create a public awareness of current trends in the mental health field and to publicize the many activities of state and local mental health associations.

Mrs. Karlins has worked to improve the lives of the mentally disabled for over 25 years. She began her career working in both state hospitals and a private psychiatric facility. In 1952, she was named volunteer services coordinator for the state department of public welfare, the first such position ever funded by a state department in the country. In this role, Mrs. Karlins developed a volunteer services system which brought thousands of volunteers to Minnesota's state hospitals to work with patients and help with their recovery. Later, she expanded this concept into county welfare departments.

At the same time that she served as volunteer services coordinator, Mrs. Karlins also served as director of information, education and training for the medical services division of the department. In this position, she lectured, conducted workshops and produced numerous pamphlets, radio and television shows and films on the role of the hospital in treating patients and how hospitals can treat patients in the most humane way. One film, "Dehumanization and the Total State Institution" has received a national film award.

At its inception, Mrs. Karlins was designated as chairman of the state humane practices committee which promotes efforts to improve the life of patients in state hospitals. At first, the committee looked at physical amenities for the patient. As it has progressed, however, concern has shifted toward treatment questions and the patient's right to have a role in the decision-making process.

Mrs. Karlins retired from the department of public welfare in 1973. She is now a private consultant.

Nationally, Mrs. Karlins founded and served as first president of the American association of volunteer service coordinators and the national committee for mental health education. She has also served on several committees of the national association for mental health and the national association for retarded citizens.

She is the winner of several awards. Among them are two from the American Psychiatric Association, which she received jointly with Dr. Dale Cameron and Dr. David Vail for Volunteer Services and the "Attack on the Problem of 'Dehumanization'". Mrs. Karlins was also presented with the "outstanding public service award" by the St. Paul Kiwanis club in 1973.

Mrs. Karlins and her husband reside in Minneapolis. She has three children.

Traffic Mishaps To Be Reported Within 10 Days

Investigating officers and drivers involved in crashes are now required to submit a report to the state within ten days of the accident. The new requirement is part of an amendment to the statutes passed by the Legislature.

The accident report must be submitted to the Commissioner of Public Safety on a prescribed form. Prior to this change, officers were required to submit the report within 24 hours after completing the investigation, and involved drivers were required to report "promptly."

The accident report must be filed covering all crashes resulting in injury or death, or total property damage (to all vehicles or property involved) of $100 or more.

The amendment also increased the monetary limit of accidents which come under the safety responsibility act. Formerly, drivers involved in crashes with loss totaling in excess of $100 were required to show proof of ability to cover such losses. This limit now has been raised to $200.

Other provisions require the driver involved in a crash to stop and give his date of birth in addition to other information and, upon request, show his driver license or permit to drive to the driver or occupant of the other vehicle.

Confidentiality of accident reports by involved drivers is relaxed to permit disclosure by the state, county or municipality of the identities of persons involved in the crash who are not otherwise known or who deny their involvement.

"The main purpose of the 10-day limit is to speed up the reporting of accidents," Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund explained. "The increase in the damage limits for accidents in relation to the safety responsibility act is long overdue, since repair costs have multiplied during the past several years."

Lincoln high school head coach Bill McGann was among four coaches named from the region eight hockey coaches association Friday to form a special committee concerning the admission of Crookston Cathedral into region eight.

McGann, Terry Abram of Roseau, Buzz Olson of East Grand Forks and Chuck Grillo of Bemidji make up the committee, named at the region's annual spring meeting in Brooks last week, that will meet at Brainerd May 14 to present its recommendation. A full report on the Crookston Cathedral matter will be presented to the regional coaches when they meet next fall at Bemidji.

Admission of independent and parochial schools like Cathedral to the Minnesota state high school league (MSHSL) has been discussed by the league and a ruling will probably be made before the 1975-76 school year when the MSHSL-proposed two class plan will go into effect in the state.

Another major discussion at Friday's coaches meeting concerned the determination of the seeded team in case two teams tie for first place in the final region eight divisional point standings.

Thief River Falls and Roseau tied for the north half top spot this winter and Thief River Falls won the seeded berth into the region eight tournament on a coin toss. Roseau protested the maner in which Thief River Falls won the seeded spot since the Rams defeated the Prowlers twice during the regular season (7-6 and 5-4 in overtime both times) and Roseau backers felt the Rams deserved the seeded spot on that basis.

John Jacobson, Detroit Lakes head coach and the newly-elected president of the region eight coaches association succeeding Abram, announced that in the future, the seeded tournament berth will be judged by the won-lost record between the two teams if a tie developes. If the teams haven't played each other during the year, the decision will go on a basis of goals-for and goals-against. If the two teams split their regular season series, total goals will be used as the determining seeding factor. A coin flip will be used only as a last resort.

Thief River Falls has again been awarded the opportunity to host the region eight hockey tournament in 1975, it was announced at a recent region eight Minnesota state high school league meeting.

Despite wide-spread cries from the press and spectators of other towns to move the tournament to places like the University of North Dakota's arena, Thief River Falls was awarded the tournament for the fifth straight year.

The 1975 tournament will have one new wrinkle, though, with the event being staged over a five day span instead of four, allowing semifinal games to be played on separate nights.

It was also announced the 1974 region eight tournament proved to be a financial success with the region claiming a net profit of $6,966.05 after a total receipt figure of $12,115.39. The region eight play-off game involving Thief River Falls and Hibbing at Detroit Lakes recorded a net profit of $214.34. In contrast the two region eight sub region events lost money this winter. The north half sub region tournament at Roseau ended with a net loss of $610.28 and the south half sub region touranament at Detroit Lakes finished with a net loss of $658.81.

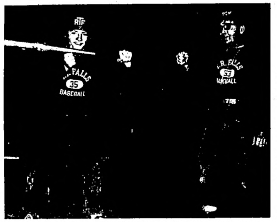
VIETNAM VETERANS — YOU'RE ELIGIBLE



LINCOLN HIGH school baseball coach Ralph Skay offered a bunting technique suggestion to senior Cliff Shumway during Tuesday's pre-season Prowler drills in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Shumway is the lone returning starter off last year's team, but Skay's optimistic for another strong Prowler season as the veteran coach begins his 22nd year at the Thief River Falls helm. The Prowlers open their 1974 season Sat., April 20, at Red Lake Falls.

LHS Thinclads Will Run At Moorhead, Grand Forks

A pair of large invitational meets await the Lincoln high school track team this week as the Prowler thinclads prepare to compete in meets at Moorhead and Grand Forks to reach the midway mark of the 1974 Thief River Falls indoor track season.

Coach Marv Walter's Prowler runners were scheduled to take part in a power laden Dragon indoor meet today (Wednesday) in Moorhead State College's Alex Nemzek Hall starting at 4:30 p.m. Thief River Falls will also race in Saturday's Grand Forks indoor meet starting at 12 noon in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse.

The Prowlers have been practicing since early March, but have participated in just one meet to date—the Shanley invitational in the North Dakota State University fieldhouse back on March 23—out of the six scheduled meets of the indoor season. Following Saturday's meet in Grand Forks, Thief River Falls' indoor season schedule includes Tues., April 16, the Northwest Conference meet at Crookston; Sat., April 20, the south Fargo invitational in the Fargo stadium; and Tues., April 23, the Pirate indoor at Crookston.

The team's inactivity and poor weather has hampered the Prowlers this spring pointed out Walter. "We're way behind compared to past years," said the second year Prowler coach. "We can't get them in shape until we get outside. The kids are all working hard, though, and we'll get a good look at everyone this week."

The addition of stand-outs Tony Dorn and Jerry Sandahl, who missed the Shanley meet, promise to provide Thief River Falls with a potent scoring punch that was absent when the Prowlers failed to score in the powerful season opener. "I think our chances of scoring some points are a lot better now with Tony and Jerry competing," said Walter who has conceded 1974 as a rebuilding year for the Prowlers.

Today's Dragon gathering will include about 30 teams and over 350 athletes for the ninth annual race. Moorhead will try to defend its meet title starting at 4:30 with the field events and 5:30 in the running events. The Spuds have won all eight previous Dragon invitationals, but Walter feels district 31 rival Crookston will have a good chance of upsetting Moorhead this time around. "Crookston could win it this year," noted Walter. "They're (Crookston) strong in the 60, 60 low hurdles, 440, 880, shot put, pole vault and sprint relay."

Walter said his one-per-event Dragon line-up would include Jim Elleson in the 60 yard dash; Lonnie Olson, mile; Joe Sorvig, 60 yard high hurdles; Jeff Houfek, 440; Sandahl, 60 yard low hurdles; Brian Phelps, 880; Mark Haroldson, pole vault; Jim Carlson, high jump; Dorn, shot put; Greg Leach, long jump; and a sprint relay team of Elleson, Tom Barry, Sorvig and Sandahl.

Walter feels the Prowlers have a strong chance of scoring points in nearly every event of today's meet. Sandahl is one of only three returning individual champions competing in the prestigious Dragon event, winning the 60 lows last spring. "Jerry has a chance to repeat his title," said Walter, "but there are about 10 kids all running the lows in the same time. Jerry will be at a little disadvantage because of his late start, but he's used to the competition and I'm sure he'll come through with a strong effort for us."

Among the Dragon team entries are Barnesville, Bloomington Jefferson, Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Dilworth, East Grand Forks, Elbow Lake, Fergus Falls, Fosston, Frazee, Glyndon-Felton, Goodridge, Halstad, Hawley, International Falls, Mahnomen, Melrose, Moorhead, Morris, Oklee, Park Rapids, Paynesville, Pelican Rapids, Perham, Roseau, Stephen, Swanville, Thief River Falls, Walker and Willmar.

Saturday's meet at Grand Forks will be a seven team affair, headed by favored Crookston. Other participating schools will be Grand Forks Red River, Grand Forks Central, Thief River Falls, Mayville-Portland, Grafton and East Grand Forks.

Every member of the Prowler squad will be entered in the Grand Forks meet. The Thief River Falls line-up will include Dave Cork, Phelps, Dan Heieren and Dick Johnson in the two mile relay; Sandahl, Barry, Sorvig and Jeff Hendrickson, 50 yard low hurdles; Elleson, Barry, Scott Steedsman and Greg McEwen, 50 yard dash; Phelps, Mike Nessen, Joe Nelson, Craig Swanson, Brad Brown, Martin Dirks, Kevin Swanson, Dan Vigness and Tim Trudeau, mile; Houfek, Tony Brosseau, Jeff Johnson and Leach, 440; Olson, Kezar and Heieren, two mile; Elleson, Sandahl, Brosseau and Houfek, mile relay; and Cork, Dick Johnson, Mike Burstad, Steve Erickson, Jay Narverud, Keith Johnson, Brad Swanson, Kirk Reed, Jerry Kammen, Mike Hvidsten, Tim Benedict, Rick Harger, Keith Poissant, Monte Worner, Greg Omdahl, Bob Stoffel, Kevin Anderson and Scott Bergland, all in the 880.

The Prowler line-up for the field events will include Dorn, Kent Ehrenstrom and Arlie Engelman, shot put; Carlson, Keith Johnson, Brad Swanson and Burstad, high jump; Carlson, Burstad, Leach, Jeff Johnson, Swanson and Narverud, long jump; and Haroldson, Benedict, Barry, Erickson, Kevin Anderson, Reed, Omdahl, Worner, Bergland and Stoffel, pole vault.

Prowler Baseball Team Is Preparing For 1974 Season

Despite poor spring weather conditons that has hampered the team's progress, veteran Prowler head coach Ralph Skay has been utilizing the Thief River Falls sports arena facilities since April 1 to prepare 31 varsity candidates for the upcoming 1974 high school baseball season.

Although a large number of returning lettermen dot the Prowler pre-season roster, the 13 1973 letter winners offer limited varsity experience to Skay and assistant coach Charlie Cornell, with only senior Cliff Shumway boasting any full-time varsity starting experience from last year's talented 14-4 Prowler squad.

Skay, beginning his 22nd season at the Thief River Falls helm, quickly tosses aside any rebuilding year thoughts, however, despite the inexperience of his latest edition. "No, we're certainly not going to label this a rebuilding year," snaps Skay who lost 10 seniors through graduation since last spring. "We're going after it right away; we're not going to rebuild. We lost a lot of good kids last year when we were pretty much a senior outfit, but we've got some kids with a lot of baseball ability this year that have been sitting on the bench because there's always been someone ahead of them. This year they'll have a chance to show just how good they are, and I think given the chance to play they'll come through for us."

Seven seniors, all returning lettermen, are expected to provide the nucleus for this year's Prowler squad. The seven upperclassmen include Shumway who will play either shortstop or in the outfield; Duane Dicken, second base and outfield; Randy Dallmann, catcher and outfield; Joel Folger, first base and outfield; Jon Peterson, third base and outfield; Greg Soenson, catcher and outfield; and Jeff Langlie, outfield.

Four returning junior lettermen are also expected to challenge for a starting spot, including Jeff Tunberg, outfield; Scott Kays, first base and outfled; Murray Melander, catcher and outfield; and Tim Erickson, second base and outfield.

Two current sophomores lettered last year as freshmen, including Chris Biegner, first base; and Jeff Lindquist, shortstop and outfield.

Everything is still a big question mark right now," admitted Skay who has had only one losing season in his long Thief River Falls tenure, "But I'm not pessimistic; I have faith in these kids."

The rest of the current Prowler roster includes juniors Tim Collins, outfield; and Jeff Joppru, outfield; along with sophomores Don Forney, second base and outfield; Mark Haats, catcher and third base; Mark Drury, third base and outfield; and Duane Gonsorowski, catcher and outfield.

A total of 11 freshmen are working with the squad, including Brian Peterson, shortstop; Bill Olson, outfield; Mark Thorstad, catcher and outfield; Mitch Dicken, third base and shortstop; Keith Daley, second base and outfield; Joe Klosterman, second base and outfield; Terry Dyrdal, shortstop and third base; Sheldon Idso, first base; Mike Wiebolt, third and second base; Dan Pluth, outfield; and Brad Kosel, second base and outfield. Doug Dallmann, an eighth grader, is also working out with the team as a catcher-shortstop.

Although starters must be found for every position, Skay expresses most of his concern about the Prolwer pitching staff. "Our pitching is our biggest question mark at this time," noted Skay. "We have some fairly good arms on the staff, but none of them have been under fire in a game situation. We'll just have to wait and see what happens." The Prowler varsity mound corps candidates include Shumway, Dallmann, Folger, Langlie, Tunberg, Biegner, Lindquist, Collins and Joppru.

Endangered Species Special Issue Topic

Today, no less than 109 species of American wildlife, ranging from the timber wolf and black-footed ferret to the whooping crane and southern bald eagle, are in imminent danger of extinction. The roster of animals in jeopardy has steadily increased over the years and dozens of others seem destined to join them in the near future.

The predicament of American wildlife and its hope for the future is detailed in the special April-May issue of "National Wildlife" magazine, published by the National Wildlife federation. The special issue, the first in the magazine's 12-year history, is devoted entirely too the plight of endangered species.

The accelerating threat to U.S. wildlife is noted by Harry Goodwin, a world authority on endangered species who served as special consultant for the issue. Goodwin points out that the recorded disappearance of only two mammals and three birds in the U.S. and Puerto Rico between 1600-1850 jumped to 17 mammals, 28 birds, and 12 fishes during the period 1850-1972. This represents 10 times as many species lost in the last 153 years as disappeared in the previous 250 years.

Besides Goodwin, who headed up the endangered species staff for the International Union for the Conservationn of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) for the past three years, 13 other well-known natural science authorities are featured in the special issue including Isaac Asimov, Jean George, and Roger Tory Peterson.

An overview of the urgency of the endangered species problem, and a comprehensive review of the past and the current situations are covered. The issue also takes a hard look at the continuing problems.

Loss of habitat and increasing environmental pollution are seen as the principal problems facing diminishing forms of wildlife, whether it be mammals, birds, insects, or plant life. "To survive, wild animals need suitable habitat," explain the editors. "But habitat is more than just a place. It is food and cover, water, and living space—an enormously complex web of many environmental factors. Through farming, industrialization and relentless development, man has altered that web. And for many beleaguered creatures, he may well have altered it irrevocably."

Several recent governmental actions stand out to Dr. Lee Talbot, senior scientist to the Council on Environmental quality, as significant rays of hope for the global ecosystem, described as an "unraveling web." Evidence of growing international appreciation of the value of wildlife culminated in the 1972 U.N. conference on the human environment, Stockholm, in the 1973 meeting in Washington during which 80 nations agreed to protect endangered species through control of international trade.

While Congress last year appropriated money for the first time to conserve and protect endangered species, the amount in the view of National Wildlife's Washington editor George Reiger, writing in the article "Laws of Nature Versus Laws of Man," is "distressingly modest." A maximum of only $10 million will be given to states in cost-sharing funds over the next three years. In passing the endangered species act of 1966, however, and strengthening it in 1973, Reiger feels Congress has officially pledged to conserve and protect species threatened with extinction.

Other than increasing public awareness and citizen concern, the issue stresses that the brightest immediate hope for the future in rescuing the growing number of endangered and threatened wildlife species from the threat of extinction may lie with biological scientists.

In an article entitled "Is Science the Answer?", Peter Gwynne, science edittor of "Newsweek", sees the most immediate need being the expansion of sperm banks, artifical insemination and studies of mating behavior to save those populations whose numbers now approach zero. Some success has already been noted in breeding species in captivity in wildlife research centers, large city zoos, and special wildlife breeding farms and returning them to the wild. For instance, while only 45 whooping cranes exist in the wild, Maryland's Patuxent wildlife research center has been able to artificially hatch and raise 17 whoopers.

What is the ultimate value of wildlife? Why not let the California condor, the timber wolf, and the black-footed ferret follow the passenger pigeon and the dodo down the trail taken by the dinosaurs?

In going beyond the potential answers and looking at the future of our increasingly fragile menagerie, "National Wildlife" sees the lengthening list of extinct species as a distant early warning system for man.

"With each species lost, the world loses an irreplaceable portion of its genetic pool," Editor John Strohm writes, "and the web of life becomes more open to further insult."

Famed science writer Isaac Asimov, a professor of biochemistry at Boston University's school of medicine, sums it up: "As life loses its diversity the world becomes impoverished. In practical ways."

The spectacularly illustrated special issue is an invaluable reference for students and teachers. Besides providing a complete perspective on the endangered species situation and its problems, comprehensive lists are provided of the 62 extinct species which have disappeared from the U.S. and Puerto Rico since the beginning of the 17th century, as well as the 109 mammals, birds, fishes, reptiles, and amphibians now on the endangered list and 69 species now classified as "threatened."

Non-members of the 3½ million member federation may purchase heavy-bound copies of the full-color April-May issue for $2 each from the NWF, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Study Shows That DNR Stocking Of Pheasants Fails

A recently completed three-year study by the Minnesota department of natural resources in west-central Minnesota has shown that stocking was of little value in restoring pheasant numbers.

Aim of the study was to determine if stocking a large number of birds in a specific area would help bring about a recovery of the pheasant population under today's land use conditions. The area chosen for the study had a good pheasant population up to about 1965. From that time, a series of blizzards coupled with changing land use factors started the pheasant population on its downward trend.

Birds used in the study were the best game farm stock available. They had been raised from wild pheasants that had been especially trapped for brood stock purposes.

Two townships in Pope county and two townships in Stevens county served as the study area. One of the townships in each of the counties were stocked; the other was not and served as a control area.

Each of the stocked townships received 1,500 pheasants in September of 1971. Hens comprised 85 per cent of the total number released. Following the release, the stocked townships had a breeding population of pheasants comparable to the late 1950's and early 1960's.

The hunting season in the area was closed in 1971 and open in 1972.

To evaluate the effects of the pheasant release, all four of the townships were subject to intensive roadside census work. The birds were first censused in Agusut of 1971 to determine the population level prior to any stocking. The census work was then repeated in August of 1972 and 1973 to determine what had happened.

During the winter of 1971-72 following the release of the birds, area game manager John Scharf of Morris reported substantial localized storm losses of pheasants in Stevens county. Area game manager Gerald Larson of Glenwood reported no unusual storm losses in Pope county during that winter. The winter of 1972-73 was very mild, and no storm losses were reported in either county.

By August of 1972, both of the Stevens county townships showed a significant decline in the number of pheasants. This sharp decline occurred in spite of a closed hunting season and was undoubtedly a result of the winter storm losses. Losses in the unstocked township appeared to be more severe than in the stocked township.

In the Pope county townships, the 1972 census showed an increase in the pheasant population in both townships. But the greatest rate of increase was in the unstocked township.

After the mild winter of 1972-73, the August 1973 census showed that the pheasant population had increased in all four townships. But once again, the greatest rates of increase were recorded in the townships that had not received pheasant stocking. It is also interesting to note that this general increase in pheasant numbers followed the controversial opening of the pheasant season in 1972.

In summary, there was no improvement in pheasant numbers as a result of stocking.

The study indicated once again to the managers and biologists involved that there are no easy solutions to Minnesota's pheasant problems. They concluded that pheasant numbers are basically a result of land use and weather. With suitable cover and favorable weather, pheasants prosper; when these conditions are not present, stocking cannot compensate for them.

The congress will be sponsored by the international snowmobile industry association (ISIA) in conjunction with the seventh annual international snowmobile trade show to be held May 14-16. "Continuous Crises in America—An Appraisal of Responsibility" will be Wallace's topic during the ISIA awards luncheon program.

Optomistic Gas Outlook

A survey of various areas of the state at the Northwest sportsmens show indicate an optomistic view of the summer tourist season.

Jack Ruttger of Ruttgers Bay Lake Lodge on Bay Lake at Deerwood believes that there will be no gas problem in Iowa or Minnesota. Jack, who is a director on the Minnesota Arrowhead association, says that "there will be plenty of gas in the Arrowhead country." Roy Plankers, of the Arrowhead association who is attending his 17th show agrees with Jack. "There will be no gas problem in northeast Minnesota," he said.

Mel and Thelma Oines, representing the Park Rapids area anticipate no problems in their area. Gas stations, at least some of them, will be open n Sunday.

Sid Swedmark, secretary of the Bemidji Chamber of Commerce, says Bemidji is getting ready for a busy summer. "There will be plenty of gas available," he noted.

Marge and Sid Namson of Lake Andrew resort at Alexandria assured us that there will be plenty of gas in the Alexandria area. Some stations will be open on Sunday.

"Bud" Kratoska executive secretary of Minnesota's Cook county civic council is of the same mind. "We expect no gas problem on the "tip of the Arrowhead", he reported.

Charlotte and John McCallick, who operates Snowbank Lodge on Snowbank Lake at Ely, are looking forward to a busy summer with no gas problems.

Fly Fishing School

The famed Fenwick Institute of fly fishing will ring its fly fishing school to Walker this summer. The dates are May 18, 19, and June 1 and 2. Hadquarters will be Bayview resort on Leech Lake. The fee for the two day seminar is $110.

Fishing Contest

The Bemidji Chamber of Commerce announced its third annual fishing contest. It starts on May 18 and runs through Labor Day. There will be weekly prizes in the walleye, northern and pan fish divisions. Weekly contests run from Saturday noon to Saturday noon. The weigh-in is at the Bemidji Chamber of Commerce office on the waterfront near the statues of Paul and Babe the blue ox.

A Thank You

There was a day most delightful
That we had ever spent,
A day, to us most brightful,
For every cloud seemed rent.
What made this day supreme above all other days?
For Trinity and its members came
Hours in a steady stream
To wish us well in retirement ways,
Church boards and women of the church did busy get
To arrange for lunch and program, so in committees met,
To make it a gala day we'd never forget.
It was to be a day of fun
with remarks short and dry
For over the resignation of the aged
There is nothing to cry.
There were those who talks did make;
A song and a poem were also given,
The contents of which did at times the truth forsake,
For all of this they were forgiven.
For the ego of the recipients
by this could not be riven.
But there were not only members who came to bring their greetings, Friends and neighbors, even those with whom we had had but few meetings.
There were people and more people, from far and near who in voices clear to each of us said, "God Bless You, my dear."
To all of these a "thanks" so hearty,
To Boards and Committee heads and all who made it such a wonderful party.
To the "Times" who printed a kind invitation and the Borsheims who made the Programs in such a lovely Presentation.
For hours straight we hands did shake, with not a feeling that it was fake.
What a Joy to us this day
For through it all
We heard them say, "we love you."
Above everything, we thank our God who gave us the call
To come to this community to serve you all.

Sincerely,
Harold and Mae Peterson

MEA Requests Special Session Of Legislature

An "almost unbelievable financial crisis" in Minnesota's public schools will be compounded by teacher insistence that they receive salary adjustments to keep pace with cost-of-living increases.

That's one of the points made in a letter from the Minnesota Education (MEA) to Gov. Wendell R. Anderson urging him to call a special session of the legislature "to act on raising per pupil state aid and local levy limits by an amount at least equal to the cost of living in those districts that are currently in a financial crisis."

The letter suggests a timetable and is signed by President W. M. (Mort) Mondale and executive director A. L. (Bud) Gallop of the more-than-43,000-member MEA. The letter implements a call for a special session that came from the MEA's recently concluded 51st annual delegate assembly.

"We are fully cognizant of the ramifications of our request," the letter states. "We believe that the schools of Minnesota face an almost unbelievable financial crisis as bargaining begins for the 1974-75 school year.

"Although not true in every case, many school systems find themselves unable to raise sufficient revenue that, along with aids payable from the state, will be needed to meet the spiraling costs brought on by inflation."

In far too many cases, the letter points out, these inflationary costs are in effect being paid for by teachers "who either are told that there will be no money for salary increases or that a predetermined number of staff members will be relieved of their teaching opportunities."

The letter continues:

"We believe we can say without equivocation that the teachers we represent will insist on at least a cost of living adjustment sufficient to keep pace with rising costs.

"To expect teachers to continually take home less 'real pay' while school boards pay increased prices for all other commodities is to disregard what we believe to be the single most important criterion to a good education—a competent, well-paid teacher."

The suggested timeline: By early July, after extensive and intensive research into individual school district budgets, the extent of the crisis will be more readily determined; so, at that time, the governor's office should give serious consideration to the call for a special session.

(If a special session is not called before July 20, the MEA delegate assembly decided, "the MEA will use all of its available resources to assist those affected locals in preparing for collective action to commence in the fall of 1974.)

Mondale and Gallop reminded the governor that last year Minnesota teachers averaged salary increases of slightly more than four per cent—while the cost of living more than doubled that percentage—and added, "To ask Minnesota teachers to do that again is not in our opinion either realistic or morally acceptable."

They also reminded that the MEA, as well as school boards representatives, asked the recently adjourned legislature for relief against the levy limitations imposed by preceding legislatures.

The MEA leaders conclude that they "stand ready to be of assistance to you in solving what we believe to be Minnesota's most serious financial crisis as preparations are made for the 1974-75 school year."

Building Permits Increase In TRF During February

Non-residential building permits issued in Thief River Falls during February increased from the 1973 level, both numerically and in valuation. However, no residential building permits were issued either in February 1973 or 1974, according to information recently released by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

There were nine non-residential building permits issued in February 1974, compared to seven in 1973. Permits for February 1974 represent a valuation of $58,000. However, the permits for February 1973 represented only $13,000.

Minnesota's February building permit valuation increased from $32,292,000 in 1973 to $56,307,000 in 1974. However, the number of permits involved did not increase at the same rate. There were 1,711 permits issued in February 1973 and 1,802 in February 1974. Although the valuation increased by 74 per cent, the number of permits issued increased by only five per cent.

Throughout the Ninth District, the total valuation of building permits issued for new buildings and repairs and alterations during February 1974 in 306 permit issuing centers was $70,330,000 for 2,534 permits. In February 1973 there were 2,312 permits issued with a valuation of $52,550,000. The report from the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis also stated that the cumulative total for the first two months of 1974 was $132,030,000 for 4,674 permits compared with $110,139,000 for 4,420 permits in 1973.

John Quesnell Authors Book On Married Life

"Marriage: A Discovery Together" is the title of a book written by John G. (Jack) Quesnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Quesnell of Thief River Falls, and a 1955 graduate of Lincoln high school.

Quesnell has gained national recognition as a marriage counselor, lecturer and author. A graduate of St. John's university, he completed his training as a marriage and family counselor at the University of Minnesota.

"Jack explains that whatever form and style a marriage relationship may take, the fundamental fact is that it involves two people and Christ," states a review of the 262-page paperback.

"The focus of this book is upon these two individuals and Him—the awareness of themselves, their understanding of their needs. Following this knowledge and awareness is a mutual discovery of how these needs can be met, how self-inflicted hazards can be avoided and a creative relationship developed.

"Jack calls on extensive counseling experience to describe a kind of relationship that is realistically open to new expectations for individual development. He is optimistic about the traditional values of Christian marriage.

The book is available through St. Patrick's guild Shop, 1554 Randolph avenue (at Snelling), St. Paul, Minn. 55105. Price is $4.95.

GOP Chairman Gives Comments On Legislature

Following is a statement by state Senator Robert J. Brown of Stillwater, Republican state chairman, at a press conference last Friday at the state Capitol:

"Today I raise serious questions about the cost, length and accomplishments of the 1974 Legislative session. I feel confident that many of Minnesota's citizens will be echoing these questions during the coming months.

"Let us look at the facts: The DFL party and its officeholders control Minnesota state government. It has been their lack of leadership which has determined the outcome of the 1974 Legislature.

"The result of this lack of leadership has had a devastating affect on our so-called 'open' legislature. Manipulation and mutilation of bills in committee, in conference committees and on the floors of both houses is unlike anything this state has ever seen. Legislators, the press and the public have been kept in the dark about the status and contents of major pieces of legislation.

"We were told that this session would deal only with priority matters—that there would be no tax or appropriations measures under consideration. A look at the output of this session will show that we were bogged down with many insignificant bills, that major legislation was hastily drawn, and that both tax and appropriations bill were passed.

"The cost of the legislature has escalated dramatically. In fiscal years 1972 and 1973, the Legislature has appropriated about $8.5 million to run. For fiscal years 1974 and 1975, the Legislature has appropriated about $16.8 million, and it now appears that there may be a substantial deficit which will have to be picked up in the next fiscal year.

"With the passage of a 43 per cent salary raise Thursday for the legislators, I feel it is safe to say that the citizen legislature of Minnesota will be dead by the next session. We are far down the road to having a full-time, professional legislature, but at the same time, the size of the legislature hs not been reduced, nor have adequate safeguards, such as constitutional amendments on initiative and referendum, been provided to protect Minnesota citizens.

"In short, the 1974 legislative session was longer than it should have been, far less productive that it could have been and revealed a leadership void in the DFL party—a void we hope to fill in November of 1974."

6 Conservation Groups Oppose Reported Plans

Six largest membership conservation organizations in America have denounced reported plans by the Nixon administration to undermine the clean air act and exempt all "energy-related" projects from provisions of the national environmental policy act (NEPA).

Leaders of the National Wildlife federation, Sierra club, National Audubon society, Wilderness society, Izaak Walton league of America, and the American Forestry association appeared together in a press conference held at the national press club and mounted a coordinated defense against environmental attacks waged by spokesmen for unenlightened industrial and commercial interests, members of the Congress, and some officials within the administration. The declared that the nation can develop essential additional energy resources and still have a clean environment.

In a joint statement, the spokesmen said they "will oppose by any means legally available to us any attempt to sacrifice public health and environmental quality on the altar of the energy crisis or for excess corporate profits."

"Conservationists have always contended that the cost of preventing pollution and preserving the landscape must be built into the price of products, including energy," the group emphasized. "As everyone knows, the prices of coal, crude oil and petroleum products have skyrocketed. The margins of profit are now more than adequate to cover the costs of preventing pollution and, in the case of coal mining, to restore the land which has already been stripped and prevent future damage. To sell out the environment would constitute a monstrous fraud upon the public.

"Environmentalists have leaned over backward to be cooperative while America adjusted to energy shortages that came as no surprise to us," the cooperating organizations declared. "Our only surprise was that government was caught with its pants down. We have welcomed and supported energy conservation measures because we knew they were necessary for the future welfare and stability of the American economy regardless of what the Arab nations do. However, we strongly oppose any long-term variances. Apparently, our moderation and cooperation have been mistaken as agreement to weakening of our basic environmental protection laws.

"We call upon President Nixon and his advisors to start listening to the public instead of solely to those who would exploit the land and its resources at the expense of the public," the conservation leaders declared. "The real question the public should ask our policy makers is why we cannot have both orderly and well-planned growth and development and a good natural environment as well. We do not have to be placed in the position of choosing either orderly growth and development or a clean environment. We can have both."

The coordinating groups explained that they will use every means at their disposal to highlight those situations wherein public environmental considerations are being overridden in resource development and exploitation. The organizations expect to cooperate fully in exposing attempts to weaken environmental laws and programs. Some may even go to court if necessary.

They cited an abrupt reversal of the administration's support for a strong land use planning program, weakening amendments to a strong strip-mining bill, and greatly expanded leasing programs on oil shale lands and the outer continental shelf without accompanying environmental studies and safeguards, as well as rumored weakening amendments to the clean air act, in the emergency energy act now being considered, as signals that it is moving away from what once had been lauded as strong environmental positions.

Minn. Companies To Exhibit Foods At Annual Show

Minnesota's food industry will have one of the largest representations among all states seeking millions of dollars in new export sales volume in Japan at the fourth annual American Foods Festival to be held in Tokyo, April 15-19, according to agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald. Fifteen Minnesota companies will exhibit.

"Export sales are vital to maintain the favorable balance of trade that is important not only to agriculture, but to the stability of the American dollar, which also is important to consumers as well as farmers," he emphasized.

M. C. Combs, director of our marketing services division, said that Minnesota will be promoting sales of a wide varity of the state's products to the biggest group of wholesale buyers ever assembled in Japan for an american foods presentation. Over 5,000 buyers are expected to attend.

Minnesota products will include textured vegetable proteins, synthetic foods, processed vegetables, fish, bakery blends, frozen convenience foods, dehydrated potatoes, non-fat dry milk, powdered eggs, processed meats, fruit and chocolate drink concentrates, turkey, oats, and pork production facilities and breeding stock.

Heading the state delegation on the trade mission will be M. C. Combs, marketing services director, and LeRoy Thoreson, export marketing specialist, Minnesota department of agriculture. The state agency is coordinating Minnesota participation in the U.S. department of agriculture co-sponsored trade mission.

Combs suggested that Minnesota sportsmen may approve promotion in Japan of one of the new products, smoked and frozen carp, noting that "conservationists regard the carp as the most destructive pest in the state's lakes."

Joining Combs and Thoreson in the Japan trade mission will be Milt Hakel, Farmers Union research and publications director; M. S. Holtan, general manager of the Farmers Union marketing and processing association; Norman Groth of Food Processors, Inc.; Tom Fetzer of Marshall Produce company; Dr. John Nelson of Peavey company; and Osmund G. Way of Green Giant.

Other Minnesota firms participating and sending product exhibits are: Joshua Foods, Schweigert Meats, Geo. A. Hormel and company, Kemp Fisheries, Triple G Foods division of Ryt-Way Packing corporation, Mama Vitale's Italian foods, Precision Foods company, King O'Spuds, Jenny O. Energy Agency Bill Passed By '74 Legislature

A bill establishing a state energy agency and delegating energy conservation powers to its director was passed by the House of Representatives March 26.

Revised version of the bill was accepted by the House by a vote of 92 to 35. Several conference committee meetings were held to work out the differences between the House and Senate versions of the measure.

The energy conservation act combines two energy related bills sponsored by Rep. Willard Munger (Duluth), and is now before the governor for his signature.

The bill creates a state agency to coordinate and study energy matters on a statewide basis to be headed by a director. Originally, the House bill called for the creation of a department of energy and other legislation setting up guidelines for statewide energy conservation.

Opponents of the bill said there is no need for "new bureaucracy in state government", and that the work can be done by existing departments.

The new director will be advised by a legislative commission on energy comprised of legislators and citizens. The commission will consist of three senators, three representatives and three public members appointed by the governor. The commission will expire July 1, 1975, unless renewed by the legislature.

The director will be appointed by the governor after consideration of names recommended by the legislative commission. He will serve a four-year term. The director must not have a conflict of interest with any energy agency, utility or manufacturer.

Energy conservation measures called for in the bill include:

(1) A program for maximum energy use standards for street, highway, and parking lot lighting.

(2) No new natural gas outdoor lighting shall be installed after July 1, 1974;

(3) Promotional practice by suppliers of energy may be limited;

(4) Standards to be established for heat loss control, illumination, and climate control for new buildings and remodeling; buildings affected are only those structures already covered by the state building code;

(5) An efficiency study of the traffic flow system to consider the feasibility of a computer coordinated traffic system;

(6) A study for the feasibility of encouraging car pools and private busing through tax incentives; and

(7) A study of the possibility of modifying license fees for more efficient automobiles.

The bill appropriates $350,000 to the agency and $30,000 to the legislative commission. As amended by the conference committee, the energy agency will expire on Dec. 31, 1979, unless renewed by the legislature.

Clouds . . . and Light . . . and a bold spire! The symbols of man's wondering—his hope—his aspirations.

On a Friday the One they called Christ was dead. The world rolled on . . . nothing seemed changed.

Then it was Sunday: Newness everywhere! He is risen! Men believe . . . gather . . . rejoice . . . promise.

He is Risen! Clouds break. Light shines in darkness. Our faith reaches upward . . . in bold certainty!

Campaign Ethics Bill Is Approved By Legislature

A bill establishing guidelines for campaign spending and regulating lobbyists has been given final approval by the Minnesota House of Representatives and Senate. This also provides for public financing of campaigns through an income tax checkoff system. The governor is expected to sign the bill next week.

The House approved the bill March 27, as revised by a conference committee, with a vote of 118 to 10. The Senate voted 41 to 17 for the bill.

The ethics bill is a comprehensive measure designed to regulate election financing and the legislative process by eliminating the opportunity for undue influence created by large financial contributions and secret lobbying efforts.

A bipartisan ethics commission composed of six members appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of both the House and Senate is created to administer the law.

Lobbyists are required to register as lobbyists and to report on their expenditures and activities as lobbyists. Lobbyists are not permitted to be compensated on a contingent fee basis based on their success in getting a particular item of legislation passed.

Campaign financing is regulated by requiring each candidate—statewide, judical and legislative—excluding federal office candidates, to form a principal campaign committee.

The committee must register and report periodically on its activities, including reporting the name and address of contributor who contribute more than $50 to a candiate for legislative office and $100 for a candidate for statewide office in any year.

The bill limits the amount which may be spent by or on behalf of any one candidate.

For state representative, 20 cents per capita, or $7,500, whichever is greater, is allowed; for state senator, 20 cents pr capita, or $15,000; governor and lieutenant governor, running together, 12½ cents per capita, or $600,000, whichever greater.

The bill limits contributions of any association or person to a candidate to 10 per cent of the candidate's permitted spending limit. A political party may contribute up to 50 per cent of a candidate's permitted spending limit.

Contributions and activities of associatons, such as labor or commerce associations, would also be controlled by the legislation. They are required to set up political funds through which the association may contribute to candidates. The political fund must register and report with the ethics commission as do the campaign committees.

A tax check off of $1, or $2 if filing a joint return, is created permitting a taxpayer to allocate that sum to the candidates proportionately.

The tax check off money is allocated 40 per cent to candidates for statewide office, 40 per cent to candidates for state representative, and 20 per cent to candidate for state senate. Guidelines are established to determine when a candiate will qualify for tax check off funds.

The bill also permits a tax credit for contributions to candidates of $12.50, or $25 if filing a joint return. Of those amounts $5, or $10 if filing a joint return, may be take as credit for contributions to a political party.

The bill regulates the behavior of public officials requiring that they disassociate themselves in certain situations where a conflict of interest is involved. Public officals are also required to file annual financial disclosure statements.

Blind 'U' M Teacher Sees Challenge To Motivate Students

by Maureen Smith
University Staff Writer

When Roger Drewicke started teaching freshman composition at the University of Minnesota, he thought that if he worked extra hard he could be almost as good as other teachers.

He didn't think he could ever be quite as good—because Roger Drewicke is blind.

"I thought I'd be paddling behind the other teachers in a makeshift canoe," Drewicke said in a recent interview. As it has turned out, he said, he and other teachers are "in the same boat."

Tailoring teaching methods to his blindness isn't the challenge. The challenge is in "motivating the students, stimulating them and leading them into new areas of intellectual development."

Today Drewicke, a teaching associate in English, is convinced that a blind teacher can be fully as effective as any other. A visit to his classroom was evidence of his own success.

He opened the class by playing a recording of "The Americans," a commentary by a Canadian on the generosity of Americans and the ingratitude of the world.

"Let's examine it from a compositional point of view," he said. "What sort of logic does he use? How does he support his main contention? Do you agree with his thesis or can you find logical fallacies in it?"

The discussion was lively and wide-ranging. "I see nothing wrong in being proud of your country," one student said. "But these are the wrong things to be proud of," said another. "This is only half of the story," said a third. "The other half is American imperialism and bombs."

Drewicke was joined at the front of the room by his student assistant Mike Hince. In an informal way, the two took turns as discussion leaders. It isn't that Drewicke needs help in leading the class. The technique is "one way of breaking the ice with the students and not setting myself up alone," he explained later.

In some ways, Drewicke said, a blind teacher can have an initial advantage. For one thing, "he can't fall back on the traditional system, so he is forced to experiment with new techniques that can very often be more effective."

And then there are ways that a blind teacher can use his blindness. "In the beginning of the quarter," Drewicke said, "I use my blindness as a means of getting the students committed. I throw as much of the responsibility on them as possible." Students take care of such classroom business as arranging desks, collecting papers and writing on the blackboard.

"I usually make a joke about the old technique of raising hands," Drewicke added. He tells the students that this class will be conducted in a more natural way—when students have something to say, they'll say it.

"I keep telling them to recognize other students," he said. One of his goals is to "get the students committed to each other."

He asks the students to sit in the same place each time so that he can get to know them. He learns to recognize students by their voices and manners of speaking.

Class discussions are often on topics that the students will be writing themes about. Drewicke spends some class time talking about the principles of composition, but to teach these principles he relies mostly on individual conferences. In the conferences he can talk with students about their own writing and the problems they have encountered.

Drewicke grades them with help from a reader. "At first I thought it would be a real drag to find a reader," he said. But he has found that "you don't have to rely on graduate assistants or retired teachers or some person with a benevolent streak." He usually hires an undergraduate English major who needs money to get through college.

The reader marks obvious errors like misspellings and then reads the themes aloud into a tape recroder, indicating where a new paragraph starts or quotation marks are used. Drewicke can then listen to the themes at his own convenience.

He makes his comments into a cassette recorder. "You can spend as much time as you want" on a single theme, he said, but generally "I can get through one in 20 minutes." In this time he can record a 10-to 15-minute commentary for the student. If a student does not have his own recorder or access to a friend's, he can listen to Drewicke's comments at one of the University's language laboratories.

The advantages over the traditional method of grading themes are obvious, Drewicke said. "You can make more extensive comments because you can talk faster than you can write." Instead of a cryptic notation in red pencil, the student receives a human response expressed in a conversational way.

Drewicke still uses cassettes, but he has been moving more and more toward the conference method. This was an inevitable development, he said. "Students would ask if they could record replies to my comments. I would say yes, but why not come to my office to talk about it?"

A conference has all the advantages of the cassette method plus the chance to interact with the student, he said.

Whether he is making his comments into a cassette or in a face-to-face talk, Drewicke likes to "motivate the students by individualizing their styles." He tries to find what is most characteristic and appealing in each student's style and build on that.

For the last writing assignment of the quarter, Drewicke asks the students to write a job application and personal statement. The style must be "extremely polished and finished," he said—that's why he saves this assignment for the end. And the assignment is "meaningful to the students, because they know they're going to have to find jobs."

Finding a job is a big concern for Drewicke himself. He will finish his Ph. D. this spring, and he is looking for a teaching job. Too often, he has found, "administrators are not willing to give blind teachers a chance to teach. A lot of English department chairmen aren't willing to take the chance—what they consider the chance."

Society provides many services for the blind, he said—talking books, braille books, specialized material recorded on request—but "then they turn you loose in an economic system that does discriminate against you."

Drewicke knows that he can do the job. With other blind teaches, he is working to break down the stereotypes that might prevent him from getting the chance.

Interesting Opinions

Some years ago, a few national magazines carried the story of a husband-wife anthropologist team who had themselves crucified. They wanted to know how long they could tolerate the pain and suffering. Both, however, were removed from their crosses before they died.

As we celebrate Holy Week, how often do we, like the anthropologists, get hung up on the externals, the physical outward trappings of our Lord's death and resurrection? To feel sorry on Good Friday, and wear a pasted smile on Easter may impress others, or ourselves, but it places a real limitation on what Jesus Christ was and still is all about.

I invite you to stretch your spiritual muscles this week, and think about the following words you will hear in regard to Jesus' death and resurrection:

Jesus had Commitment—Do you have commitment to your work and faith?

Jesus was Involved—Are you involved with your family and friends?

Jesus was Obedient—Can you take advice as well as give it?

Jesus exercised Discipline.—Does your life have guidelines or does it sway in flabby flexibility?

Resurrection speaks of a new beginning. May we all find new joy, new appreciation, new beginnings as we review commitment, involvement, obedience and discipline in our lives.

Aaron Homered, Kuhn Struck Out

With one swing of the bat Monday evening, Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves produced a tape measure home run and so wrote a new chapter in American baseball history. It was Aaron's 715th major league circuit clout and thus surpassed the previous major league record held by George Herman "Babe" Ruth.

It didn't take long for the 40-year-old slugger to reach the milestones this season. He hit his 714th homer the first time he swing the bat in a major league game this season. The new record was set on his second trip to the plate Monday night, in the third game he saw action in this year.

Aaron must be immensely relieved that the new record has been set. The national sports press has camped on his doorstep and followed him around for the past year as he methodically closed in on the Ruth standard. He will set a new record each time he puts on fair ball in the seats from now on, but each will be anti-climactic. The ultimate hurdle has been crossed.

It is unfortunate that the czar of baseball, commissioner Bowie Kuhn, became involved in controversial action last week and was not present for the historic homer Monday.

Kuhn ordered Braves manager Eddie Mathews to play Aaron in a road game when Mathews preferred to hold Aaron out of the line-up until he returned to play before his home fans. The home fans were rewarded with the record homer Monday, but the commissioner was not at the park to see it, choosing to be elsewhere. His representative was greeted with a chorus of Bronx cheers at the ceremonies following the 715th homer.

There is probably a place for a commissioner of baseball, but it shouldn't be in telling a manager how to arrange his line-up. That action was unwarranted. And some responsibility to baseball should also accrue to the job, and that would indicate physical attendance at an event where baseball history was likely to be made. Kuhn struck out both times.

Legislature In Action

Following commentary on the Minnesota legislature—probably written not entirely in jest—was published by Gene Prim in the Barnesville Record:

Did you ever get the feeling that you were being taken to the cleaners by the Minnesota State Legislature? In the 1972 election the voters passed a constitutional amendment allowing annual sessions of legislature and our esteemed representatives seem to be making the most of it.

Let's take a look at a few of the earth-shaking bills that this group has considered in the past couple of weeks.

A bill that would eliminte the use of depth finders for fishing has been introduced. I guess the reasoning behind this is that the fish aren't getting a fair shake because some people are using these things and know how deep the water is.

The Senate has approved a measure that would allow the hunting of moose until the year 1980 under the direction of the Department of Natural Resources. Much the same bill was approved in the first half of the session last year but this allowed moose hunting for only one year.

The Senate has given preliminary approval to a bill that would require that duck season be opened on Saturdays.

Although I have my own opinions on all of the above, shouldn't they be left to the professionals in the Department of Natural Resources instead of the Legislature?

Be that as it may, there are a lot more bills floating around that need the immediate attention of our representatives.

There is the legislation that would create a state energy-coordinating agency. The bill would appropriate $300,000 for the agency's information gathering and energy policy drafting fuctions. That's right, another bureaucracy. Instead of working through the agencies that already exist, a whole new department would be formed. But have no fear, another $30,000 has been appropriated for a nine-member legislative group that will oversee the agency's activities. Guess this committee is supposed to watch for any overspending.

The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved, after five weeks of hearings, a bill calling for a voluntary $1 state income tax checkoff system to finance political campaigns. The same bill outlaws corporation donations but allows union dues to be used for political purposes. Apparently it's alright to be bribed by a union but not by a corporation.

The boys in St. Paul have also been busy tinkering with the more personal side of life. Legislation is being studied that would change the language of the present divorce laws, sort of a no-fault bill that would substitute "dissolution" for divorce, "petition" for complaint, "proceeding" for action, "petitioner" for plaintiff, and "respondent" for defendant. Also on the personal side, a bill has been defeated that would broaden the areas where birth control devices may legally be sold and a bill abolishing distinctions on the basis of sex in prostitution cases has passed in the House of Representatives. I will refrain from any comment on these.

The field of education is also being probed. A house bill would allow a student to serve on the state college board, another bill would permit a school's nickname to appear on buses and still another would change the names of five state colleges to universities. Now how did we ever live without these?

Even your name isn't safe. Two legislators have introduced legislation that would attack a gopher mound with a bulldozer. The bill would give a couple getting married the following options:

Both take the husband's last name.

Both take the wife's last name.

Each retain their last name.

Use both names hypenated. Thus is Jon Jones married Mary Smith they could be known as either Jones-Smith or Smith-Jones.

A woman should also retain the lat name from a previous marriage.

Just for the fun of it, let's take a hypothetical case and follow it through in case this legislation passes. Mary Moore marries Oran Ore and becomes Mary Moore-Ore. She and Oran do not get along and they are divorced (oops, they go through a "dissolution" court, see above). Anyway, Mary marries Lester Less and becomes Mary Moore-Ore-Less. This marriage doesn't work either and the marriage is dissolved and our star marries Walter Worth and becomes Mary Moore-Ore-Less-Worth. This marriage is also a failure and is dissolved. After much consideration Mary decides that Lester wasn't all that bad and she remarries him, becoming Mary Moore-Ore-Less-Worth-Less. All of the children resulting from this last marriage go into politics.

really surprised me, especially in an come up this year is legislation that would place a bounty on skunks. This one really surprised me, especially in an election year.

It's beginning to look as if our State Legislature passed all of the bills that were really needed to run the state at the first half of the session. The 1974 session has developed into an individual contest to see who can come up with the biggest boondoggle. There seems to be little point in continuing with annual sessions, at great expense to the taxpayers, if these bills are any indication of what we can expect for our money.

Borrowed Nonsense

The first prize for sculpture in a modern art show went to a curiously shaped piece bearing this sign: "The sculptress made this entirely with her tongue."

Someone questioned the exhibitor, "Who is this talented sculptress?"

"My cow," he answered, "That's her salt block."

"You know dear," said the wife "you don't seem as well dressed as you did when we were married."

"I don't know why," came the reply, "I'm still wearing the same suit.

When the work-worn farmer was asked by his doctor how he was feeling, he replied, "Well doc, I'm still kickin' but I ain't raisin' much dust!"

notes from the governor

Thomas Jefferson once observed that if a nation expects to be ignorant and free, it expects what never was and never will be.

If there is one commitment that Democratic government must make, it is to support the best possible education for all of its citizens. No one can lose from our investment in education except those who depend on ignorance for their power. Everyone else gains.

Since territorial days, Minnesotans have placed a high priority on education. Our schools, at all levels, are among the finest in the nation. Literacy tests show that our citizens are among the best-educated people in the country. Yet we can do better.

That is why I was very pleased recently to participate at Hibbing in the launching of a new experiment in post-secondary education. The experiment is the Iron Range Higher Education Consortium.

This experiment is one of three regional projects funded by the 1973 Legislature. In addition to the Iron Range consortium, others are centered in Wadena and Rochester.

These programs have several objectives. First and most important, they attempt to make post-secondary educational opportunities more readily available to people living in those regions.

A great many Minnesotans, young and old, want more education. The programs will involve making classes available to people in their home communities, eliminating the need for them to travel miles to Duluth, or Bemidji, or another community which has a school of higher learning.

Other objectives of the program include the elimination of needless duplication of effort and facilities, and improvement in our regional planning efforts, not just in education but in the delivery of other human services as well.

Our State Higher Education Coordinating Commission will report on the results of these regional programs when the Legislature meets again in 1975. It is my hope that this report will show that the Iron Range Higher Education Consortium and its Wadena and Rochester counterparts have proven highly worthwhile undertakings.

It was a perfect day when the Senior Citizens met at the Legion Hall on Thursday, April 4. It's finally beginning to look like spring. The ladies were busy with the sofa pillow tops, each one making a different color. Ella was making Easter bunnies, and Irene Larson was addressing Easter and get well cards. She also read the yearly reports. It was nice to have Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson back at the Center.

The visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Sundberg of Newfolden, Hilmer Johnson and Daigre. William Wikstrom joined us for lunch. Donators to the Center were Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Sundberg, $2, and Elsie and Delphine, $1 each. Want to say thanks to all. The men played cards and the ladies signed the cards Irene had addressed. Amanda Johnson won the door prize donated by Irene Larson. Next week there will be no meeting, as Easter is taking over. We will be back together again on Thursday, April 18. Mrs. Sarah Wikstrom was the hostess.

Legis Lative Letter from ANDREW SKAAR

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

A bill permitting the State Commissioner of Natural Resources to set regular moose hunting seasons appears certain to pass during the current legislative session. The Seante passed their version of the bill this week.

The bill will soon be considered by the House after having won the approval of the House Committee on Environmental Preservation and Natural Resources.

Minnesota has now experienced two successful moose hunting seasons in the northern part of the state. Lotteries were held to limit the number of licenses with each license good for a party of four and each party limited to one moose.

It is generally agreed the hunters receiving a license one year would not be eligible for the drawing the following year.

Under the new bill it would be up to the Commissioner of Natural Resources to set the seasons and if the moose population appears adequate he could schedule the seasons on a regular basis.

Another bill of interest to hunters that is moving through the legislative process calls for Saturday opening for ducks and geese.

The Department favors opening the season during the week but there is strong pressure from hunters for Saturday opening. In my opinion the Saturday opening bill will be approved by the Legislature.

There seems to be growing support for exempting Minnesota from daylight saving time during the winter months. A Resolution has been introduced to this effect and if it is voted on by the House I feel sure it would be approved. This might prompt Congress to take action that would exempt Minnesota before next winter arrives.

ST. HILAIRE . . .

Visitors at the Henry Sandberg home during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sandberg, Belle and Donald Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson.

AVERAGE AMERICAN this year will put in nearly one third of his working time—2 hours and 38 minutes out of an 8-hour day—earning enough money to pay the vast array of taxes (many of them hidden taxes) imposed by the federal, state and local governments, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers Association.

Taxpayer Works Third Of Time To Pay Taxes

For two hours and 38 minutes out of each eight hour workday this year the average American will be working to pay his taxes, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

"A study just completed by Tax Foundation, Inc., a national tax research organization, shows that federal, state and local taxes of all kinds, will take 32.9 per cent of the average American's income in 1974, up fractionally from last year," stated Charles P. Stone, executive director of the association.

"Although wages and salaries are rising, the higher social security tax base and the movement of many wage and salary earners into higher income tax brackets will increase the percentage of their incomes needed for taxes.

"Another way of measuring this year's total tax take out of the average American's earnings is to consider it on an annual basis. Taxes, in their myriad forms, will take all the money he can earn from January 1 through April 30."

Apple-Bacon French Toast

Delicious, hearty breakfasts have no effect on the weather, but they certainly can and do brighten spirits — from the little folks right on up to Dad. Apple-Bacon French Toast delights Mother too because it's an easy-do, calling for a package of frozen cinnamon swirl French toast that needs only heating through in the toaster or oven. Serve it with juicy apple rings sauted in butter and brown sugar and then top it off with crisp bacon strips. What a delicious and hearty breakfast or brunch dish this is!

APPLE BACON FRENCH TOAST
Makes 3 servings

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 apples, pared, cored and sliced in rings
- 2 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar
- One 10-oz. pkg. frozen cinnamon swirl French toast
- 6 bacon slices, cooked and drained

Melt butter in large skillet. Add apple rings and saute 3 minutes; turn. Sprinkle brown sugar over apple rings. Continue cooking over low heat until sugar is melted and apples are tender.

Meanwhile, prepare cinnamon swirl French toast in toaster or oven according to package directions. Allow 2 slices per serving and top with apple rings. Spoon butter-sugar mixture over apples and criss-cross 2 bacon slices on top.

KLONDIKE BRIDGE at Red Lake Falls was victim of the rushing Red Lake river early Saturday morning when ice floes took out the southwest piling and collapsed the structure. The break ruptured a city water line which necessitated closing of a couple valves to continue water service to the city. About 18 families were marooned when the 150-foot bridge toppled between 6 and 7 a.m. Saturday. Their cars were pulled out with tractors for about three-quarters of a mile on a little-used road. The residents in the area affected can reach their vehicles by walking a shorter distance, however, and some residents have been walking across this bridge itself in spite of condition.

Co-op Elevator At St. Hilaire Reports Savings

Savings of $226,058 on a volume of 3,565,399 bushels of grain handled were reported at the annual meeting of the St. Hilaire Cooperative Elevator association held recently at the St. Hilaire school auditorium. Approximately 300 patrons and friends attended the meeting at which $58,000 in dividend checks were distributed.

Glen Haugen, president of the cooperative's board of directors, presided and the financial statement was reviewed by Larry Martin, district field manager for the Farmers Union grain terminal association. In addition to the $226,058 savings, the cooperative earned regional patronage refunds of $25,323 from GTA and $9,500 from Cenex.

Volume handled in addition to the 3,565,399 bushels of grain included 4½ million pounds of sunflowers, 1¼ million pounds of buckwheat and 250,000 pounds of millet.

Curtis Johnson was reelected to a three-year term on the board of directors and discussion was held on possible improvements or expansion for the elevator.

1924 Class To Hold Reunion

Preliminary arrangements are being planned for a class reunion this summer for members of the Lincoln high school class of 1924. Members of the class are requested to contact Lawrence Bjorkman, 117 Zeh Street, Thief River Falls, to assist in organizing the event.

TOP HONORS in the senior division of the regional science fair recently held at Bemidji went to Rod Shand (left), a senior at Pershing high school at Plummer. His exhibit illustrating the vortex tube and its use in spot cooling of small areas earned an opportunity for him to enter his display at the international science fair to be held at the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., in May. He will also advance to state competition at St. Paul next week. Don Fox, a science teacher at Pershing high school, was Shand's advisor. Other Plummer students participating in the regional science fair included Stanley Tvedt, winner of a blue ribbon; and Janice Culkins, Candy DuChamp, Mike Skjerven and Bob Brekke who received participation ribbons. This is the second year that Plummer has participated in the regional science fair and it is the second time that a student from Pershing high school has advanced to state competition.

Boys, Girls Staters Named For TRF And Goodridge HS

Boys and Girls state representatives and alternates for Lincoln and Goodridge high schools have been selected by the American Legion and auxiliary of Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 at Thief River Falls.

Tom Nelson and Mary Gilbert will represent Lincoln high school. Paul Solberg and Doris Cervin have been named as the Goodridge representatives. Alternates from Lincoln high school are Scott Bornholdt and Sue Goddard with Roxane Bakken and Howard Vigen, both of Grygla, as alternates from the Goodridge school.

Both Girls state and Boys state will be held June 9 through 15 with the Girls state session at St. Catherine's college in St. Paul while Boys state meets at St. John's university at St. Joseph.

Boys and Girls state are designed to provide citizenship training with emphasis on the duties, privileges, rights and responsibilities of American citizens. The programs are organized to allow participants to gain experience in the operation and relationship of city, county and state governments by working together as self governing citizens. The young people campaign for offices, form party platforms, participate in caucuses, elect officials and pass legislation. Through this experience they increase their understanding and appreciation of civics, history and public speaking.

Participants in these programs, sponsored by the American Legion and its auxiliary, are high school juniors who will return to their communities and schools where they can apply their new knowledge. In this way the program benefits more than just the individuals selected to participate.

Tom Nelson

Tom Nelson, Lincoln high school's representative to Boys state, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Nelson of Thief River Falls. He is a member of the student senate and sings in the concert choir. He has also participated in a high school musical.

Work On Ditches To Be Discussed

Restabilization of Judicial ditches 30, 18 and 13 will be discussed at a public informational meeting to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls, according to Steve Wilson, district conservationist for the Pennington soil and water conservation district.

It was proposed to reslope the ditch banks, seed them and install erosion control structures as they are needed, Wilson said. The restabilization would help reduce sediment and soil erosion from water in the ditch system.

Present at the meeting to answer questions will be representatives of the soil conservation service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service and Pennington county.

FmHA Office In County Loans Out $596,270

Money loaned during the first three calendar months of 1974 by the Farmers Home administration office in Thief River Falls totaled $596,270, according to Loren D. Luschen, county supervisor.

The figure includes $65,000 in loans made simultaneously by private lenders in conjunction with FmHA farm ownership loans and brings to $1,260,721 the total money loaned since July 1, 1973, start of the fiscal year. Loans during January, February and March nearly matched the total loaned during the previous six months. Thirty-one families received loan benefits during that fiscal third quarter.

Luschen reported that all but $97,150 of the amount loaned in the third quarter was to farmers in Pennington and Red Lake counties for the purpose of buying farms, putting up buildings and financing livestock, machinery and crop expenses. The $97,150 was loaned to residents of communities in Red Lake and Pennington counties to finance the purchase or construction of new homes. One youth loan in the amount of $700 was made to a 4-H member to carry out a swine project.

Luschen reported that loan requests have increased substantially during the third quarter for both farm and housing loans. A major portion of money loaned during the third quarter to farmers was for money to purchase seed, fertilizer and fuel to plant their 1974 crop. Funding for crop loans should be adequate due to recent additional appropriations that were made by congress to assure that farmers would have adequate credit available for this year's crop.

FmHA loans are available to family type farmers or rural residents who desire a loan for farming purposes or to purchase or build a home. The primary eligibility requirements for an FmHA loan is that the person be unable to obtain the loan from commercial sources, have repayment ability, and if a farm loan, have sufficient farm background and-or experience to assure a resonable chance of success. Interest rates are 5 per cent on Farm Ownership, 6¾ per cent on operating, and 8¼ per cent on rural housing with some provision for interest subsidy to low income people.

Luschen emphasized that loans are also available through FmHA to communities for community facilities and to individuals or groups for business and industrial loans.

Eileen Lynette Iverson Marries John C. Kotaska

Miss Eileen Lynette Iverson and John Charles Kotaska exchanged marriage vows recently at an ecumenical ceremony at St. Pauli Lutheran church in St. Hilaire. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony were Rev. James Swanson and Rev. James Bernauer.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Iverson of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. John B. Kotaska, also of Thief River Falls.

Approximately 100 relatives and friends attended the ceremony. Mrs. James Johnson served as organist and during the ceremony sang, "Everything Is Beautiful," and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white polyester crepe floor-length gown styled in Victorian fashion. Cantilly lace formed the full sleeves and the rounded yoke of the fitted bodice, fashioned with a stand up collar. Matching scalloped lace edged her veil of nylon tulle that fell from a white floral headpiece. She carried an arrangement of cascading white carnations, red roses and greens.

Attending the bride as her maid of honor was her cousin, Lou Ann Rondorf of Grand Forks, N.D. Catherine Kotaska of Thief River Falls, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaid. Both wore identical floor-length gowns of royal blue velvet. To complete their attire, they wore small crowns of green foliage and carried cascading blue and white carnations with corresponding greens.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, Kristine Sorteberg of Thief River Falls. Ring bearer was Jerrod Kalsnes, also of Thief River Falls. Both are cousins of the bride.

Dennis Rondorf of Fergus Falls, a cousin of the bride, served as best man and James Kotaska of Grand Forks, N.D., brother of the groom, was groomsman. The ushers were Gary Iverson of Moorhead, brother of the bride, and David Sluke of Fordville, N.D., cousin of the groom. All the men of the wedding party, together with the ring bearer, wore blue tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and black bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a red rose. His attendants' boutonnieres were blue carnations.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua two-piece dress. The mother of the groom wore a floor-length gown featuring a floral skirt and a black long-sleeved bodice.

Special guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Anna L. Iverson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Benston, grandparents of the bride; and Mrs. Marcella Foerster, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with red roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Mildred Rondorf and JoAnne Sluke, aunts of the bride and groom respectively, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Gail Fitch and Adeline Farmes, aunts of the bride.

Brenda Mathson presided at the guest book; Marilyn Laine and Sherri Weddel served the punch and Iris Chapman and Deborah Shaw were waitresses. All are friends of the bride. At the gift table were Theresa Kotaska, sister of the groom, and Candace Rude, friend of the bride.

Following a brief wedding trip into North Dakota, the newlyweds are at home in this city at 417 West Third Street. The bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and both are employed in this city. The bride, who is also a graduate of the Hibbing Area Vocational Institute, is employed by Falls Clinic; and the groom, a graduate of Bemidji State college, is employed by Holcomb and Knutson Accounting and company.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

by Ellen M. Spray

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mark Twain Second Graders

Mary and Jane, this is in answer to your questions, "Why did our mothers cry when we told them that we were getting married? Don't our parents want us to be happy?"

Of course your parents want happiness for you. Like all parents they would do anything to assure you of continued bliss. However that is impossible. We live in a very real world, without magic potions, fairy wands, or castles where "everyone lives happily ever after." Happiness is not a cloak that can be thrown over your shoulders, nor is it something that anyone else can give you. Rather it is a state of contentment that you and only you can achieve. It is not a fleeting thing like the excitement you experience in receiving a new dress, or the thrill of being chosen homecoming queen. Happiness and fun are two different things. Your parents know the difference.

Why did your mothers cry? There could be many reasons. First, you have one year left of high school. Your parents had hopes of you completing your high school education, and maybe college, before you married. Even though you plan to continue your studies, your mothers know that your carefree school days will be a thing of the past. To your school activities, you are adding new responsibilities.

Marriage is a serious undertaking. There are many adjustments that you will have to make, chores that your mother has taken care of that will, after marriage, become your responsibility. It will be your responsibility to plan and make the meals, three times a day, wash the clothes, keep the house or apartment clean and wash the dishes. (The dirty dishes that you leave on the table at night will still be there in the morning.)

Balancing the budget is one of the major problems after marriage. After the rent, utilities and payment on the furniture are made, there may not be enough money left for that weekly movie or the "eating-out" that was a custom during the courting days. Your parents remember the days they "did without". They were hoping that you would be more mature before you were faced with the same problems.

And last but not least, marriages generally produce babies. That is as it should be; marrige first, than babies. Your mothers know how lovable those little babies are, but they also know that babies need 24-hour care, care when you are tired, when you are asleep and when you are sick. Your mothers know that when you become a parent, you will be faced with a life-long responsibility. Your mothers hoped that you would be more mature before you were faced with those great responsibilities.

From the day you were born, your mothers had visions of you in a wedding gown. They have known that the day would come when the apron strings would be cut. Are you Mary and Jane, mature enough to have those apron strings severed?

Today's recipe comes from the second grades at Mark Twain. The origin of stone soup is interesting. Ask one of the pupils of that grade to tell you the story.

In making the soup, any stone may be used. The stones used at Mark Twain are making the rounds at the homes of the boys and girls in that class. The amount of ingredients to be used will depend upon the number in your family.

Thanks boys and girls for sharing your recipe with Kitchen Karnival.

Stone Soup

Peel and cut into small pieces the following:

First Payment For Taxpayers To Be In Today

Many Minnesota citizens who do not have enough taxes withheld are required to pay their first installment of 1974 federal income taxes no later than today, April 15.

Total estimated tax due may be paid in four equal installments, April 15, June 17, September 16 and January 15.

"Many taxpayers realize that they meet the requirements for filing a tax declaration at this time of year," said R.C. Voskull, IRS district director for Minnesota. "Generally, when the taxpayer will owe IRS more than $100 not covered by withholding, he should file a declaration of estimated tax. A form 1040-ES voucher must accompany the first installment."

Taxpayers who filed a declaration of estimated tax 1st year should have received an estimated tax package in the mail, which includes Forms 1040-ES and pre-addressed envelopes for making the 1974 declaration and payments. Also included in the package are a worksheet and instructions.

IRS Publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Declaration of Estimated Tax," is available free from the Minnesota IRS offices to provide more details on the payment of estimated tax.

Toll-free telephone numbers are listed on page 2 of the instrutions with the 1040 tax package and page 7 of the 1040A tax package. Local numbers are also listed in some instances.

"This service allows taxpayers anywhere inthe state the opportunity of obtaining tax information without long distance charges, the Director said.

Beatle Owners Asked To Check Safety Belts

Volkswagon owners are advised by the Minnesota department of public safety to check their seat belts for possible weakening by contact with battery acid.

National highway traffic safety administration has discovered that under certain conditions the contamination can occur on all Type I (Beatle) and Type III vehicles manufactured from 1968 through 1972. The battery in these models is located under the rear seat cushion and overfilling results in accumulations of acid along the floor, which attacks anything it comes in contact with.

If the belts are not stored in the clips installed along the upper roof ridge for this purpose, they may fall behind the seat cushions and come into contact with the acid.

Owners of these models should not only take care that the belts are properly stored, they should also take precautions against overfilling the battery.

Highway Patrol OCS Begins For 23 Candidates

Twenty-fourth officer candidate school conducted by the Minnesota state patrol was started Monday, April 1, at the training center in Arden Hills. Twenty-three men were chosen to attend the school from among several hundred applicants who applied early this year.

Attending from northwestern Minnesota are Ruben Mendez and Robert Miller, Crookston and J. Bruce Preece of Bemidji.

The 16-week school provides extensive training in all aspects of traffic enforcement, including courses in geography of the state, community relations, public speaking, law, traffic supervision, accident investigation and many other subjects related to the work of the patrol.

The training period for this school was extended four weeks over previous schools to include training in breathalyzer operation (an instrument used by the Patrol to measure the blood-alcohol level of persons suspected of driving under the influence of alcohol), pursuit driving, and a week of patrol work with troopers on duty.

Lt. Colonel Jerry Kittridge, acting patrol chief, stated that one of the goals set by the patrol was met when four of the 23 candidates attending the school came from minority groups. Although the patrol has always accepted applications from minorities, the percentage of those who applied was very low, and at the present time there are only two from minority groups working as troopers in the state.

Kittridge explained that an effort was made last fall to bring more minorities into the patrol through a specialized minority recruiting campaign conducted by the patrol and the state personnel department.

This year's class also includes two out-of-state residents which is a first. Previously, only Minnesota residents who have lived here two years or more were permitted to apply as candidates. This requirement has since been lifted allowing non-residents to apply for the position.

Airline Traffic Here Down For First Quarter

North Central airlines traffic at the Thief River Falls airport is down slightly from a year ago, according to three-month unofficial totals of passengers boarding or deplaining here.

With 777 boardings in March, compared to 769 a year ago, the three-month boarding total stands at 2,296—down 78 from a year ago. Persons deplaining totaled 795—down from 832 in March a year ago—with the three-month total of 2,189 this year down 109 from 1973.

Over its entire system North Central had a 16 per cent increase in March, sending first quarter boardings over the one-million mark for the first time in the company's history.

David E. Moran, vice president of traffic and sales, said 385,831 passengers were carried in March, compared with 331,838 in 1973.

"Many people are apparently leaving their cars at home because of increased gasoline costs and the 55 mile an hour speed limit," Moran observed. "Traffic has increased substantially on the short-haur flights serving our smaller cities."

Through the first three months this year, North Central has carried 1,043,777 passengers for a 10 per cent gain. Revenue passenger miles climbed eight per cent to 246 million.

USDA Approves Two Alternate Food Products

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) recently amended regulations for the National school lunch, school breakfast, and special food service programs to allow use of two "alternate" foods. An alternate food is one which substitutes for all or part of a required meal component under these programs. A proposed amendment to allow the use of a third alternate food--textured meat alternates--was reissued for additional comments.

USDA's food and nutrition service (FNS) approved these two alternate foods:

"Enriched Macaroni Products with Fortified Protein"--One ounce of this dry product will meet not more than one-half of the meat alternate lunch requirement of the national school lunch and the special food service programs and must be combined with one or more ounces of cooked meat, poultry, fish or cheese.

"Formulated Grain-Fruit Products"--When served with one cup of milk, two to four ounces of a product in this category will meet the breakfast requirement under the school breakfast or the special food service program. When served with one-half cup of milk, juice, fruit or vegetable, it will meet the "supplemental" requirement (the mid-morning or mid-afternoon snack) under the special food service program.

Both alternate foods may come in a variety of forms. Meals which include these alternate foods will be eligible for USDA cash reimbursment provided the products meet FNS nutritional and physical specifications.

A proposal allowing use of three alternate foods to meet meal requirements wa announced by USDA on April 10, 1973. Comments were invited from interested persons and 110 individuals responded.

Although there were a substantial number of adverse comments, USDA determined after a thorough review that approval of two of the alternate foods was warranted. Use of these foods by schools and service institutions will be only on a voluntary basis. These alternate foods are an economical means of providing nutritious foods to a greater number of children, and they also increase flexibility in meal planning.

On April 23, 1946, the first glider commercial freight service was inaugurated by Winged Cargo, Inc., at Philadelphia, employing a DC-3 towing a Waco glider. Stops were made at Miami, Fla., Havana, Cuba, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

"I regard this gathering of professionals as being in all probability—and if we choose to make it that—the most important decision making group in Minnesota outside of the state legislature."

MEA executive director A. L. (Bud) Gallop, who also is chief lobbyist for the MEA, stated:

"Never before in our history (MEA is in its 112th year) have the activities of the MEA been so widely and carefully observed and reported upon. Your activities have literally created for us the image that we have long sought—an image of power, confidence and responsibility.

"While newspaper editors commiserate about the fact that antiteacher legislation is difficult if not impossible to get authored, and story after story in the metropolitan press refers to us as a powerful lobby, we must be mindful of the fact that whatever power has been acquired by this profession could just as easily be lost if our actions are irresponsible."

Besides adopting hundreds of resolutions, the delegates passed one that "strongly urges that the governor call a special session of the Legislature prior to July 20, 1974 to act on raising per pupil state aid and local levy limits by an amount at least equal to the cost of living in those districts that are currently in a financial crisis."

If a special session is not called by July 20, the delegates decided, "the MEA will use all of its available resources to assist those affected locals in preparing for collective action to commence in the fall of 1974."

Delegates also placed heavy emphasis on the legislative objectivies of the MEA, stressing improvement in teacher retirement, saying, "We urge the legislature to enact legislation that will permit all teachers to take advantage of the improved benefits of the formula plan as adopted by the 1973 legislature."

They also urged the legislative retirement study commission "to explore possible ways to improve" existing teacher retirement law by providing for (1) retirement based on years of service rather than age; (2) reopening of payments for service rendered before membership in the Teachers Retirement association (TRA) was mandatory; and (3) a five-year vesting system.

In other legislative objectives, delegates urged: (1) The legislature and the governor carefully monitor the negotiations process...to insure that "all parties engage in the process as intended—negotiate, mediate, arbitrate and lawful strike";

(2) The legislature to equalize maintenance expenditures upward for programs in all school districts based on educational needs and costs;

(3) That legislation be passed updating and expanding pupil weighting factors and staff experience factors to reflect more accurately the educational needs of school districts;

(4) The Minnesota legislature to accept fully the costs for any new programs and-or responsibilities it requires of individual public school districts;

(5) Passage of legislation that would permit school districts to levy for additional monies, beyond the 30-mill limit, to provide for cost of living increases; and

(6) Passage of legislation that would allow school districts to levy for the costs of group insurance plans, employer retirement contributions and employer social security contributions.

Oklee Donors Help Support Shrine Circus

Oklee area business and professional people have purchased 160 advance tickets for the annual Shrine circus to be held at UND fieldhouse in Grand Forks on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 26-28; for the use of Oklee young people and residents of the Twin Valley nursing home.

Traditionally, sixth graders are bused by the school to the Friday 4 p.m. circus opening and it is expected that about 50 will attend together with chaperones. On Saturday morning, Oklee scouts will attend at 10 a.m. together with their leaders and this trip, now in its fourth year, is underwritten by Alvin Jensen and Wally Groberg, who head up ticket sales and shrine activities for Oklee.

Tickets purchased this year by Oklee business will also handle the financial sponsorship of 80 residents and 15 staff, including nurses and bus drivers, of the Lutheran Memorial home at Twin Valley. This group will see the Saturday morning circus and have special lower level seating, next to the floor and will have ringside attention. The group ranges in age from 72 to 88 years and there are seven wheel chair residents. Oklee businessmen sponsored this group two years ago.

Adult tickets are available at the door of the UND fieldhouse prior to each performance at $3 each. Profits from the Shrine circus, held nationwide, goes to support the 12 Shrine hospitals for crippled children. The closest to this area is at St. Paul. All races and creeds are considered for treatment and those in need are taken care of, whether or not individual funds or insurance are available.

DFL Will Hear Testimony About State Platform

Minnesota Democratic-Farmer-Labor party will hold a state-wide hearing to take testimony from party members, representatives of interested groups and the general public regarding the content of and proposals for their state platform. The hearing is scheduled for Saturday in Minneapolis.

Hank Fischer, state DFL chairman, said he hopes people will take full advantage of this opportunity to have their opinions heard and those of the organizations they represent.

Work on the state DFL platform began last December with the organization of a pre-platform commission to take testimony, hold hearings, assemble resolutions and local party platforms and review the party's task force reports.

Fischer said while the platform process began at the precinct caucuses, which were open to the public, that the commission believes many interested groups and individuals will want to present their views through this kind of forum. Persons who wish to testify at the hearing should keep their statements brief and have written materials for the 16-member commission, if possible.

The hearing will be held at the Minneapolis Public Library, Room 310, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and will run through to 4 p.m. Persons wishing to testify should contact the DFL state office, 730 E. 38th St., Mpls. 612-827-5421, in order to reserve a time.

Results of this hearing will be a part of the commission's final report to the state convention platform committee. The state platform committee is composed of two members from each congressional district, who will be elected at the upcoming congressional district conventions. The pre-platform commission's membership has two members from each congressional district elected by their central committees.

1973 State Fire Losses Exceed $38 Million

Property damages exceed $38 million and 78 lives were lost as a result of fires in Minnesota during 1973, state fire marshal Wes Werner reported recently.

Property losses were up $8 million over 1972 and the number of deaths was down just one.

Of those who died, 20 were 19 years of age and younger, and 27 were over 51. Children aged six and under accounted for 12 deaths.

Injuries were suffered by 293 persons, with the largest group, from age 20 to 35, accounting for 51 injuries.

The percentage of fires in dwellings and causes remain about the same as other years, Werner said, with about half occurring in homes or multiple dwellings. Careless smoking habits, children playing with matches or cigaret lighters, and faulty wiring again were the leading causes. In the wiring category, Werner said that most of the fault lay in faulty extension cords and over-fused and overloaded circuits.

"When the tabulations are in for 1974, we expect to see an increase in fires started by electrical causes, since many families are relying more heavily on electric heaters for supplementing heat.

"One of the best protective measures in the home is an early warning fire detector sytem. At the very least, every home should be equipped with a good fire extinguisher. With an extinguisher handy, most small fires can be contained before they get out of hand."

He cautioned, however, that if the fire is within a wall or some other enclosed space, the fire department should be called to be sure that it is completely out.

"The final step," he added, "is to repair or replace the cause of the fire in the case of wiring, appliances or heating equipment."

Lost Benefits On Food Stamps Can Be Claimed

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) recently published guidelines which require that lost benefits be made available to persons who have had their food stamps wrongfully denied, delayed or terminated.

USDA's food and nutrition service said anyone who believes that he may be entitled to recover lost benefits should check with his local food stamp office.

The guidelines require that retroactive benefits must be made available to persons who (1) are vertified to participate in the food stamp program, (2) have requested a fair hearing on or after July 31, 1972, and (3) are determined by the fair hearing process to be entitled to lost benfits. The benefits are to be refunded by reducing a household's purchase requirement until the deductions equal the amount of benefits lost.

The guidelines were previously telegraphed to state agencies in January, but indications are that they have not reached all local food stamp officers. A second telegram has been sent which again directs state welfare commissioners to make lost benefits avaiable to eligible food stamp households.

The guidelines are being published as the result of a July 1972 lawsuit filed by seven applicants who had been erroneously denied food stamps. In October 1972, the U.S. District Court in Washington D.C. ruled in favor of the applicants and ordered USDA to credit all food stamp households that had been victims of administrative errors. The U.S. Court of Appeals upheld the District Court's decision, and the U.S. Supreme Court in December 1973 refused to hear a futher USDA appeal.

The January telegram to the States is scheduled to be published in the Federal Register on Wednesday, April 10.

Price Of Land In RRV Jumps By 33 Per Cent

Decline in Red River Valley farm land prices since 1970 was reversed last year with a 33 per cent jump in prices paid for land from 1972 to 1973, according to University of Minnesota land economists Philip M. Raup and Maruce Mandale.

Farmers expanding their farms accounted for 90 per cent of the purchases in 1973, regaining their share of the market lost to other types of buyers in 1972. Operating farmers particularly had suffered during this trend.

Expansion buyers paid $202 an acre for land, as compared to the $219 per acre paid by agricultural investors in the Red River Valley. This indicates renewed vigor in the market for agricultural land in northwestern Minnesota, they add.

The overall average price of $201 paid per acre in 1973, as compared to $151 per acre in 1972, more than any other single figure points to new health for the Red River Valley farm economy.

Almost twice the number of sales in 1973 in the valley were of unimproved land, a big increase proportionally over any of the previous three years. Sales prices for unimproved land in 1973 were $190 per acre, the highest figure since 1970, but improved land sold for more than unimproved. In the non-valley area of northwestern Minnesota, sales of improved land were almost double those of unimproved.

Northland CC Drama Students Join Workshops

April 18 has been proclaimed by Governor Wendell Anderson as Minnesota community college fine arts festival day in Minnesota. Clinics, concerts, workshops and dramatic presentations will highlight the 1974 festival to be held on the campus of Concordia college, Moorhead, Thursday through Saturday.

Roger Vaughan, drama instructor at Northland community college, and several students will be participating in the workshops of the 1974 festival.

A special feature during the festival is the Illusion Theatre Mime Troupe which will present "Two Friends" on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the humanities center of Concordia college. The troupe will also give two workshops relating to the actor as part of the conference. These workshops will be held at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Friday in the humanities center and are open to the public.

The Illusion Theatre was founded by Michael Robins and Carol Harris in 1973 in Paris, as a performing outlet for them and other friends who were finishing up their studies in Paris.

The Illusion Theatre is now making the Twin Cities its home, where the members give regular classes and performances, with the hopes of enlarging the company and creating an audience who will learn to love and enjoy the art of mime as much as they do.

Weekly HEALTH TIP

Vitamin C is truly an essential and remarkable vitamin — especially as a detoxifying agent. This vitamin appears to cleanse the blood of any foreign substance. In sufficient quantities it can nullify the poisoning effect of fluorine, saccharine and other artificial sweeteners, benzene, lead, as well as toxic drugs. In the process, these substances "destroy" vitamin C, causing it to be used up and excreted, thus greatly increasing the need for it. Citrus fruits are the main natural source of vitamin C.

Thought For The Day

Yesterday was Easter Sunday which, in the Christian community, is the day for celebrating the raising of Jesus Christ from death, and the day for rejoicing over the new life each believer finds in Christ. Today is April 15 which, in the civil community, is the day for paying federal and state income taxes, and enjoying the rights and privileges of citizenship in a nation that has a good government.

I think there is a connection between the two days. But it is a connection that must be carefully understood. Jesus, the person raised on Easter, said "Give to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's" He was answering a question about whether it was right to pay taxes, for in paying taxes, the questioner suggested, a man was taking some of his devotion from God and giving it to the government. In our day the tendency is to say that there is no conflict—that church and government aid each other.

There has risen in America a national religion, the major doctrines of which are, God is supreme, man is basically decent and bound to his fellowman in a brotherhood of mutual concern, and that there will be a judgement after death on all men in which the good people will be rewarded and the evil people condemned.

That's not a bad religion from a civil point of view—it keeps the poor poor, but hopeful of reward someday; it supports government, for government works to do the mutual concerns: And it helps people think it is a good idea to pay taxes, for that's what good people do.

But it is a bad religion from an Easter point of view, for there is no Easter in it, and that's the pity. Easter is a statement about the holiness of God that judges the performance of people and governments daily, and finds them sinful and always near collapse. Easter gives hope to the poor of every social class, not just at the end of time, but each day. Easter, and the Resurrection of Jesus, proclaim that in Jesus Christ, God made the world new, free from the effect of death.

May all of Christ's men pay their taxes today with full knowledge that their government, probably the best government man can devise, is judged and found guilty of failure by the perfect government in the reign of the risen Christ. But let all men know that God himself, in Jesus Christ, has acted to reconcile sinful governments to his holiness so that men can enjoy the fruits of good government here on earth.

Easter and April 15 do not go hand in hand in a mutual aid society; Easter judges April 15, condemns it, and raises it to life—that is the connection.

Goodridge Lutheran Parish

Which Way To Go?

As the public indignation over the pay raise—which a majority of the state legislature approved for legislators in the death throes of the session—gradually subsides following a veto by Gov. Wendell Anderson, more prominent attention must be paid to which way we can expect the Minnesota legislature to go.

Persons who for some time have been advocating a smaller, full-time professional legislature were heartened by the pay raise attempt. It gave them another sounding board to bounce their thoughts around the state.

Bill Sumner, editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, stated the following about the possible future:

"What the legislature keeps avoiding is any sensible discussion on its direction. If it is to be a citizen legislature, then it should remain that way, meeting in short session, keeping its hands out of the affairs of the towns and cities.

"If it is to be a professional legislature, meeting, as it is now, almost full time, then the ranks should be cut at least in half and the pay raised even higher.

"California, with 20 million people, is governed by a 120-man legislature, 40 in the Senate and 80 in its Assembly. Pay is $19,500 plus expenses. Colorado, with 2.5 million citizens, gets by with a 100-man legislature, and the pay is $7,500 annually. . . .

"Our thundering herd is, of course, 201. It is among the largest legislatures and whether it is to be a citizen legislature or not it is still too big; it is big enough to be directed by a handful of men, many of them called lobbyists."

Well, we don't buy Sumner's reasoning, particularly on legislative size. Certainly it must be easier to influence or control a small group than a large one. Decreasing the size would concentrate the power, and we don't like the situation which such concentration would imply.

Minnesotans have had enough experience with the federal bureaucracy to know what to expect from full-time professional lawmakers. To suggest that Minnesota needs the same type of legislative representation is a disservice to our people. A citizen legislature, whereby the senators and representatives spend much of their lives living among their constituents, must be the most representative of the needs and desires of the people.

It may not be the most "efficient" type of government operation, but we can't afford the kind of efficiency we get at the federal level. It may be awkward and unwieldy, and frustrating to the political party leaders who like to keep the reins tight on a close-knit group, but it is fair to the majority of individual citizens who like to have their representatives listen to them instead of the party.

Lest we forget that outstate Minnesota is being sapped of its political strength by the apportionment numbers game, consider this column excerpt from the North Hennepin Post:

"If anyone from around the state wonders where the bulk of Minnesota population resides—its right here in Hennepin county. With about one million residents, this county has approximately one-fourth of the entire state population and about half of the population of the seven-county metropolitan area. The city of Minneapolis contributes almost a half million, the suburbs the remainder, which is just over a half million people. Bloomington is the largest suburb in the state with about 90,000 people, followed by St. Louis Park with around 50,000—and both are in Hennepin county, of course."

With Hennepin county having a fourth of the people, it also has a fourth of the legislators. Add Ramsey county and a couple of others and it is easy to see where legislative strength lies. The fewer legislators there are and the more time they spend in St. Paul the smaller the impact out-state Minnesota will have on influencing legislation. It would be all the easier for maneuvering such as the legislative pay raise to be accomplished without fear of public retaliation at the polls.

It was a mistake for Minnesota to adopt the party system for election of legislators. It was another mistake to go to annual sessions which place an unnecessary burden on legislators' time. It would be tragic to make another mistake and go to a smaller, full-time professional legislature.

1040 And Smile . . . .

The 16th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, legalizing federal income taxes, was adopted in 1913. It began as an amendment to a bill in Congress lowering the tariff on imports. The idea was that the small deficit from reduced tariff receipts could be taken care of by a tiny tax on prosperous incomes.

On incomes from $4,000 to $20,000 the bite was one per cent. On $100,000 it was four per cent; on $500,000 it was six per cent. Few people made more than $4,000 and few opposed the idea of the tax. It didn't seem important at the time. There must be a lesson there.

And if you are still smarting a little from coughing up to sustain the government coffers, maybe this commentary from Rev. Nevin E. Kendall of Elkins, W. Va., will make you feel a little better:

The author quotes from the 13th chapter of Romans, where Paul states flatly that government is ordained of God. Paul, speaking of a Roman government not remembered for its compassion, nonetheless adds that "for the same reason you also pay taxes, for the authorities are ministers of God. Pay all of them their due, taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due."

Rev. Kendall adds, "I certainly do not question our right and even our duty to object if we believe that taxes are excessive or unfair, or used for a purpose that is improper or unnecessary.

"At the same time, I suggest that Paul's words should not be dismissed too lightly. When we object to taxes we may have good reasons, but I suggest there is also involved a failure to recognize how much the quality of life that we enjoy, and even our opportunities to earn money, are dependent upon the effective functioning of government. And I suspect there may also be an element of plain old-fashioned selfishness, a reluctance to let our money be used to help meet the needs of others who are less fortunate."

Borrowed Nonsense

A smart young man has a cool way of trapping pretty girls. It consists of three questions: "I have three questions, each to be answered yes or no. The first is: Will you promise to answer this and the next question truthfully?" Smiling, the girls always agree. He continues: "The second is: If my third question is, 'Will you date me tonight?' will you answer that question the same way you answer this one?"

Presto, the girls are trapped, for no matter how they answer the second question, they have to say yes to the third. Try it, fellas!

Politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it everywhere, diagnosing it incorrectly and applying the wrong remedies.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

As the Minnesota Legislature voted themselves a 43 per cent increase in wages, some disturbing questions come to mind. The matter of state government in a society becoming more and more dependent on federal funds is extremely important to our way of life. If regionalization as proposed and actually already in progress is not curtailed and stopped dead in its tracks, state government will be of little importance. If paying our legislators more money so busy middle income and middle aged men can serve, it is perhaps for the best. Senator Fitzsimmons made this point last week at the Marshall County GOP Conventon in Warren. He said the extra money was necessary so men like himself and others with children to educate and businesses to keep going could still take time off to serve in the State Legislature. He said that there is a trend now for the younger men without families and strong business ties to increase and on the other end of the scale for an increase in men who are semi-retired and over 60 years of age. I tend to agree that although there is nothing wrong with young men and older men in our legislature, it is also important to have those in between who are in the business or professional or farming industries and who are active to also represent us. They are on a day by day awareness of the problems of taxation and production and their knowledge is needed in our law making process.

I'm concerned about increased costs as all tax-payers are. The great increase in cost is not salary but rather an increased frequency of legislative sessions and in having longer sessions. This points toward a full time legislature and it is a real possibility.

Sen. Ed Gearty, DFL, Mpls., said, "I think we have to face the fact that we are headed toward a full-time legislature." In my opinion, nothing could be worse. This would eliminate just the kind of men we need. It is necessary for those who represent the people to stay close to those people and their problems. Moving to St. Paul to live or to any state capital to live takes the law maker away from those he is to represent.

The old maxim that the government which governs least is the best is still true. It was reported to me personally that many young representatives in St. Paul are full of ideas and well meaning plans to change our lives supposedly for the better. They have solutions for problems we don't have. The brute force of time alone will eliminate active businessmen and farmer who don't feel able to take more and more time off to serve in State Government. This is not good and it is reasonable to expect more efficiency and less time spent in making our laws. There are experts in any field the State might want to consider. These men are more qualified to do research work and information gathering than our legislators. We should use these resources even more than we do

I do not object to increase in wages for legislators. If quality can be maintained by paying more, then it is good. If it points to less successful people going for the increased wages and longer sessions then I'd say no. We don't need or want a full time professional legislature in state government.

4-H CLUBS

Viking Volcanoes

Meeting of the Viking Volcanoes 4-H club was held on April 4 at the Viking school.

Roll call was answered by members responding with their middle name. The club decided to make population signs for the north and south ends of Viking, to paint the cemetery building and repoar and paint up the skating rinks as community pride projects.

Demonstrations were given by Marjorie Krohn on how to transplant flowers with a project talk being presented by Vance Peters on woodworking, Kevin Anderson on plants and soils, Brenda Johnson and Shelly Shern on flower gardening, Darrel Nelson on dairy; and Paula Peters on rabbits.

Next meeting of the Volcanoes will be May 2.

City View

City View 4-H club held its April meeting on April 2 at the Thief River Falls municipal auditorium. Randi Myhrer, club president, conducted the meeting. Roll call response was the name of a favorite spring flower. The secretary's report was read by Holly Olson with Ricky Ayers presenting the treasurer's report. Mrs. Duane Olson reported on a recent session of the leader's council.

Plays and share-the-fun, which are scheduled for April 22 through 25, and parents' night were discussed.

Project records were brought to the meeting so members could receive any help they might need and a special project meeting was held before the regular session.

Demonstrations were presented after the meeting. Randy Ayers demonstrated a trivet, Diane Bach showed candles and John Scholin explained parts of a dog.

Robbie Ayers presented a project talk on conservation and Cathy Dyrdal discussed flower gardening.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

by Arch N. Booth

Executive Vice President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The New Left seems to be acquiring one quality it has so conspicuously lacked: subtlety. "If we expect to be listened to," they have learned, "we have to take a fresh look and build our own plan, abandoning all the old sacred texts on what is to be done."

I have on my desk a packet of material from an outfit calling itself the "Peoples Bicentennial Commission." The pamphlets and tabloid-style newspapers it contains are well designed and, for the most part, skillfully written. The illustrations are illustrations we associate with the American Revolution. Some of the rhetoric is rhetoric of the American Revoltion. And yet....

Let me give you a little of the flavor of this material. From their publication entitled "Student and Teacher Programs for a Peoples Bicentennial":

"In the end, the patriots of 1776 should teach us not only patience, but that revolutionizing individual institutions in society, without a societal revolution is meaningless."

Three guesses what they have in mind by "societal revolution."

Elsewhere in the same publication, high school students are advised to issue "a Declaration of Student Independence to dramatize the oppression common to all students."

Students are also given helpful "how to" hints on taking over the school newspaper, coercing the school administration and faculty, and dominating the selection of textbooks.

Put so bluntly, this outfit's program may sound ludicrous. Unfortunately, it is far from that. It is propaganda as skillful as any I've seen. So well-done is the material that if one of your children brought it home from school and you just glanced at it, you would probably notice nothing wrong.

Further, the reasoning—though specious—has a surface plausibility that will appeal to the gullible and the unsophisticated. The "rights" of school students, for example, are compared unfavorably to those of adult citizens.

The propaganda is not all aimed at students. There is a little something for everyone. Society's very real problems are cited as proof that Americans are "oppressed" by a conspiracy of the rich and the powerful.

According to leftist theory, people who work to alleviate these problems are at best fools and at worst traitors to the true cause, because the problems are an inherent part of an evil system and can be cured only by changing the system. Therefore, says the Peoples Bicentennial Commission, let's "continue" with the American Revolution.

The P.B.C. material is heavily larded with quotations from the Founding Fathers and their contemporaries, most of them carefully selected to create an impression that the old boys were really a fire-breathing bunch of egalitarian collectivists.

Ironically, the U.S. taxpayer evidently footed the bill for at least some of the research on this project. The P.B.C. received a small ($7,210) grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, a federal agency, in the summer of 1972, for scholarly research on "the views of the non-leadership element of the American people during the period of the American Revolutionary War."

I can't really fault the National Endowment, however, for two reasons: First, I don't think its staff had any idea what the "young scholars" who received the grant planned to do with the fruits of their research. Second, $7,210 wouldn't buy much of the kind of material the P.B.C. is offering. The group is obviously well funded. Where it comes from would be interesting to know.

The ultimate irony is that the "young scholars'" research does not go far enough back into our past to tell them what they really need to know.

Go all the way back and you learn that both the Jamestown and Plymouth colonies began as communes of a sort. It didn't work—it never has—and to save themselves they tried a genuinely radical idea: economic freedom. That worked.

Keep an eye out for the P.B.C.'s material in your community—especially the schools. Don't make martyrs out of them by overreacting. They'd like that. Just demand that partisan political propaganda in the schools be labeled as such, and that none of it be distributed or otherwise subsidized at public expense. Be prepared for attempts to take over, or otherwise disrupt, Bicentennial events in your community.

The P.B.C. hands out a yellow lapel button with a symbol that was used on several flags of the Revolutionary War era. The symbol is a coiled rattlesnake. It fits.

On March 9, 1942, the Army Air Forces were given separate identity in the War Department reorganization which made both Ground Forces and Services of Supply autonomous.

Personal Rapid Transit Catching Up With Utopia

by Mike Finley
University Staff Writer

That picture you carry in your mind of you and your family riding an air-car or a monorail to an outing at the zoo or one of the lakes—it's pretty far-fetched, isn't it?

Ever since the beginning of the industrial revolution, people have dreamed of convenient technological solutions to ordinary problems, like getting around town without polluting the air, without getting mugged at a subway station, without getting stalled in a rush-hour traffic jam.

But all the talk about practical mass transit is just a lot of Buck Rogers Utopian nonsense, right?

Wrong, says J. Edward Anderson, University of Minnesota professor of mechanical engineering. Exactly that kind of urban transit technology exists at this very moment. It's called PRT, it stands for personal rapid transit and it seems to be one "wave of the future" whose hour has finally come.

Personal rapid transit is officially defined by engineers and planners as a class of fixed-guideway transit systems, in which automated vehicles the size of small automobiles carry people between any two stations in a network of slim guideways. These guideways may serve certain activity areas like airports and shopping districts or may span the entire length and breadth of a city the size of Chicago.

What makes PRT different from other systems, like trains, buses and so-called "people-movers," is that a given PRT car is occupied by a single individual or by a very small grup of people who are travelling together.

PRT vehicles may be restricted to guideways or they may be able to work on existing street systems.

Anderson's central thesis is one with which few experts disagree: that the industrial nations' heavy reliance on the automobile has produced an urban transporation tangle that can only get worse in the next few years, and that the only solution which takes into account both sound principles of urban planning and the unchanging principles of human nature is personal rapid transit.

On top of all that, Anderson said, PRT is the cheapest of the known major modes of transportation, costing less to put a person within walking distance of his destination, trip by trip, than an efficiently designed and operated bus system or train system.

"The great advantage of PRT is in the combination of problems it solves," Anderson said. "One of the greatest problems is the amount of city space used for freeways. What has resulted is an over-reliance on the automobile, and an urban sprawl that isn't acceptable in economic or ecological terms.

"All this points out the tremendous need our society has to uncouple the two things that have always gone hand in hand, transportation and oil," he said.

Anderson has a big investment in his advocacy of personal rapid transit—the amount of research, writing and promotion he has done on PRT since 1968.

Anderson edits a semi-monthly newsletter, "new Concepts in Urban Transportation," keeps up on a constant writing schedule for popular and profesional science journals and was the hot of the world's first and second PRT conferences in 1971 and 1973.

From those conferences, which brought together the transit technologies of dozens of nations, Anderson edited Volumes I and II of "Personal Rapid Transit."

Perhaps more important than Anderson's communicatons with others in his field is his communication with the people who will be most affected by new developments in mass transportation—everyday people who will be using it.

"What I've discovered is that people especially like the security of PRT, where they don't have to stop and pick up strngers every block or so," Andrson said.

"I've also been in contact with sociologists and psychologists, studying ways to design systems that don't antagonize, in order to minimize vandalism," he said. "We do think that there is probably a good compromise somewhere between personal privacy and personal security, and we're looking into it."

Anderson said PRT won't force people out of their cars, but will provide an alternative to the automobile.

The 1974 legislature appropriated $300,000 for transportation research, and if some of this money was available, along with federal funds, a test track could be constructed over the state fairgrounds by 1978, Anderson said.

"A lot of what we're talking about seems very futuristic," he added, "as if we're trying to catch up with Utopia. Turning city streets into grassy 'linear parks' is a faraway-sounding thing, But the technology is here now.

"All we have to do is get started," he said. "A city with PRT is simply a lot nicer place to live in."

Tree Planting Can Cut Costs Of Home Heating

A recent test conducted with two identical experimental houses in South Dakota revealed a way that fuel consumption in one of the two houses was reduced by 40 per cent. Here's how it happened.

The two side-by-side houses were exactly the same in all details except one. One house was sheltered on three sides (east, west, and north) with a windbreak of trees. That house was exposed to a wind velocity that measured 71 per cent less than the other, with fuel consumption 40 per cent lower during the winter of the test. In another similar experiment a house with trees planted on only one side, the north, used 25 per cent less fuel than its unprotected neighbor.

In the face of current fuel shortages and rising prices, the American Association of Nurserymen is giving special attention to energy-saving facts such as this. "Nature has gifts which have been available to us since the beginning of time that can cooperate with us in our conservation of energy resources. It is simply a matter of knowing about them and using them properly," the association says.

The kind of homes we have been building over the last several decades, the nursery people say, are really very wasteful users of heating energy. So long as oil was cheap and, in the public mind at least, inexhaustible, it was cheaper to install a big furnace and buy the excessive fuel needed than to make the houses really efficient in their energy conservation. The result is that we now have millions of poorly insulated houses. Reconstruction, with the installation of effective insulation, is probably going to be necessary in the face of the diminishing supplies of heating fuel, but equally important can be the establishment of efficient wind barrier plantings.

The South Dakota study is not an isolated example. Much basic research has been conducted in the plains states by the agricultural experiment station at Kansas state college, as well as other institutions. Spokesmen for the nursery industry recognize that the differences between sheltered and unsheltered residences would be more dramatic in the wind-swept plains country than elsewhere. the more sheltered eastern states, for instance, which are not subject to such constant winds in winter.

But in a comparable eastern calculation the fuel consumption in the same house before and after an evergreen windbreak was planted showed a saving of 10 per cent in fuel use after the planting. In terms of national fuel consumption, that eastern experience is much more significant because there are thousands of houses in that area for every one on the Great Plains.

Translated into dollar savings, even minor reductions of fuel consumption are highly significant for the homeowner. Modest investments in the installation of trees arranged to serve as a windbreak can give many decades of increasingly important fuel savings in the years ahead.

The American Association of Nurserymen points out that the location of windbreaks is the key to their effectiveness. Most cold winter winds throughout the nation come from the north or the west, so windbreaks should be located on those sides, with an extension on the eastern side whereever space permits. The south side should be left open to permit the sun to enter.

In many experiments with anemometers it has been shown that the maximum wind reduction occurs at a distance of from four to six times the height of a windbreak, so the plantings should be made at about the distance from the house. In other words, if the fully grown trees will be 15 feet high, they will have their best wind barrier effect if they are placed some 60 to 90 feet from the house.

With that kind of reasoning in mind it is wise to select a rapidly growing species of tree, and, preferably ones which will reach from 1 to 1½ times the height of the house at maturity. As an example, a 20 foot house would benefit best from a hedge of tall evergreens located some 80 to 120 feet from the north side of the house. A single row of evergreens is effective, but a double or triple row is even more so.

Any reputable garden center or landscape firm can give specific advice as to the most effective types of windbreak plantings for your own situation.

Dessert To Remember

Homemakers sometimes forget that there are many other uses for that ready-to-eat cereal their families enjoy for breakfast. One such use is in pie-making. It can be used in the crust, as a topping, or in the filling. This variation of a classic pecan pie recipe calls for Post Grape-Nuts Brand Cereal to be used in the filling. The cereal adds a crunchy wholesome flavor that pecan pie lovers will enjoy.

Southern Pecan Pie

- ⅓ cup (about) Grape-Nuts Brand Cereal
- ⅓ cup warm water
- ¾ cup sugar
- 3 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup dark corn syrup
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ⅓ cup pecan halves
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pie shell

Combine cereal and water; let stand until water is absorbed. Meanwhile, blend sugar into eggs; add syrup, butter, vanilla, and salt. Fold in softened cereal and pecans. Pour into pie shell. Bake at 350° for 50 minutes, or until filling is puffed completely across the top. Cool. If desired, garnish each serving with prepared whipped topping.

Gas Shortage Need Not Slow Spring Camping

Current gasoline shortage need not dampen your spring wanderlust or your enjoyment of camping and the outdoors, states the automotive information council. Many recreational vehicle owners are discovering areas of scenic interest or camping facilities in their own backyards or at least within a 50-mile radius of their homes.

Recreational vehicle owners, who previously set their sights on distant horizons when fuel was more plentiful are now discovering that the shorter hops not only save gasoline, but may actually "extend" a vacation. Reducing the time spent in reaching a camping facility increases the time a family can actually spend camping. And to many, the fun of owning an RV starts when the traveling stops and the camping begins.

The types of RV units available range from tent trailers that are relatively inexpensive and easily towed behind a small car, to pickup truck campers that are installed on pickup beds, to luxurious motor homes that have conveniences such as lush carpeting, comfortable bucket seats, air conditioning and stereo tape decks.

If you are considering purchasing a recreational vehicle, here are some functional accessories you might want to consider in addition to the comfort options:

An electric (12V) pump to draw water from the storage tank to the sink.

If the camper has two or more gas appliances, consider a second LP tank equipped with an automatic switchover.

Your electrical package might include heavy duty (90 amp) batteries with a 110V-12V power converter plus a built-in battery charger and a connection for campground power. This makes it easier to keep your batteries fully charged. If your vehicle is not equipped with a roof air conditioner, this package will make it possible to get by without a costly power generator.

Outside storage compartments add valuable inside room, and are well suited for storing items like leveling jacks, camp chairs and road flares.

If you're contemplating buying a motor home, also investigate the engine options available. An underpowered vehicle strains the engine and reduces the marginal safety in passing situations.

Power brakes (preferably disc), power steering and automatic transmission (with optional cooler for longer life) take the hard work out of driving a fully "loaded" recreational vehicle.

Economist Says Real Economic Growth Is Gone

The recession-no recession argument is unimportant, but there is no contesting the fact that the six per cent rate of real economic growth enjoyed in 1972 and 1973 has been wiped out, according to economist Harvey N. Daniels of Minneapolis.

Led downward by recessionary conditions existing in the housing and automobile sectors, the first quarter 1974 output of total goods and services will be in minus territory by four per cent or more after adjusting for inflation. Whether the slowdown will be halted after that amount of decline or whether the downtrend persists will depend on future reactions of consumers, businessmen, policymakers and the oil-producing Arab nations.

"I find it difficult to accept the contention of some economists that recovery can now begin," the economist said. "Some additional time will have to elapse before consumers change their attitudes about large cars and suburban housing. Consumers, in fact, have only begun to repair their strained financial condition which resulted from a protracted spending spree. And with inflation numbers already in double digits, consumer spending is not likely to improve in the immediate future.

"Business has and will continue to cushion the extent of economic slowdown by maintaining strong increases in plant and equipment spending," he added. "New surveys of business fixed investment intentions recently have been completed with the U.S. department of commerce predicting a 13 per cent increase in 1974, and McGraw Hill an 18 per cent higher spending level than 1973. With shortages and delayed deliveries still a problem, actual spending may have to be stretched somewhat.

"Policymakers are continuing to maintain a more neutral posture than normally would be expected in periods of slowdown. This, we think, is appropriate in the face of inflation rates and the effects of supply constraints. However, a further weakening of demand factors and a rise in unemployment in this, an election year, are likely to produce greater effects to stimulate the economy," Daniels said.

The Spot Will Sponsor Area Band Jamboree

The Spot in Red Lake Falls is sponsoring a band jamboree to be held Sunday from 3 to 12 p.m. All area bands are invited to participate.

This jamboree is being held to allow band members to hear other bands play and so club owners and managers can hear the bands. Objective is that the jamboree will bring musicians closer together and help eliminate the feeling that every musician is a competitor. It is not known how long each band will play as it depends on how many bands participate.

Bands interested in playing may contact The Spot (phone 253-2888) for details.

Grooves Put In Highway For Safer Driving

A new form of grooved pavement that will help motorists maintain directional control in driving under wet pavement conditions and which contributes to safer stopping is a feature of Minnesota's newest interstate system freeway section. It is a coarse texture built into the outside lanes of a segment of interstate highway 94 in Maple Grove. A 12-mile section of I-94 northwest of the Twin Cities was opened to traffic last December 21.

"The grooved pattern is a part of the highway department's continuing effort to improve Minnesota's highways for the safety of the motoring public," highway commissioner Ray Lappegaard said. "The grooves in the concrete surface also help to prevent hydroplaning."

Hydroplaning is a condition that occurs on a wet pavement when the tires of a car are riding on a layer of water rather than on the surface of the highway. Grooving helps prevent hydroplaning by allowing water to drain from beneath the tires.

Unlike the symmetrical grooves cut into curves on highway by diamond-tipped circular saws, the new-type grooves are relatively shallow and are formed when the concrete is still in a plastic state. In the pavement finishing process, large spikes fastened across the edge of a burlap drag indent the wet surface. A variation of the "spike technique" involves the use of 10-inch-long welding rods spaced an inch apart on a horizontal bar that moves above the finished concrete surface.

Various techniques are being evaluated by the department's materials office, division of materials, research and standards. Grooving by the drag method does not add greatly to construction costs since contractors must apply a finish of some type on all highways, it was explained. The process is considerably less costly than that of a grooving machine equipped with diamond-tipped saws.

The spike or rod drag method will be used on construction this summer on a section of I-90 in the Lakefield area in southern Minnesota.

In evaluating the surface textures, periodic tests are made as to skid resistance and rideability of the pavements.

On the Maple Grove area freeway, bumpometer readings proved satisfactory, highway engineers found. The comment of one was "the motorist is not aware of anything new or different in the pavement as he rolls along. The grooving or new-type texture on I-94 would not be noticed unless it was pointed out to the individual."

Highway Dep't. Cites Rural Roads Progress

While the improvement of rural roads seems an intolerably slow process—geared as it is to highway user tax receipts—in retrospect much has been accomplished in providing the kinds of roads needed for further economic development.

In contrast to 1954, when there were 298 communities linked to outside markets only by roads closed to trucks of seven tons or more, there remain but 42 municipalities handicapped in that way on the trunk highway system today.

Of the 854 municipalities in the state, 740 are on the 12,200-mile trunk highway system. The system was founded in 1921 to link all county seats and major population centers. The other 114 communities are on road systems not the responsibility of the state.

Today there are 623 trunk highway communities with nine-ton, nonrestricted, all weather highway outlets, as compared to 429 in 1954. Today there are 75 communities with seven-ton capacity links to the outside as compared to only 14 in 1954.

Last year nine trunk highway communities had their road transportation facilities improved to carry seven-ton trucks. Another 16 had theirs upgraded to nine-ton all-weather routes, including three whose links to the outside had been restricted to loads under seven tons.

Asked how long it might take to provide all trunk highway communities with nine-ton, all-weather roads, highway commissioner Ray Lappegaard said that future improvements necessarily depend upon how much money is available for roads.

Citing diminishing highway user tax receipts resulting from the fuel shortage, as well as spiraling construction costs and the predicted end of federal Highway Fund financing in 1977, Lappegaard said that today even the timetable programmed for 'backbone' highway improvements is in doubt.

Safety Rules For Farm Equipment Are Proposed

Job safety rules that would require guarding of farm field equipment, farmstead equipment and cotton gins to protect agricultural employees, have been proposed by the U.S. department of labor.

The proposed standards, which would apply to farm employers with one or more employees (excluding immediate members of the family), would require that:

—Power take-off drives on all tractors and equipment be guarded no later than April of 1973.

—All other mechanical power transmission components be guarded on all equipment manufactured on or after Jan. 1, 1975, and on all equipment, regardless of manufacture date, by Jan. 1, 1976.

—Operators be instructed in safe operation and servicing of all equipment with which they are involved.

—Electrical equipment be designed so it cannot be started from a remote location while another person is servicing or adjusting it.

—Guards be kept in place while equipment is operating.

—All cotton gins be guarded by April 1, 1973.

The proposals would not apply to farm shop equipment or hand or portable power tools. Labor department's occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) announced this will be considered later.

According to national safety council data, 20 per cent of all farm employee injuries involve farm machinery.

OSHA's standards advisory committee on agriculture held five public meetings to study the problem and the proposed rules are largely the result of recommendations developed from those meetings.

Public comments or requests for a hearing on the proposal should be submitted by March 8 to the OSHA Office of Standards, Room 203-MNWA, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210.

English Teacher Workshop Set At Bemidji State

A workshop on "High School English and Career Education" will be offered at Bemidji state college June 24-July 5, with special emphasis in the workshop for high school teachers of English.

According to Lorraine F. Cecil, director, the workshop will consider questions like whether or not English can contain career education aspects, how such career education can most effectively be used by teachers, and what potential employers expect from a high school graduate.

A number of consultants from the business world will be involved in the workshop according to Mrs. Cecil.

Four hours of graduate of undergraduate credit may be earned for the two week workshop and cost is $60 tuition. Applications must be received by Mrs. Cecil prior to June 7 and further information is available from her at Box 31, Bemidji State College 56601.

U.S. Navy Now Offers College Degree Programs

Ben Siebels of the Thief River Falls navy recruiting station has announced the navy has officially launched a new educational program for active duty naval personnel designated the navy campus for achievement program.

It provides a means for all navy men and women to pursue a college degree, vocational certificate or technical license while still on active duty.

The navy-wide coordinated organization of the navy campus for achievement will make professional education planning and counseling services—and financial aid—directly available to the individual navyman. Advisors will help prepare a list of courses leading to the desired degree, or certification in technical-vocational subjects, and match the navyman with the institution that will provide the courses needed for a specific program.

Civilian educational institutions located near major naval bases are participating in this program to offer complete transferability of academic credits and elimination of residency requirements. The navy campus for achievement colleges will accept nontraditional credits (examinations, on-the-job experience, equivalency courses, etc.) for up to 75 per cent of degree requirements. The college determines what credit the student is allowed for previous courses and educational experience, then states what remaining requirements must be met for award of a degree.

NW Bel Ordered To Pay Refund To Subscribers

Compliance of Northwestern Bell telephone company with an order by the Minnesota public service commission will result in a refund of almost $2 million to the more than one million Minnesota customers, according to B.G. Schwartz, chief executive officer for the company in Minnesota. A rate reduction of $900,000 annually has also been ordered.

"We will, of course, comply exactly with the order," Schwartz said. "The reduction will be applied and the refund shown as a credit on May telephone bills. Amounts will be identified in a notice accompanying the bills.

"This order finally concludes our 1971 rate case, but a refund of almost $2 million and a rate reduction of nearly $900,000 annually is a serious disappointment," he said. "It further jeopardizes our ability to adequately serve our Minnesota customers. We are, therefore, preparing an application for a new rate increase in Minnesota.

Schwartz said it was necessary that new rates be determined to raise earnings to a level adequate to cope with inflationary costs which have developed in the past three years.

"Even after applying the new rates the company's earnings in 1972 were less than 6.4 per cent. They dropped to six per cent in 1973 and will fall to 5.5 per cent in 1974 unless immediate rate relief is granted," the chief executive officer said. "This is a long way from the 7.5 per cent that the commission said was reasonable three years ago.

"Because of our lower earnings level we have already reduced our 1974 investment in new buildings, equipment and related facilities to $194 million. . . .In this situation, unless we obtain immediate rate relief, our ability to support our reduced construction program is in serious jeopardy."

Thief River Falls and the rest of northwestern Minnesota may have to take a back seat to Crookston again this spring in high school athletic competition.

Although track is halfway through its abreviated indoor season schedule, most 1974 high school spring sports open their seasons in the area this week.

Crookston has dominated the area spring athletic scene in recent years and 1974 might find more Pirate victories. Crookston has won four straight district 31 baseball titles and the Pirates are heavy favorites to make it five in a row this spring. The Pirates have won the last two district 31 tennis crowns (although Thief River Falls and Crookston tied for the 1972 title) and with multi-talented Brent Reichert still around the Bucs are again the dominate team on the courts this season. Crookston golfers will also be a favorite for district honors after Pirate squads claimed two of the last three district events. Although Crookston hasn't landed any track honors on the district and region levels in recent years, 1974 could also be the year of the Pirate on the track. Crookston thinclad stand-outs include premiere weightman Len Devos and sprinters Jon Burkhardt and Dan Moore—a speedy transfer from Idaho.

Thief River Falls teams rank right behind Crookston in every sport, though, and with a few breaks could easily slip past the favored Pirate squads to corral spring athltic crowns this season.

Ron O'Brien, head coach of the Canton ATC hockey team that won the 1974 national junior college hockey tournament played in Thief River Falls in March, addressed this letter to Thief River Falls mayor Bob Carlson recently, with instructions to publish the note in the Times:

I would like to thank you and the fine people of Thief River Falls for the grand time that was shown us on our recent visit to your town.

My boys were very impressed the way the town went all out to make them feel welcome. I would personally like to thank you and the Elks Club for the banquet and the many people I met there after the games. Also, the Wolds for the accomodations and the Swansons for all the food and refreshments. It was truly a nice time.

Once again, thank you, nice people of Thief River Falls, Northland State and a certain artist, for a great time. We hope to see you again in 1976.

Sincerely,

North Dakota State University may field one of the North Central Conference's most potent offenses next fall when the Bison football team opens its 1974 season.

A total of ten starters or part-time 1973 offensive starters, including Lincoln high school graduate Rande Smith, were on hand when the Bison opened spring football drills last week.

NDSU's offensive backfield with Paul Walczak and Jay Baumberger both returning at quarterback, along with runningback Bruce Reimer and Teotha Sanders should be explosive. Smith and Dave Sande were both starters at end positions last fall, with Smith missing a part of the season because of illness.

Prowler Track Team Shows Improvement In G.F. Meet

Coach Marv Walter's youthful Lincoln high school track team turned in its best performance of the half-completed 1974 indoor track season Saturday by finishing fifth in the 12 team Grand Forks invitational meet in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse.

A strong Grand Forks Red River team, winner of the recent North Dakota class A state indoor title, won the first annual Grand Forks event by totaling 53½ points to outdistance second place Crookston with 43½. Grand Forks Central finished third with 31 points, followed by Grafton 20, Thief River Falls 18, Bemidji 16, East Grand Forks 10, Mayville-Portland 10, Drayton 3 and Langdon 3. Hatton and Midway failed to score during the afternoon meet.

Governor Plans Fishing Party At Quadna Lodge

Annual Minnesota governor's fishing party will be held this year at Quadna Lodge, Hill City, Minnesota, May 17-19, Lisa Lebedoff, director of tourism for the department of economic development, announced recently.

More than 150 outdoor writers and officials are expected to join Governor Wendell R. Anderson in the annual event which calls attention to the recreation potential available in fishing and waters of Minnesota.

Jerry Sevada, regional fisheries manager for the department of natural resources, said that lakes within a 20-mile radius of Quadna "are excellent" and are sell stocked with Northerns and Walleyes. Among the lakes to be fished are Sugar, Big Sandy Pokegama, Split Hand, Big Bass, Hill and Minnewawa.

Among the highlights of the three-day event will be an awards banquet on Saturday night in which economic development commissioner James R. Heltzer will address the Outdoor Writers group.

The grand prize for catching the largest fish will be a 14-foot aluminum boat donated by Lund American, Inc., New York Mills.

Jerry Sandahl Wins 2nd Dragon Individual Title

Jerry Sandahl

Junior hurdler Jerry Sandahl posted his second straight prestigious Dragon indoor track meet individual win Wednesday to provide Thief River Falls with six points and a seventh place tie in the final 30 school team standings.

Sandahl, who missed the season opening Shanley Invitational three weeks ago when he was playing in the Minnesota state basketball tournament, became the only Prowler thinclad to score points in either of the first two Thief River Falls outings this spring by turning in a new Lincoln high school record 7.4 first place time in the Dragon 60 yard low hurdles in the Moorhead State College Alex Nemzek Hall.

Moorhead high school won its ninth straight Dragon team title in the nine year history of the event by outlasting challenging Crookston 37-32 in the final point standings. Bloomington Jefferson finished a distant third with 20 points, followed by Fergus Falls with 12, Detroit Lakes 10 and Melrose 8. Thief River Falls, Glyndon-Felton, International Falls and Walker all tied for seventh with 6 points, folloed by Willmar 5, Frazee and Hawley 4, Park Rapids and Stephen 3, East Grand Forks and Elbow Lake 2 and Barnesville and Morris 1. A number of teams failed to score in the strong field meet.

Sandahl was one of three 1973 winners back to defend individual titles Wednesday, but he was the only repeat champion as he bettered his 1973 winning time of 7.5. Sandahl's 7.5 Dragon effort a year ago had tied the then-existing Lincoln 60 yard indoor low hurdle record set by John Wangberg in 1972.

Although Sandahl was the only Prowler point producer Wednesday, Thief River Falls head coach Marv Walter also cited three other individuals for strong efforts. Brian Phelps was clocked at 4:56 in the mile; Joe Sorvig turned in his best time ever of 8.5 in the 60 yard high hurdles; and Tony Dorn recorded his best ever indoor shot put toss of 45.6

Other Prowler Dragon results found Jim Elleson running the 60 yard dash in 6.9; Jeff Houfek, 58.0 in the 440; Dave Cork, 2:10.8 in the 880; Mark Haroldson, 10-4 pole vault; Jim Carlson; 5-4 high jump; Greg Leach, 16-4 long jump; and a 1:08.8 effort by the Prowler spring relay team of Elleson, Tom Barry, Houfek and Sandahl.

The Dragon event winners were as follows:

Shot put—Len Devos, Crookston, 53-6.

High jump—Rocky Kovatch, Glyndon-Felton, 6-2.

Mile—Paul Porter, Fergus Falls, 4:43.4.

60 yard high hurdles—Dave Johnson, Bloomington Jefferson, 8.1.

Long jump—Gary Larson, Detroit Lakes, 25-0½.

440—Rick Monson, Moorhead, 54.5.

60 yard dash—Don Moore, Crookston, 6.5.

880—Craig Palmer, Dilworth, 2:04.2.

Pole vault—Dana Powers, Moorhead, 13-6.

60 yard low hurdles—Jerry Sandahl, TRF, 7.4.

Sprint relay—Crookston, 1:03.9.

LHS Tennis Team Opens 1974 Season Wednesday

Olson Jurgens

Lincoln high school tennis team will open its 1974 spring season schedule this week when the Prowlers host East Grand Forks and Detroit Lakes in a double dual meet Wednesday on the Thief River Falls courts.

The Thief River Falls season opener will match the Prowlers against East Grand Forks at 1 p.m. and against Detroit Lakes at 4 o'clock. Thief River Falls will also be in action Friday when the Prowlers travel to Mahnomen for a 3:45 match.

Whitey Olson is beginning his sixth year as Prowler tennis coach, and for the first time during his Thief River Falls tenure he's blessed with an assistant coach. Gene Jurgens is aiding Olson with the expanding Prowler tennis program this spring.

Although 1973 stalwarts Jeff Wendt and Dave Forney were lost through graduation, a full compliment of five returning lettermen could provide the Prowlers with enough talent to challenge district and region powers Crookston and Bemidji this season.

"We've got a bunch of pretty good kids that are working hard toward having a successful season," commented Olson. "I know we'll be better than last year, but Crookston has four regulars back and Bemidji returns six of their top seven kids. They'll both be real strong and they'll be our two major obstacles."

The five Prowler lettermen forming the nucleus of this year's squad include seniors Dale Miller, Tim Engelstad and Scott Engelstad, along with juniors Kieth Brelland and Brian Waale. Wednesday's Prowler line-up will probably find Miller and Scott Engelstad playing number one doubles with Tim Engelstad, Waale and Brelland playing singles.

Five other varsity candidates have a strong chance of cracking the Prowler line-up, said Olson, including junior Kevin Kompelien and sophomores Geoff Dagg, Bill LaValley, Gary Laidley and Terry Sullivan.

Other individuals currently working with the Prowler squad include juniors Greg Torfin and Glen Ihle, along with freshmen Mike Erickson, Jon Gibson, Brad Johnson and Bob Williams.

"I think you have to label Crookston as the favorite in the district," admitted Olson who has been conducting practice since April 3. "I think Crookston has three tennis players equal to or better than anyone of our kids. It depends a lot on our improvement as the season progresses."

The rest of the Thief River Falls 1974 home tennis schedule will find the Prowlers hosting 3:30 afternoon matches Thurs., April 25, against Crookston; Mon. May 6, Grand Forks Central; Thurs., May 9, Mahnomen; Mon., May 13, Bemidji; and Mon. May 20, Grand Forks Red River.

Thief River Falls road matches will be played Tues., April 23, at Grand Forks Red River; Wed., April 24, at Bemidji; Mon., April 29, at Grand Forks Central; Wed., May 15, at Detroit Lakes against Detroit Lakes and Brainerd; and Thurs., May 16, at Crookston.

The Northwest Conference meet will be played Tues., May 7, at East Grand Forks. East Side will also host the district 31 tournament this spring. The district's team competition will be played Thurs., May 23, and the district's individual competition will be played Fri., May 24. The top singles player and the top doubles team, along with the complete district championship squad, advances to the region eight meet scheduled to be held Fri., May 31, at Bemidji.

The Prowler junior varsity squad also opens its season Wednesday when the Prowler Bees play at Fertile. The Thief River Falls JV's will host Mahnomen Friday at 3:30.

Northland Golf Opener Delayed Due To Weather

Coach Al Adams' Northland community college golf team's season opening meet scheduled to be held tomorrow (Tuesday) in Anoka has been postponed, it was announced this morning.

The Northmen, expected to challenge for MJCAA state and NJCAA region XIII honors this spring were scheduled to open their 1974 season by competing in the Anoka Ramsey invitational meet on the Bunker Hills golf course in Anoka—the site of this year's state and national tournaments.

Tuesday's postponement will find the Northmen opening their spring season at Fergus Falls Monday. Northland will compete in the rescheduled Anoka Ramsey meet Tues., April 23.

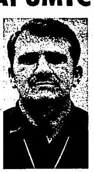
Northmen Open Baseball Season At UMTC Wed.



Chet Engelman

Northland community college will begin its second season of intercollegiate baseball competition Wednesday when the Northmen travel to Crookston for a 2 p.m. conference double-header against athletic rival Crookston Tech.

Chet Engelman, who guided Northland to a surprising 9-6 record in the school's first baseball season last spring, is currently working with a group of 14 players for the 1974 season opener.

Two returning sophomores headline the Northland pre-season roster. Shortstop Charles Pribula (Alvarado) and outfielder Rick Vatnsdal (Roseau) were both starters last spring and starred both offensively and defensivly when Vatnsdal hit an eye-catching .346 and Pribula averaged a solid .333 at the plate.

Northland's other infield candidates include freshmen Brian Espeseth (Fertile), Bruce Johnson (TRF), Steve Taflin (Clearbrook), Mike Peterson (Middle River), Neil Nelson (TRF), Pete Sullivan (TRF), Tim Degerness (Roseau), Burnie Stephens (Jackson, Mich.) and Jon Jensen (TRF). The team's remaining outfielders include freshmen Rob Almquist (TRF), Mike Drury (TRF) and Bruce Johnson (Staples).

Headed by former Lincoln high school starry lefthanders Sullivan and Johnson, Northland presents an impressive pitching staff that also includes Drury and Stephens as hard throwing righthanders.

Jensen, Degerness, Johnson (Staples) and Taflin provide Northland with a solid group of catchers to combine with the pitching staff for an impressive Northman battery crew.

"I think we'll be a sound defensive team because of our quickness," pointed out Engelman, who directed Northland to an outstanding 20-5 record in basketball this winter. "We'll have better overall quickness than any other team we face this year," he said. "We'll be all right defensively, our pitching is sound and we'll be pretty decent on the bases. Our problem will be getting on the bases. Without any outdoor practice our hitting is still questionable. But if we can hit the ball and get on base we'll be all right this year."

Engelman indicated his possible starting line-up for Wednesday's season opening double-header would find either Peterson, Stephens or Johnson (TRF) at first base; Taflin, second base; Espeseth, third base; Pribula shortstop; Almquist, leftfield; Vatnsdal, centerfield; Drury, rightfield; Jensen, catcher; and Sullivan, pitcher. Sullivan could go the distance in the opener, said Engelman, with Johnson expected to start the second game.

Northland, playing in the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division along with Brainerd, Fergus Falls, Crookston, Hibbing and Vermilion, will play a 24 game schedule this spring—12 double-headers.

The 1974 Northland home opener is scheduled Sat., April 27, at 1 p.m. twin-bill against defending division champion Fergus Falls. Other Northland home double-headers will be played Tues., April 30, Crookston, 2; Tues., May 7, Brainerd, 2; and Fri., May 17, Itasca, 1.

Northland's remaining road schedule includes Wed., April 25, UND JV at Grand Forks; Vermilion at Ely; Sat., May 4, at Hibbing; Fri., May 10, Itasca at Grand Rapids; Sat., May 11, Itasca at Grand Rapids; Mon., May 13, at Fergus Falls; and Wed., May 15, UND JV at Grand Forks.

Crookston Is Favored To Win NWAC Indoor Title

Host Crookston is a heavy favorite to wrestle the team title away from defending champion Thief River Falls tomorrow (Tuesday) when the second annual Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet is held in the Crookston winter shows building.

Thief River Falls won last year's initial NWAC indoor title, but Crookston, winner of last year's conference outdoor meet, has fielded a high powered squad this spring and the Pirates are expected to run away with the 1974 meet title.

Fergus Falls, Bemidji, East Grand Forks and Breckenridge will join Thief River Falls and Crookston in the conference meet scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

Thief River Falls head coach Marv Walter said his Prowler line-up for tomorrow's meet would include Jim Elleson, Tom Barry and Greg McEwen in the 70 and 220 yard dashes; Jeff Houfek, Jeff Johnson and Greg Leach, 440; Dave Cork, Dick Johnson and Mike Burstad, 880; Brian Phelps, Joe Nelson and Craig Swanson, mile; Lonnie Olson, Dan Kruger and Dan Heieren, two mile; and Jerry Sandahl, Joe Sorvig and Jeff Hendrickson in both the 70 yard high and low hurdles.

The Prowler relay team line-ups will find Elleson, Barry, Tim Benedict and Jim Carlson in the 760 event; Sandahl, Sorvig, Houfek and Phelps, mile medley; and Cork, Jay Narverud, Burstad and Jeff Johnson, mile.

Thief River Falls field event entries will include Tony Dorn, Kent Ehrenstrom and Arlie Engelman, shot put; Mark Haroldson, Benedict and Kevin Anderson, pole vault; Carlson, Brustad and Houfek, high jump; and Carlson, Greg Leach and Narverud, long jump.

A junior high school meet involving eighth and ninth graders will be held at the same time as the NWAC meet. The Thief River Falls junior high line-up will include Tim Loeffler, Brian Anderson and Keith Johnson in the 70; Loeffler, Peter Lee and Paul Phelps, 220; Tony Brosseau, Rick Harger and Mike Hvidsten, 440; Steve Erickson, Darrell Muzzy and Brad Halvorson, 880; Tim Trudeau, Richard Sorenson and Dan Vigness, mile; John Albrecht, two mile; and Keith Johnson, Tim Sorvig and Steve Geatz in the 70 yard low hurdles.

The Thief River Falls junior high school relay team line-ups will find Johnson, Marty Olson, Brad Swanson and Loeffler in the 760; Johnson, Anderson Brosseau and Trudeau, mile medley; and Phelps, Swanson, Anderson and Muzzy, mile.

Thief River Falls junior high field event entries include Kraig Wangsaes, Greg Schmitke and Bill Robson, shot put; Greg Omdahl, Monte Wormer and Scott Bergland, pole vault; Johnson, Swanson and Joel Bren, high jump; and Olson, Phelps and Bren, long jump.

Survey Of Bald Eagle Nests Is Held In 1973

Interior department's fish and wildlife service has announced the results of its 1973 survey of bald eagle nests in the lower 48 States—627 active nests were located from which more than 500 young were produced.

From its findings, the service estimates that the United States south of Alaska has about 1,000 nesting pairs of bald eagles, the same number estimated by the National Audubon society in 1972. Earlier surveys are deemed too incomplete to provide valid comparative data for the entire U.S. Not all adult bald eagles nest and none do so before their fifth year of life.

Certain representative areas of Alaska were surveyed last year, and the results indicate that state's bald eagle population is between 30,000 and 55,000 birds. Minnesota produced 113 young from 104 nests in 1973.

A report by the service concludes that "outlook for the future of the bald eagle is mixed." The report reveals that populations in Chesapeak Bay, parts of Florida, the Pacific Northwest and the northern interior of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan are holding steady now with some possible gains in the Minnesota population.

On the other hand, eagles in the Northeast, Great Lakes shores and the Southeast (except parts of Florida and Louisiana) are either declining or gone. Nesting eagles are also virtually gone from Iowa, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri and other states along the Mississippi drainage.

The report identifies three basic reasons for losses of bald eagles: (1) Pesticide pollution which results in reproductive failure or direct mortality; (2) habitat destruction and human disturbances or intrusions at nest sites that discourage nesting and interfere with incubation; and (3) shooting.

Reduction of losses in the first two categories is expected to occur because of the decline in the use of persistent pesticides and because eagle nests on federal lands, particularly those administered by the national park service, the forest service and the fish and wildlife service, are relatively well-protected. Increasing numbers of nests on private lands are being protected by landowner agreements.

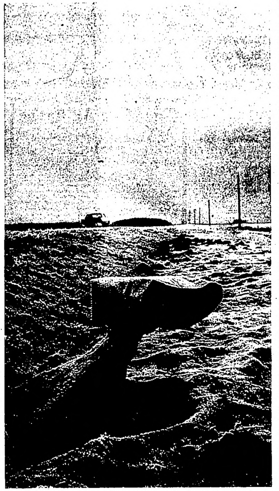
Additional educational and legal efforts are needed if losses from shooting are to be reduced, the report states.

During the 1973 survey, the service received helpful cooperation from many sources, including the federal agencies named, the National Audubon society, state wildlife agencies, state and local conservation groups and private individuals.

Survey work was done almost exclusively from aircraft, with some ground verifications also being performed. Two flights normally were made, the first to locate nests and the second to assess productivity by counting the number of young birds.

Another survey is planned this year. The 1974 goal is to locate 90 per cent of the active bald eagle nests in the lower 48 states. Work already has started in Florida, where eagles begin nesting in late fall and early winter.

Prospects are good, the report indicates, that additional nests will be found in several states, notably Florida, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Arizona, Montana, Idahl and Minnesota.



NATURE appears to be rejecting the litter thrown from passing cars during the winter. The car from which someone threw this garbage into the ditch along County Road 64 passed this way several months ago. However, the trash remains as an eye-sore. In fact, as the spring sun melts the snow, it is uncovering the junk people left behind. This bag looks as if nature were holding it up as an example, asking that it be removed. This prominent display was created as the bag prevented the sun from reaching the snow supporting the garbage. As the sun melted the surrounding snow, this litter was left on a natural pedestal. When this picture was taken the morning sun was still trying to shine through an overcast sky and fog. It later succeeded and continued with its task of preparing the northland for summer.

Pinworm Infests 10 Per Cent Of U.S. Population

An estimated 10 per cent of the general population of the United States is infected with lowly pinworm, according to state health commissioner Dr. Warren Lawson. Prevalence of this little thread-like intestional parasite is highest in children, especially those living in crowded conditions. Often a whole family will become infected.

Pinworm disease begins when pinworm eggs are swallowed and the worms mature in the intestines. Symptoms may be mild or indifinite. But frequently it happens that female worms crawl out of the anus and deposit eggs on the skin in that area, causing intense itching. This can lead to scratching, disturbed sleep, and irritability. It has not been established that pinworms cause any severe illness.

A victim may reinfect himself by direct transfer of eggs by hand from anus to mouth. A victim or other people may become infected indirectly through clothing, bedding, food, or other articles contaminated with pinworm eggs. Eggs can even be present in dust.

The Minnesota Department of Health says various measures can help prevent pinworm disease. These include frequent bathing, with showers preferred to tub baths, and the changing of underclothing, night clothes, and bed sheets at frequent intervals. Everyone should wash his hands after going to the toilet and before eating or preparing food. Nail-biting and scratching the bare anal area should be discouraged. Bathrooms and public rest rooms should be kept clean.

If treatment is not carried out the pinworm condition will continue for approximately 2 to 8 weeks unless reinfection occurs. (Reinfection is very common.) All infected members of a household should be treated at the same time and thorough disinfection of contaminated objects should be carried out. A physician should be consulted for effective medication.

New System For Auto Licensing Starts In Fall

A new system of monthly registration for passenger cars will be started next fall, Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund announced recently. The object of the new procedure will be to spread registrtion of passsenger cars over a nine-month period, as opposed to the Novemember 15-March 1 period now in effect.

Starting with registration for the year 1975, all passenger cars will be registered during the months March through November. All vehicles other than passsenger cars will register during December, January and February.

Initial determination of monthly registration will be made this Friday, when a drawing will place portions of the alphabet in specific months. The names of all present car owners have been divided into nine equal groups, with each group to be assigned to one of the nine months. For example, owners with the last name starting with A and through Brown will be assigned to one month. Since assignments will be made on a random-draw basis, A through Brown will not necessarily fall in March, nor will Swens through Zyvol follow nine months later.

During the first year of the new system, most registrations will be for less than a year, with the tax rate prorated on a 12-month basis. For example, if an owner's registration month is April (due by May 1), he will register through April, or for four months. During April then, he will register for a full 12-month period. Once assigned to a given month, that vehicle will be registered during that month each year during the life of the car or so long as it remains in Minnesota.

Those whose registration month falls in March will have option of registering for three months and then reregistering for the following 12-month period in March, or paying for the full 15 months initially in one stop.

Since this year was a "plate" year, the next two years are "sticker" years. When registering for 1975, the owner will receive two stickers: one validating the license for the registration period, and the other showing the month when the next year's tax is due.

"We decided on a monthly registration after studying similar systems in other states," Hoaglund said, "and determining that two major advantages will accrue: a greater convenience for owners by eliminating a 3½-month "rush" period; and a more even spread of the work load for the motor vehicle services division."

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank the Grygla fire dept. for their excellent service and to the friends and relatives for their donations and help during our recent misfortune. Your many kindnesses are appreciated by our family. God bless you all. Doug, Lorraine and family. 1t30p

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear son, brother, and uncle, Jerome Rolandson, who left us two years ago April 16.

The Sun is shining on this lone and silent grave. Beneath lies one we dearly loved. But whom we could not save. We miss you more than anyone knows. As each day passes, our emptiness grows. The tears we shed will wipe away, but the ache in our hearts will always stay. We know our loss is heaven's gain.

Missed by parents, sister, brothers, sister-in-laws, nephews, and niece. 1t30p

Card of Thanks

In Memoriam

In remembrance of our dear son, brother, and uncle, Jerome Rolandson, who left us two years ago April 16.

The Sun is shining on this lone and silent grave. Beneath lies one we dearly loved. But whom we could not save. We miss you more than anyone knows. As each day passes, our emptiness grows. The tears we shed will wipe away, but the ache in our hearts will always stay. We know our loss is heaven's gain.

Missed by parents, sister, brothers, sister-in-laws, nephews, and niece. 1t30p

Police Receive Complaints Of Dogs At Large

Complaints of dogs running at large in the city have been received by the police department and owners are being charged with violation of the city ordinance against such practice, according to Harvey J. Tauer of the local police department.

"If you have a dog you do not want, contact the police department and make arrangements to have the dog picked up," Patrolman Tauer said. "There will be someone at the city dog pound from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday of this week. Persons who have cats or dogs they want disposed of may bring them at this time."

Last year only 155 dog licenses were sold in the city, although the ordinace provides for licensing of dogs promptly upon acquisition of such dogs. License cost is $2 for males or spayed females and $6 for females with license tags available at the police department.

Patrolman Tauer cited city ordinance which states:

"It shall hereafter be unlawful for the owner-keeper of any dog to allow such dog to run at large within the corporate limits of the city of Thief River Falls. Every owner or keeper of any dog shall keep such dog upon the premises of such owner or keeper in compliance with the terms of this section, except when such owner or keeper or other competent person shall have such dog secured by a leash...."

He also called attention to the portion of the ordinance which states: "No dog, cat or other animal capable of contracting the disease of rabies shall be kept within the city without the same first being inoculated against the disease of rabies by a duly qualified veterinarian or person acting under direct supervision, and shall be repeated at intervals of not less than one year thereafter."

QUALIFIED OFFICERS of the Minnesota state patrol have received promotions to the levels of Trooper I or Corporal. These ranks were recently established to recognize patrolmen demonstrating "competence and proficiency" in the performance of their duties. To receive the new designations an officer must score well on a written examination and have completed five years in the patrol for Trooper I and ten years for Corporal. Officers from the Thief River Falls patrol district receiving promotions Thursday included (left to right) Robert Stotts of Roseau, Major Harlan Fredeen (regional commander from Duluth, who made the presentations), Arnold Kreun of East Grand Forks, Keith Pearson of Red Lake Falls, Ed Braaten of Red Lake Falls, Kenneth Hennen of Hallock and Anthony Kozojed of Warren. All received the Trooper I designation.

MODERN EQUIPMENT for care of heart attack patients is located in the intensive care unit of Northwestern hospital services. Vivian Bartsch, R.N., demonstrates the use of a defibrillator, used to stop fibrillation of the heart. At right are monitoring divices used to indicate heart activity. Four patients can be monitored by the unit at one time.

Hospital Plan Helps Heart Attack Victim

(American Hospital Week will be observed beginning May 12 with the general theme this year being: "Get to Know Us Before You Need Us". In keeping with the theme, the Times today begins a series of articles to help acquaint the general public with regular procedures at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.)

by Marvin Landin
Times Editor

When an emergency call is received through the switchboard at the office in Northwestern hospital services, it sets off a chain reaction of events which have become standard procedure. Although the circumstances of every case are different, and may require some alterations in the established pattern, the overall situation remains constant.

For the sake of example, today's article traces the procedure followed when an emergency call is received for assistance to a heart attack victim—one of the somewhat common happenings in local hospital routine.

"Send an ambulance, quick!" the anxious voice tells the switchboard operator who answers the phone in the hospital reception area. "My husband is having severe chest pains and I think he is having a heart attack! Please, hurry!"

At the first sound of such an emergency, the operator takes a ready clipboard with an information sheet attached. She records the time of the call, name of the caller, address and location, directions on how to get there, telephone number and type of problem. Such minimal information is necessary and, although it takes a few seconds of time, can be vital to saving the life of the person suffering the attack.

Ambulance attendants are immediately paged by personal radio and they pick up the clipboard and information sheet at the office, report to the ambulance and leave for the address or location given on the report. Departure time is noted on the record sheet. As the ambulance attendants leave, the office notifies the emergency room supervisor—one of whom is on duty at any time of the day or night.

Radio contact is again made when the ambulance reaches its destination. Should it become lost due to directions, weather, roads or other factors, attendants can radio for further instructions. If necessary, the hospital office can call the number of the person reporting the heart attack for clarification or further directions. This is one reason why it is important to have the phone number available.

The attendants transport the patient to the ambulance and again radio the hospital, giving condition of the patient and notifying the hospital that they are enroute to the hospital. The supervisor has been preparing for arrival of the patient, having oxygen and electrocardiogram (EKG) equipment ready for use.

HEART MONITORING is possible for heart patients in their rooms or elsewhere in Northwestern hospital building through the telemetry unit pictured above. Runaway Juvenile Leads Police To Stolen Property Police searching for a runaway juvenile girl recently recovered over $1,000 worth of stolen property and seized drug paraphernalia, resulting in charges against at least three persons.

On April 8, an off duty police officer recognized a 14 year old runaway girl and another runaway juvenile entering Performance Automotive, located in the former Len's Tire shop building. In addition, stolen property including a portable radio valued at $870, about 100 keys, an American flag and tape cartridges were recovered. Equipment commonly used for drug abuse was also seized. Some of the keys have been identified as having been taken from local schools and may have been stolen during burglaries last summer.

Ken Froschheiser, acting police chief, reported this morning (Wednesday) that Wayne Jasmer, 21, is being charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Eighteen year-old Len Jasmer and a 16 year-old juvenile are facing felony charges for possessing stolen property.

Following this incident, Froshheiser informed the city council of the circumstances and, at its April 9 meeting, members of the council instructed the police department to evict Jasmer's automotive business from the building which is owned by the city.

Six Councils To Oppose Move Of County Seat

According to a story appearing in today's issue of the Warren Sheaf, six Marshall county city councils have unanimously adopted resolutions opposing moving the county seat from its present location in Warren.

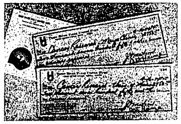
The Sheaf article states that councils at Oslo and Alvarado voted Monday, Stephen and Argyle on Tuesday and Viking this morning. Warren had acted earlier.

"The quick action on the part of the Marshall county court house committee (organized with Ken Nelson of Warren as chairman) was necessitated and thought appropriate in order to try to keep the Marshall county improvement association from reaching its goal of petition signers which would force a vote on changing the county seat to Newfolden," the Sheaf quotes Nelson as saying.

He added that it is strongly hoped that the issue need not come to a vote because the ill will which would be generated by such a vote could divide the county for generations.

The Marshall county improvement association has scheduled a meeting for tonight in the Middle River Legion hall to assess its progress and make further plans.

United Way Annual Meeting Held Here



ON THEIR WAY to the University of Minnesota and Mayo clinic are checks for $2,750 each to help in cancer research. The checks are issued by the Thief River Falls United Way to the university and clinic directly since the Minnesota division of the American Cancer society does not particpate in United Way campaigns.

Allocation of $50,500 has been made to participating agencies of the Thief River Falls United Way campaign, it was reported at the annual meeting of the organization held recently in the chapel area of Northwestern hospital services.

William Duckworth, chairman of the United Way board, presided at the meeting and the allocations report was given by Mrs. Clarice Galliher, chairman of the allocations committee.

A total of $53,724 was contributed or pledged to the Thief River Falls United Way during the 1973 fall campaign. Of the total $28,387 was received in cash; $15,410 was pledged through payroll deductions; and $9,927 was pledged through United Way billing.

Secretary Art Heinze estimated that approximately 15 per cent of the pledges will be lost due to people moving from the city, job layoffs and other circumstances. A total of $37,902 has been collected from the 1973 campaign to date with $15,822 still outstanding in United Way billing and payroll deductions.

Members representing the various participating agencies were present at the meeting and a question and answer session followed the business meeting. Duckworth thanked the participating agencies for their service to the community and the general public for cooperation and support of the United Way.

To fill several vacancies on the United Way board, the board is seeking potential members. General public is invited to nominate board members by sending names to the United Way, P.O. Box 276, Thief River Falls. Mrs. Joe Phelps has been appointed to the board and attended the recent annual meeting.

Fifteen United Way allocations have been paid in full at the present time and several others have received partial payment on their allocations, Heinze said. Paid in full are the following:

If the Shoe Fits..

Is it possible for a child to outgrow a pair of shoes within three weeks?

Yes, it is possible and it happens frequently, but the 'growth' is not true growth during that short period.

When a child's old shoes are too short, the child will unconsciously draw up his arch to keep his toes from bumping the ends of the shoes. Drawing up the arch shortens the foot. Try it.

Suppose the old shoes were size 7 and he now measures for size 8. An 8 shoe in the proper width will permit him to relax his foot and when the foot settles back to normal, it may measure 8½ to 9. The new 8's are outgrown and the shoeman catches a headache because the parents allowed the child to wear 7's when he needed 8's. If the shoeman attempts to anticipate this settling process and fits the shoes a half size too long, it invariably turns out that this child has a natural 'butch' foot that doesn't care to settle. The shoes turn up in front like skis, they look like some neighbor gave you, and they are worn out before the child grows into them. You can't win.

Joyce Lynn Hansen Weds Royce Pederson In TRF

Rev. Keith Prekker officiated at the double ring ceremony, attended by the immediate families. Sandy Schob presided at the organ. She played the traditional wedding march and "We've only Just Begun."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in an empire fashioned gown of white satin. Pearl beading and lace enhanced the long sheer sleeves, edged the cuffs and stand-up collar, and trimmed the fitted bodice and skirt. Her waist length veil, complemented by a blusher, was held by a petaled headpiece with pearl trim. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnatons and white daisies.

Maid of honor was Miss Sheryl Pederson of this city, a sister of the groom. Debbie Sauve of Red Lake Falls, a friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. The maid of honor was attired in an A-line, floor-length gown of lime green gingham with pink and white flowers. Her long sleeves of sheer green were accented by cuffs of the same fabric as her gown. The bridesmaid was attired in a similar gown, only styled with short baby-doll sleeves with cuffs. Pink and white lace accented the cuffs and stand-up collars on both gowns. Each attendant carried three long-stemmed carnations in pink, green and white, tied with pink and white ribbon.

The gowns were also made by the bride.

Harold Kees, a friend of the groom, was best man and Jack Hansen, a brother of the bride, served as groomsman. The groom and his attendants wore black tuxedos with white shirts and black bow ties. The groom's boutonniere was a pink tipped carnation, the attendants had green tipped carnations and the fathers had all-white carnations.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hansen selected a turquoise floor-length gown with long sheer sleeves. Topping the gown was a sleeveless, floor-length coat. At the neckline, she wore a silver chain. The mother of the groom was attired in a pink ensemble featuring a floor-length gown with pink sheer sleeves, and a bolero styled vest. Her necklace was of white pearls. Both wore identical corsages of pink carnations and white daisies.

For the reception that followed, the church parlors were decorated with pink streamers on the tables. Centering the serving table was a two tired wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Orvus Bennitt of Holt. The tiers, supported by pillars, were decorated with pink flowers, white doves and wedding bells. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom.

Mrs. Jerome (Patty) Hansen, sister-in-law of the bride, cut and served the cake as Mrs. Carl (Jan) Carlson, sister of the groom, poured. Mrs. Lyle (Bonnie) Pederson and Mrs. Kendall (Carol) Pederson, sisters-in-law of the groom, served the punch as Janell Hansen, sister of the bride, and Jodell Carlson, niece of the groom, served cookies, nuts and mints.

Buyers Guide To High Quality Food Now Ready

A fifth edition of the Minnesota buyers guide to high quality foods and agricultural products, listing 434 cooperative and independent suppliers, is ready for international distribution by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Purpose of the directory, explains M.C. Combs, director of the marketing services division, is to help increase the domestic and export sales of Minnesota agricultural products. He estimated that foreign export sales alone last year brought Minnesota upwards of $700 million in new agricultural income.

Buyers guides to Minnesota's high quality foods and agricultural products will be presented to nearly 5,000 key wholesale and institutional buyers during the coming year. About 500 of the directories will go to Minnesota wholesale buyers. Over 90 per cent of Minnesota's agricultural production mut be sold outside the state.

Combs said the past publications have been an effective marketing tool used in combination with cooperative trade missions throughout U.S. metropolitan consumer markets and on export trade missions to Europe and to Japan.

State and federal matching funds financed the new edition of the Minnesota buyers guide.

Thirty-seven categories and several thousand Minnesota food and agricultural products are listed in the 56-page catalog under the respective farmer, cooperative and food processor sales references that are complete with address, telephone and personal sales contact.

Listings include animal food components, apples, bakery products, beverage specialties, brewers, candy, charcoal, Christmas trees, dairy products, shell and processed eggs, fish, food franchisers, honey, jams, jellies and peanut butters.

Also lefse, macaroni, maple syrup, margarine, meat, Mexican foods, Italian foods, milling and cereal products, mushrooms, nuts and snacks, Oriental foods, pickles and salad dressings.

Also pizza, fresh and processed potatoes, sandwiches, soups and gravies, soybeans and textured vegetable protein products, spices and extracts, sugar, turkey and poultry, fresh and processed vegetables and wild rice.

IN THE AMBULANCE enroute to the hospital, coronary patients can receive oxygen administred by the ambulance attendant. Rick Schue is the attendant in the photo above and the "patient" is attendant Jim Dahl. Schue holds a bag used to give artificial respiration in place of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Oxygen is also carried in the ambulance for use during transport of the patient.

Usually the patient is admitted to the emergency room but sometimes is admitted directly to the intensive care unit. In either case the necessary equipment is available for monitoring vital signs and administering treatment. Should initial treatment be given in the emergency room, transfer is soon made to the intensive care unit.

Hospital staff members emphasize that the first interest is in the welfare of the patient and that care is given as needed. Caricatures of patients needing emergency care being denied or having to wait because of inability to pay or having to fill out lengthy forms are simply that.

"It just doesn't happen here," one emergency room supervisor said. "I have pumped blood into an accident victim for hours before I had the slightest idea what his name was or where he was from. There is time to get that information after the patient's condition has been stabilized."

In the intensive care unit of the hospital there is a registered nurse on duty 24 hours a day. The patient is connected to a coronary monitor—a machine which records heart rate and rhythm on a visual scanner and a print-out tape. Vital signs are also watched personally by the nurse in charge, although the monitoring unit has an alarm system if significant physical changes should occur.

Physician on call is also notified of emergency situations and will likely be on hand when the patient arrives in the emergency room. If the physician is not present, however, treatment can be initiated without the doctor who will see the patient in the intensive care unit.

While vital signs are being monitored mechanically and visually in the intensive care unit, laboratory work is being done on a blood sample. If the name of the victim is available, even before his arrival at the hospital, medical records will search the files for information about previous attacks or history of coronary artery disease. All of these services can contribute to the patient's chance for a successful recovery.

Once the patient has recovered sufficiently to be moved from the intensive care unit to the medical ward, the actions of his heart can still be measured by telemetry. This is accomplished through electrodes taped to the patient's chest and a portable power unit smaller than a pocket transistor radio. The cardiac monitoring equipment is capable of monitoring up to four patients simultaneously and another portable unit is available if needed. When recovery is sufficient, the patient will be dismissed from the hospital.

Further down the road to recovery, the patient may return as an out-patient for stress testing—a test to determine how much physical activity may be safely engaged in without expectation of a recurrent attack. Newly-installed equipment at the hospital—purchased by the hospital auxiliary unit—makes this stress testing possible.

Last year the hospital's ambulance service answered more than 500 calls. Quite a few were for heart attack victims like the one symbolized here. It is good to know there are facilities and trained people ready to give help when it is needed.

All-Aluminum Beverage Cans To Be Redeemed

To improve conditions and fight litter and solid waste, Grain Belt Distributing company will become the northwest redemption center for all-aluminum beverage cans. The public can redeem empty aluminum cans for 10 cents a pound each Thursday from 3 to 6 p.m. starting May 9 at the Grainbelt warehouse, 1325 North Main in Thief River Falls.

Pete Sullivan, president of the local Grain Belt distributing company, said that it was not necessary to crush the cans for redemption, but that more could be carried more conveniently if they were flattened.

Sullivan explained that the cans will be recycled into new aluminum cans or other useful aluminum products by Reynolds Metals company as part of its nationwide can reclamation program.

Not all beverage cans are aluminum. All-aluminum beverage cans have no side seams, have rounded bottoms and are not affected by a magnet. The company will accept any brand of all-aluminum cans.

Nationally, more than 970 million aluminum beverage cans were redeemed for cash in 1972, a four-fold increase over 1971. Nationwide, nearly $3.5 million was paid to the public for the redeemed cans.

The aluminum is worth $200 per ton when brought to the redemption center. Many groups such as church organizatons, civic and service clubs and Boy and Girl Scouts have used aluminum can reclamation program as a way of raising cash for projects and equipment. Other individuals such as college students and retired persons have materially supplemented their incomes through aluminum can salvage and redemption.

New Telephone Directories To Be Mailed Soon

New telephone directories will be in the mail soon to Thief River Falls area residents, according to Don Lindquist, Northwestern Bell manager, who said distribution will start next week.

Fewer copies of the book will be delivered to businesses and residences this year. Lindquist blamed a paper shortage, but said customers needing additional copies should contact his business office.

Scenes and symbols depicting Minnesota's Indian heritage are featured on the cover of the new directory. The writer of the interpretation is Ed McGaa, an Oglala Sioux and currently deputy director of the St. Paul human rights department. McGaa is an avid participant in efforts to preserve the religious, social and artistic traditions of the Indian peoples.

Emergency numbers for fire, police and other agencies are listed on the inside front cover. Residents should identify the emergency numbers for their community and list them in the space provided.

Lindquist also called attention to helpful information included in the call guide section in the front portion of the new directory. A new item in the Call Guide is a "How to Save" page, listing time-saving and money-saving tips relating to phone service.

"Because of new residents in the area who have their numbers listed for the first time and other changes, it will be important for everyone to discard their old directory as soon as the new one is received," Lindquist said.

The new directory contains alphabetical and classified listings for Baudette, Crookston, Euclid, Roseau, Thief River Falls and Warroad and alphabetical listings for Badger, Beltrami, Fisher, Goodridge, Holt, Malung-Wannaska, Middle River, Newfolden, Roosevelt, St. Hilaire, Williams and Rainy River, Ont., Canada.

American Party Director Meets In TRF Tuesday

Ron Putz, executive director of the American party of Minnesota, conducted a strategy and information meeting at the Terrace room of the Rex cafe in Thief River Falls Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Lewis Carpenter, Seventh district chairwoman, headed the list of party leaders from northwestern Minnesota who attended the meeting. Basic structure was determined for conducting county conventions in this area of the state. County leaders were taught how to conduct a convention and given ideas on building membership.

Announcement was made that the American party state convention will be held May 11 at the Kahler hotel in Rochester. Putz predicted that the party will be organized in nearly all 87 counties of the state by the end of April and predicted it would be the second largest party in the state within two years. He said membership in the state had doubled within the past two months.

The state director reviewed development of the party and its future plans and goals. He said the party plans to have candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, treasurer and auditor this fall and that two persons are already seeking endorsement for two of the offices. Dean Slater of Minneapolis is seeking endorsement for secretary of state and Al Lankin of Waconia for attorney general.

Mrs. Carpenter noted that nearly all American party members are newcomers to practical politics and that Putz visit here filled an important need in the organization's efforts in northwestern Minnesota.

She invited examination of the principles of the party which favor a constitutional concept of limited federal power, protecting the rights of citizens and minimizing government involvement in private business.

Plans were made for a meeting in Kittson county in the near future. Putz left Thief River Falls for Roseau to meet with party members in that community.

Humphrey Says Rural Transport In Crisis Stage

"A U. S. department of agriculture report, prepared at my request and which I released this week to the Congress, confirms that stresses on rural transportation 'may have reached the crisis stage' and underscores the need to reexamine the adequacy of the system," states Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

The report also confirms that rail line abandonments have reached unprecedented levels during the past two years.

Some 266 applications for abandonments filed in 1973 involved more than 4,000 miles, a record mileage for any year since the Interstate Commerce commission assumed responsibility for abandonment proceedings.

The report states that during 1960 through 1973 97 per cent of the ICC decisions made on applications authorized abandonments.

And it notes that "none of the cases that were reviewed" by ICC "considered aggregate impacts of abandonments on communities, but effects on railroads were always considered."

"We must end this policy of looking only at one side of the ledger," Sen. Humphrey said. "The social and economic loss of rail service to these communities is severe and should be calculated along with the costs of continued service to the railroads. In fact, it can mean the end of a community."

The report concludes what is obvious to all that abandonment decisions "are in a sense irreversible."

"If we cast our lot with rail abandonments, a reemergence of need for rail services in those areas could not be easily met," the senator added.

"Unless a reasonable transportation system for America is designed and supported, we may be faced with the greatest 'immovable feast' in the history of man.

"Prices of food in our cities may soar and people overseas may starve, while America's farmers produce a bumper crop that rots on the ground, because it cannot be moved to market," he concluded.

On April 16, 1949, the Berlin Airlift had its biggest day: 12,940 tons delivered by 1,398 flights in 24 hours.

New Tax Credit Makes For Easy Political Giving

"The new state tax credit for political contributions, coupled with existing federal tax credits, should make it easy for anyone to give to the Minnesota Republican Neighbor to Neighbor fund drive this year," says senator Mel Frederick of West Concord, chairman of the drive.

"We hope to reach some 80,000 people across the state during our annual Neighbor to Neighbor (NTN) drive this year, which will kick off Saturday, April 20. While in the past our average contribution was about $7, the new state tax credit for political contributions will make it possible for a married couple filing a joint tax return to give up to $20 and receive the entire $20 back in the form of a $10 federal tax credit and a $10 state tax credit. For a single person, a $10 contribution will return a $5 state tax credit and a $5 federal tax credit. In effect, then, these political contributions cost the contributor nothing," Frederick said.

"$10 is the maximum tax credit allowed by the state for political contributions from a married couple filing a joint return, while $25 is the maximum federal tax credit. Both would apply to a minimum $50 contribution, so the actual cost of a $50 contribution is only $15. For single persons, the maximum credits are $5 from the state and $12.50 from the federal government, so a $25 minimum contribution actually costs the single person only $7.50," he noted.

Good Hope 4-H Has Earth Week Poster Contest

Veterans Asked To Return Cards To VA Office

Veterans administration advises veterans studying at colleges and universities in Minnesota under the GI bill to return "cert" cards promptly to insure payment of education allowances for the final month of training.

Leo a. Bodde, acting director, VA center, Fort Snelling, explained that the certification of attendance card the veteran receives with his next to final check should be filled out, signed and returned to his VA regional office. Otherwise the agency can't prepare his final check for the current school year.

For most veterans, final months of training are May or June, and most "cert" cards will be mailed in April. Forms already have been mailed to veterans whose enrollment periods end earlier, however.

Bodde cited another reason veterans should return their "cert" cards promptly. If the card is not returned at the end of the current semester, the veteran cannot automatically be enrolled for upcoming summer or fall sessions if he plans to continue, he said.

It also was pointed out that veterans attending college under the GI bill must keep VA informed on changes in the number of dependents or education programs.

"At the same time," Bodde said, "college registrars should insure that the veterans enrollment for the school term is certified promptly to the veterans administration, to keep his allowance checks coming on time."

Details on education benefits are available at VA offices, local veterans service organizations and veterans county service officers.

Minnesota Has 1973 Reduction In Shoplifting

With the commencement on April 1 of the 1974 S.T.E.M. (Shoplifters Take Everybody's Money) campaign, W. John Bertram, chairman of S.T.E.M., announced that it would appear a reversal of a nationwide trend is taking place in Minnesota.

While shoplifting incidences have been increasing nationally at an annual rate of 10 per cent, state crime bureau figures of reportable incidences indicate a decrease for Minnesota during 1973.

Since its inception in April of 1973 S.T.E.M. of Minnesota has conducted an intensive educational campaign to help diminish the growing shoplifting problem, estimated to cost Minnesota retailers and consumers $500,000 every shopping day. There is not a facet of any community that is immune from shoplifting, Bertram said.

S.T.E.M. operates in conjunction with local Chambers of Commerce, interested citizens and divisions of the Minnesota department of education, in particular the vocational-technical division in high school, post secondary and adult levels of distributive education groups. Most advertising is public service contributed by the participating media.

Because of state-wide surveys of 7-12 grade students recently completed by the DECA clubs in Minnesota, Bertram announced this year's program would be expanded to more thoroughly cover elementary school students. The DECA study revealed 4.78 per cent of all students surveyed, first shoplifted while in elementary school.

Debby Gray, Minnesota DECA state president, commented, "The DECA clubs participate in promotion of the anti-shoplifting campaign not only through surveying but by also conducting various shoplifting awareness seminars in the schools and with the retailers of the business community. Over 50 such seminars have been held throughout the state this year."

Totally, over 42 per cent of the students surveyed admitted to have shoplifted at least once. Of those who admitted to having shoplifted, over 31 per cent admitted doing so more than five times.

$225.5 Million Available For REAP Program

Total authorized funding level of $225.5 million has been released for the reinstated 1973 rural environmental assistance program (REAP), the U.S. department of agriculture recently announced. $140 million of the $225.5 million had been initially allocated to the states when the program was announced in the fall of 1972.

Pennington county's initial allocation is $43,076 while Marshall county's initial allocation is $90,556, all of which will be used for conservation practices.

Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS), the agency that administers the program, said the total funding will be allocated to the states according to conservation needs.

The 1973 REAP was terminated in December of 1972. It was reinstated in March of 1974, following a U.S. district court decision reversing the termination action and extending the 1973 program through Dec. 31, 1974.

Under the extended REAP, farmers can apply for federal cost-share assistance for soil and water conservation and environmental protection measures needed on their farms.

REAP will continue to be funded and administered by ASCS. The soil conservation service will provide technical assistance, advise and recommendations on policies for soil and water conservation practices. The forest service will provide advise and recommendations on polices for all aspects of forestry practices. Extension service will provide educational support and assistance for increasing the effectiveness of the program.

Minnesota Crop Acreage Grows By 1.2 Million

Nearly 1.2 million additional acres of Minnesota crop land will be in production this spring compared to 1973, the department of natural resources reported.

Citing figures from the soil conservation service and the agricultural stabilization and conservation service, the department said that about 800,000 acres of this new crop land will come from lands that were in the "set aside" program last year.

"Set aside" lands are those that had been taken out of production under federal farm programs to reduce crop surpluses. DNR Commissioner Robert Herbst said such lands have played an important role in providing wildlife habitat in agricultural areas.

The SCS said surveys indicate that 239,000 acres of grass land and 37,000 acres of woodland will be converted to crops in Minnesota during 1974.

There are approximately 23 million acres in Minnesota classed as crop land.

Herbst said he is concerned about the effect on wildlife habitat and an anticipated loss through wind and water erosion of 8,900,000 tons of tops soil on the increased cropland acreage. About half of this loss is above what is considered an allowable loss.

Harry Major of the soil conservation service said much of the new crop land are soils which need practices such as minimum tillage, crop rotation, contouring, and grass water ways to reduce erosion losses.

Because of the high demand for grain and other crops and high prices, farmers are electing to place former "set aside" and other lands into production this year.

Herbst described the situation as "critical" for conservation and a challenge to soil and water conservation districts. He said the congress and the administration should make a committment to strengthen the SCS so as to assist local districts in implementing measures to minimize erosion losses.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express the findings and feelings I have as treasurer of the newly-formed Marshall County Improvement association.

The first time I met with the county commissioners along with three other men from our area, we wanted to find out just what they had planned for a law enforcement center as to the type of structure and cost and, of course, to try and persuade the commissioners to locate the law enforcement center in a centralized location in the county.

We were more or less told to go home and forget it. It couldn't be done and wasn't going to be done if it were up to them. We were shocked to think that we as taxpayers paying the wages and electing these commissioners were being told it's none of your business, we're going to build it here in Warren whether the taxpayers like it or not. In a lot of words and excuses that is what their answer amounted to. All we wanted was for them to consider centralizing the law enforcement center in the county to better serve all the people because our county has grown to where many of our county offices must at least start being built centrally in the county to serve all of its people equally.

We asked the commissioners to hold off on accepting or rejecting the architect's plans that day until we had a little time for them to find out how their constituents felt on this matter of centralization. From all indications Nilo Rantanen seemed the only one with an open ear. The commissioners at that meeting voted to accept the architect's plan, thereby the architect received $50,000 or 75 per cent of his fees without, 'I'm sure, 5 per cent of the people in Marshall county knowing what was going on. In other words we were building half of a new courthouse as well as a law enforcement center to the tune of nearly a million dollars. This the commissioners had to admit to after much questioning.

But we felt that if the people knew what was being proposed they would feel a vote by all the people in the county would be fair and also would know what was involved in this building issue.

We held a meeting at Newfolden. About 500 people were in attendance. We then organized and decided to go out with petitions to present to the commissioners to prove to them this is what the people want, not just four men.

We had approximately 3,700 signers. We met with the commissioners again the 9th of April, with a few hundred people at the court room in Warren. We had learned by this time that legally you cannot build a law enforcement center anywhere but in the county seat.

We presented the commissioners with our petitions to show them we had support. We then informed them we were going to circulate another petition to move the county seat and asked them if they would hold up building in Warren until we had our new petitions signed. After much discussion we were able to get a 20-day delay for the people to get this second petition signed.

While to some this seems to be quite involved, it is truly democracy in action.

We must have 3,838 signatures on this new petition in order to get a referendum vote to centralize the county seat. If we do (and we are certain of) then not sooner than 20 days nor later than 30 days after we present these petitions to the commissioners we will be voting to either centralize our new county seat or construct it in the southwestern corner of the county at Warren.

In the following paragraphs I will list some of the reasons we believe we must centralize this newly-constructed county seat.

Two wrongs do not make a right, meaning of course the county seat in our estimation should have been centralized more when it was erected the first time. And we feel and know you cannot expect to tax people all over a county and give only a portion of them representation and local facilities, like offices and county personnel in abundance in one area while the others take what is left over on a take it and like it basis.

All of us in Marshall county know what the county has and is developing fast in the eastern portions and should prosper even quicker in years to come, due to the change in our agricultural economy for one. There are many acres in eastern Marshall county to develop and draw population where we know this isn't so in the Valley, as it is now highly developed.

Our county engineer's office surely could function far better being centralized than off in one corner. Our law enforcement has one deputy at Grygla (which by the way is paid half by Beltrami county, to take care of its western reaches, and the other half is paid by Grygla) while Warren has the sheriff and two deputies all paid by Marshall county. I ask you, is this fair?

We feel with centralization one deputy could be centralized in the western end (not necessarily Warren) and one in the east end, one with the sheriff's office centrally.

Our county nurses—I know personally past and present ones—have discussed the distance to the east end from the office at Warren.

Our eastern 4-H clubs no longer go to Warren to attend 4-H meetings but go to Roseau instead. This is not right in this day and age to have a county seat which forces this on the people it is supposed to represent.

Some people in Warren have the feeling you just need your county seat once a year to go pay your taxes but we all know in today's fast moving and complex world it's not so.

Reasons Newfolden is specified in our petition are:

(1) We have to state a definite site according to law in our petition.

(2) Newfolden is geographically located in the center of the county.

(3) Newfolden does have the sewage lagoon and water mains in to government specifications which is a must to legally move the county seat to a new location.

Warren business men have stated a housing problem would exist for employees at Newfolden. I say it's not so. Those employees are working for taxpayers' dollars. All we agree to do is to pay their wages, not furnish their homes, too. If some did not wish to relocate they could drive; other people do. After all the citizens of eastern Marshall county have driven to Warren for generations with no compensation.

I feel the main thing to keep in mind about the centralization issue of our county seat is to think ahead to the next two to three generations and what it will mean to them since you can figure that those voting in this vote will never have the opportunity again to centralize the county seat.

The Warren power block which most of you county people are familiar with, especially the west end, are and will quote the high cost of building a whole new structure at a centralized location, but let me give you something to think about along with their ideas.

The structure to be built at Warren onto the old court house without your knowledge up until now has a cost figure of approximately $800,000. It is a two story building. We propose a one-story which is cheaper to construct.

At Warren you have to build an elevator costing $40,000, a fire wall, cost unknown. The eventual renovation of the old court house if not total replacement of the old structure in a matter of years could be another $800,000.

Warren happens to be in the flood plain for which the government says you have to have the first floor one foot above flood stage, also flood insurance which will run approximately 80 cents per $100 value of building per year. Figure it out yourself; it makes you a thinker, if nothing else!

Warren will also be telling you Newfolden doesn't have shopping facilities like they have. We say centralizing the county seat is the main issue; the rest will come if people merit its coming.

Warren, we feel and know, has more businesses but are not the best maybe either as evidenced by their number of local people shopping at Grand Forks or Thief River Falls.

We in our board feel Newfolden hasn't a power block like Warren which has definitely affected the governing powers in our county for the equality of all its people.

Thank you.

Lowell Lindemoen

Dear Citizens of Marshall County:

I would like to take issue with an editorial printed in the Warren Sheaf on April 10, 1974. The heading of the editorial reads "Another County Seat Fight".

When the Sheaf refers to this issue between the county commissioners and the citiznes of Marshall County as a fight it is beyond comprehension. We are not asking for a fight, we are asking for a vote, on a county matter, that will affect all the citizens of Marhall county for generations to come. To date members of the MCIA and the commissioners have sat down and discussed the legal avenues, in order to bring this important issue before the people of the county.

The MCIA has done everything the commissioners have asked, and the commissioners have acted on our request by agreeing to a 20-day moratorium on any decision-making on the pending project. This will give time to get the required signatures on the petitions so that a referendum vote on the location of the county seat can be held. I am sure the commissioners will agree there has been no fight. And as far as the MCIA is concerned there will not be one.

Another statement made in that same editorial compares the tremendous costs to move the county seat and the $750,000 law enforcement center. The words "tremendous costs" are very misleading unless the Sheaf comes up with actual costs to locate the county seat in the center of the county. The editor, I believe, should refrain from misleading comments. The MCIA hopes to have figures shortly on the costs to locate the county seat in the center of the county. All the citizens and the Sheaf can study these figures and make their own determinations.

To compare 1974 to 1890, when Warren and Argyle battled for the county seat and the bad feelings that prevailed at that time, is unbelievable. First of all, we are not trying to reopen old wounds or inflict any new ones nor are we trying to cause ill will. Asking for a chance to vote on the county seat will not cause rampant ill will, nor will it reopen old wounds.

If the signatures on the petitions total 3,838 or more, a referendum vote by every legal voter, on the location of the county seat, will be held. If Warren wins or if Warren loses, the voices of the citizens of this county will have been exercised. The decision does not lie with a few men in Warren. The MCIA will stand by the decision of the citizens.

The last paragraph of that same editorial is also misleading. It said an election will be expensive and divisive. To make a claim that your vote is expensive is to say to the citizens of this county that your voice on issues that affect your families and communities is too expensive to be heard via a vote using election machinery. No matter what it costs to have your voice heard it's dirt cheap compared to having someone making decisions for you. That is now dictatorships are started. And as far as a divisive election, there will always be two sides to any election. The majority rules and the citizens of this county will obey whatever the majority decides. We all have a right to vote; let's exercise that right.

Robert L. Fincher
Marshall County
Improvement Association

Dear Editor:

There has been a concern of some people of the county that the city of Newfolden does not have facilities to accommodate the county seat and the population influx that would follow.

The city of Newfolden has just completed a new sewage system and lagoon, which included a storm sewer system. This system meets all state and federal regulations. We also have a large supply of good water for a larger population. Property for additional housing is readily available.

The business community of Newfolden unanimously favors this new facility and has agreed to provide the land, free to the county, for the new facility. The business community is willing to expand and improve as the needs arise.

A new modern high school was completed four years ago. The curriculum of Marshall County Central high school is second to none in the area. Over 100 students could be added to the enrollment without additional buildings; 104 high school students from the eastern part of the county will not be attending next year, which would leave ample room for added students in the future. The two elementary schools located in Viking and Newfolden are in excellent condition with a full and varied curriculum. A new enlarged lunch room in Newfolden was added in 1973.

A variety of churches in Newfolden can provide for the religious needs of the citizens of the area.

I would note that the MCIA board does represent all areas of the county, as the membership on the board was elected by people of the different areas. This association represents a large area, not just a few interested citizens living in Newfolden.

Yours truly,
Percey Stokke
Mayor

The famous Indianapolis Speedway was originally built in appreciation to the automotive industry by Carl Fischer, James Allison, A.C. Newby and Frank Wheeler. The first race was held on August 19, 1909, over an unpaved track. Ray Harroun won the first race at the Speedway on May 30, 1911, and since that time, Memorial Day has been the traditional date for the classic. Not only as a sporting event, but the Speedway race plays a large part in the research and experimentation of the car industry. Engineers in studying the races and cars' performances, apply new findings to autos in general use by the public.

HECC Approves Reciprocity In School Tuition

Minnesota higher education coordinating commission has approved the renewal of its reciprocal tuition agreement with Wisconsin for the 1974-75 school year.

Under the agreement, Minnesota residents may attend public institutions in Wisconsin as undergraduate, graduate or professional students on the same conditions of tuition and performance required for Wisconsin residents. Similarly, a Wisconsin student can attend public institutions in Minnesota at prevailing in-state tuition rates.

All public collegiate institutions and public vocational schools are included under the agreement which is designed to provide greater availability and accessibility of post-secondary educational opportunities and achieve improved economy.

The "common market" agreement has received national attention from educators and legislators who view it as a trend in new efforts toward regional cooperation and new methods of assessing tuition.

According to preliminary figures, more than 900 Wisconsin students were attending Minnesota institutions in the fall of 1973 and more than 1,700 Minnesota residents were attending Wisconsin institutions under the program for the same period.

On June 30, according to the accounting procedure that went into effect this year, each state will figure the amount of tuition money it lost by allowing nonresidents to pay the resident tuition fees. The state with the larger net loss will be reimbursed by the other.

Payment under the education reciprocity agreement is tied to a tax reciprocity agreement between the two states. Legislation passed this year in Minnesota provides the mechanism for making these payments.

It is expected Minnesota will reimburse Wisconsin for tuition, and Wisconsin is expected to pay Minnesota under the reciprocal tax arrangement as more Wisconsin people are employed in Minnesota than Minnesotans in Wisconsin.

Subsequent approval of the agreement in Minnesota is also required by the state board for vocational education, state college board, state board for community colleges and University of Minnesota board of regents. The regents recently ratified the agreement.

PROPER DRAINAGE is important in northern Minnesota as snow melts in the spring. Area residents are aware of the problems caused by water backing up as snow melts faster than drainage facilities can cope with the run-off. This culvert in Thief River Falls along Highway 59 was apparently plugged Friday morning. Water was filling one ditch with little in the other and none flowing through the pipe.

Sen. Humphrey Comments About High Power Rate

(Following are comments by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey regarding the increasing costs of gas and electric service.)

Gas and electric bills are skyrocketing. In the five years from 1968 to 1973, gas and electric rates have jumped by 24 per cent. In the last six months alone, electricity rates have gone up by 10 per cent and gas rates by seven per cent.

Now the chairman of the federal power commission, John Nassikas, has testified at a congressional hearing I charied this week that, if inflation is not brought under control, "we will see a tripling of electric utility rates long before 1990."

The cruelest blow of all for the consumer is the mushrooming rate increase requests now being made to offset revenues lost because of energy conservation.

The utilities are saying "thanks" by attempting to raise rates to make up for lost sales.

A study prepared at my request by the Library of Congress reveals that 15 applications for so-called conservation adjustments have been filed by gas and electric companies in 13 states.

If these requests are granted, not only will it be unfair to people who sacrificed voluntarily, but it will undermine the new conservation ethic we are trying to foser in this country.

The price increases thus far have not succeeded in restoring the utilities industry to sound financial health. Thus, traditional regulation at this time appears to be a dead-end street. Some new approaches are needed.

One advocated by Chairman Nassikas is to change the method of computing electric rates and have peak load pricing, as some European nations do. This simply means that a higher price would be paid for electricity used by the consumer during daily and seasonal peak periods.

Another is charging an "inverted rate" for electricity so that as the usage of electricity increases the cost also increases.

Finding the right answers to relieving the financial burden for the consumer and yet assuring a fair return for the nation's gas and electric utilities will demand our best efforts in the months ahead.

EDA Grant Helps Create Jobs In Virginia, Minn.

Approval of a $250,000 grant to help create immediate construction jobs for unemployed workers in St. Louis county was announced recently by William W. Blunt, jr., assistant secretary of commerce for economic development.

St. Louis County is the applicant for the grant from the economic development administration, U.S. department of commerce.

The funds will be used to construct a maintenance facility for the county highway department at Virginia. The new facility will combine the operations of the highway department at Eveleth and Virginia.

EDA approved the grant under an amendment to the public works and economic development act authorizing federal assistance for useful public facilities in areas of high unemployment.

County officials say that 17 unemployed or underemployed workers will be hired for the construction project. Work is scheduled to get under way in 90 days and be completed in a year.

St. Louis county will provide $1,210,000 to complete the $1,460,000 total project cost.

Advise Veterans To Ignore Letter About Bonus Fee

Minnesota veterans affairs commissioner Elmer L. Childress has issued a warning to Vietnam veterans to ignore letters now being received from a Golden, Colo., address which promises payment of the state bonus if a fee is paid to the person sending the letters.

No payment is needed to secure the bonus, emphasize Childress and George Winter, Vietnam bonus administrator in Minnesota.

Childress says applications are available through a phone call to the Vietnam bonus division at the veterans building in St. Paul or by written request.

Veterans service officers in each county will assist all who care to apply without cost. Matter of the possible fraud attempt has been called to the attention of the Minnesota attorney general's office, Childress said.

Mondale Thinks Oil Industry Is Hoarding Supply

"Latest figures on oil industry operations raise the distinct possibility that the industry may be deliberately hoarding supplies in the hope of jacking up oil prices for good," speculates Sen. Walter Mondale.

"According to the american petroleum Institute's (API) figures, stocks of available crude oil rose from 230 million barrels to 245 million between February 1 and March 15. This represents a substantial increase in the amount of raw material available to American refiners for production of gasoline and other products," he said.

"But, curiously, at the same time, American oil refineries lowered their rate of operation from 84.9 per cent of full capacity to 81.9 per cent.

"The industry would have the public believe that part of the drop in refinery output is due to a lack of crude oil to refine. But this explanation cannot be squared with the large increase in crude oil available to refiners," the senator said.

"In addition, despite industry promises that gasoline production would be maximized in preparation for greater springtime demand, the increase in production has been marginal. The API report shows that in the week ending February 1, American refineries produced 5.89 million barrels a day. And during the week ending March 15, the total was almost identical—about 5.91 million barrels a day.

"In addition, administration energy spokesman William Simon now tells us that due to an increase in the price of Arab oil, gasoline will soon cost between 60 and 75 cents a gallon," Sen. Mondale said.

"This scenario seems to be laying the groundwork for a situation in which Americans will unquestioningly accept higher gasoline prices during the next few months. To the extent that high-price oil and refined products are imported, some price increases might be expected. But the administration insists on clouding the issue by trying to make American consumers believe that higher-priced foreign oil is the sole culprit behind rising domestic prices.

"It is important for the public to realize that the industry's own figures show that crude oil reserves—the great bulk of which come from domestically-produced crude oil—are apparently being stockpiled by the industry to take advantage of the higher prices yet to come. This must be stopped, if the American consumer is to expect any relief in fuel prices over the months ahead.

"In an effort to have the matter clarified, I have written to energy chief Simon, asking him to explain the administration's position in light of API's figures. Hopefully, public pressure in this area will result in policies that help, instead of hurt, the consumer," Mondale concluded.

Minnesota Ranks Third In Bald Eagle Numbers

A survey made in 1973 by the U.S. fish and wildlife service reveals that Minnesota is a popular nesting location for bald eagles..

In fact, Minnesota ranks second only to Wisconsin in the number of active bald eagle nests found by wildlife researchers and is the leading state among the lower 48 in the number of young eagles produced.

The survey disclosed 104 active nests in Minnesota which produced 114 bald eagles.

Wisconsin could claim 108 nests but only produced 107 young eagles.

Together, the two states produced almost one half of the total number of bald eagles hatched in the 48 states in 1973.

Florida ranked third in the number of nests and number of young produced.

Based on the survey, the Fish and Wildlife Survey, the Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that the United States south of Alaska has about 1,000 pairs of bald eagles.

Crookston Claims Expected Win In NWAC Indoor Track Meet

Pre-meet favorite Crookston fulfilled the favorite's role Tuesday by winning the record setting 1974 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet in the Crookston winter shows building.

Crookston, a unanimous favorite entering the meet, replaced Thief River Falls champion in the second year event by totaling 73 points to finish a hefty 16 points ahead of second place Bemidji with a 56 point score. Fergus Falls placed third with 42 points, followed by Thief River Falls 32, Breckenridge 20 and East Grand Forks 16.

A total of 11 new conference indoor records were set during the 15 event meet.

Defending meet champion Thief River Falls, in a midst of a rebuilding year, claimed two 1974 first place ribbons, setting a pair of new NWAC records in the process.

Speedy junior Jerry Sandahl remained unbeaten in low hurdle competition this spring by winning Tuesday's 70 yard event in an NWAC record 8.4. Sandahl had earlier claimed individual low hurdle wins at Shanley and Dragon invitational meets. Thief River Falls also claimed a surprising first place finish in the mile sprint medley relay race in an NWAC record time of 3:25.2. Prowler relay team members were Sandahl, Joe Sorvig, Jeff Houfek and Brian Phelps.

Crookston won eight events to run away with the coveted NWAC indoor title as Pirate thinclads set seven new conference records. Record setting Crookston first place performances included two wins by sprinter Don Moore in the 70 (7.3) and 220 (24.2) yard dashes; Len Devos, shot put (53-10); Tom Longtin, long jump (20-1¾); Nathan Hanson, 880 (2:07.1); the 760 yard relay unit of Jeff Radi, Devos, Jon Burkhardt and Moore (1:25.7); and the 1560 yard relay team of Mike Ranum, Mike Finkenbinder, Hanson and Rob Ranum (3:06.2).

The other Crookston win was a non-record triumph by Cory Hanson in the pole vault competition with a leap of 12-0.

Steve Wald of East Grand Forks and Jim Golden of Fergus Falls established the other two NWAC records in Tuesday's meet as Wald high jumped 6-3 and Golden turned in a 53.9 in the 440.

Records weren't set in the long distance mile and two mile events where Fergus Falls runners won both races. Paul Porter won the mile in 4:51.9 and teammate Tony Robertson won the two mile in 10:49. The meet's other non-record first place finish went to Bemidji's Jay Aakhus with a 9.2 effort in the 70 yard high hurdles.

Other Thief River Falls points were accumulated with third place finishes by Sandahl in the 70 yard high hurdles, Jim Carlson in the high jump and by Brian Phleps in the mile. Prowler fourth places were recorded by Dan Heleren in the two mile, Joe Sorvig in the 70 yard low hurdles and by the 760 relay team of Jim Elleson, Tom Barry, Tim Benedict and Carlson. Thief River Falls fifth place finishes were turned in by Dan Kezar in the two mile, Carlson in the long jump and the 1560 relay team of Dave Cork, Jay Narverud, Mike Burstad and Jeff Johnson.

Prowler Baseball Season Will Open Saturday At RLF

Coach Ralph Skay's Lincoln high school baseball team will open its 1974 spring season Saturday when the Prowlers travel to Red Lake Falls for a 2 p.m. season debut against the always strong Eagles.

Although Thief River Falls has been practicing since April 1, Saturday's season opener will be the first opportunity the team has had to get outside this spring with the two weeks of pre-season practice confined inside the Thief River Falls sports arena because of the damp spring weather.

"We're ready to play," voiced Skay despite his team's lack of outdoor practice time. "We want to play a game; there's no use in waiting any longer."

Skay, who is entering his 22nd year at the Prowler helm indicated a possible Prowler starting line-up for Saturday's opener might find senior Greg Sorenson catching; either sophomore Chris Biegner or junior Scott Kays at first base; senior Duane Dicken at second; senior Cliff Shumway at shortstop; and senior Jon Peterson at third base.

The Prowler outfield will probably have junior Jeff Tunberg in centerfield; either Jeff Lindquist or Don Fornery, a pair of sophomores, in leftfield; and either junior Tim Erickson or sophomore Jeff Joppru in rightfield.

Skay plans to use three different pitchers in Saturday's seven inning game—all righthanded seniors. Randy Dallmann will probably get the starting call, followed by Joel Folger and Jeff Langlie.

"We're really not too sure about our line-up just yet," pointed out Skay. "It's (the line-up) real tentative at this point, although we would like to get as many boys as possible into the game—say 16 or 17 players—to get a look at everybody."

Thief River Falls will host its 1974 home opener a week from today (Wednesday) when the Prowlers entertain Kennedy at 4:30 p.m. on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond.

The Lincoln junior varsity squad, coached by Prowler assistant coach Charlie Cornell, will open its 1974 season Monday at Fertile. The JV's will also be in action Tuesday, traveling to Karlstad. Both Prowler B squad games will have 4:30 p.m. starting times.

LHS Basketball Banquet Is Held Tuesday In TRF

Lincoln high school basketball team officially closed its successful 1973-74 season Tuesday night at the team's post season banquet in Thief River Falls.

Prowler coaches addressed the group of players and parents and athletic letters and special awards were presented by head coach Lee Swanson.

Earning 1973-74 basketball letters were seniors Ed Sabol, Randy Dallmann, Bob Mattson, Jon Peterson, Duane Dicken and Kent Christensen, along with juniors Jerry Sandahl, Greg Leach, Dicken Johnson, Wayne Peterson, Dave Carlson, Dave Grothe, Brian Walle and Dallas Kemmer and sophomore Don Forney. Letters were also presented to student managers Dave Flattum and Mark Hemmesch.

Special individual awards were also presented to Wayne Peterson, Kemmer, Sandahl and Dicken. Peterson was chosen as the team's most improved player, Sandahl and Kemmer were co-recipients of the hustle award and Dicken was named as the team's most valuable player.

Dicken and Christensen, 1973-74 Prowler co-captains, presented the Prowler basketball, symbolic of the Prowler captain positions, to Peterson, Sandahl and Kemmer, voted by teammates as tri-captains of the 1974-75 Thief River Falls basketball team.

In another special award, Merle Carlson was named as Thief River Falls basketball fan of the year.

Youth Firearms Program Starts

Youth firearms safety training program will begin Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium with Allan Paulson as instructor. Boys and girls who will be 12 years old by November of 1974 are eligible to participate in the course.

Northland Golfers Expect A Banner Spring Season

Moum

Metusalem

Sorensen

Adams

Northland community college golf team will begin what coach Al Adams hopes will be a championship spring season Monday when the Northmen take part in an invitational meet at Fergus Falls.

The Northland golfers will also be in action Tuesday when the squad travels to Anoka to take part in the Anoka Ramsey community college invitational—a meet that was originally scheduled to be Northland's season opener last week before wet grounds on the Bunker Hills course forced postponement of the meet.

"If it stays nice and the kids can get outside I think we'll have a real good chance of winning the region, and that's our goal this year," boasted Adams.

An abundant supply of golfing talent provides Adams with his high pre-season optimism. Three returning veterans back from last year's strong Northland team that finished third in the NJCAA region XIII meet will form a strong nucleus for this year's expected strong squad.

The returning Northland lettermen include Thief River Falls sophomores Jay Moum, Lee Sorensen and Mark Metusalem. Sorensen was a second place finisher in the 1973 regional meet, qualifying for a spot in the prestigious national junior college golf tournament in Arizona. Metusalem is the 1973 Thief River Falls club champion and Moum is a former two-time Thief River Falls club champ. Moum and Sorensen were also consistant performers in area shortstop tournaments last summer.

Three talented freshmen golfers will push Sorensen, Moum and Metusalem for varsity status this spring, including Jim Strandemo and Dave Kjos of Mahnomen and Dick Penning of Thief River Falls. Penning was the top golfer on Thief River Falls' 1973 district 31 championship squad and was the runner-up in last year's Thief River club championship. Strandemo and Kjos sparked Mahnomen to the 1973 region eight championship, with Strandemo being crowned as region eight medalist in last year's tournament played on the Thief River Falls course.

"The three boys we have back—Sorensen, Moum and Metusalem—will probably be our top three golfers considering their experience," said Adams. "But Penning, Strandemo and Kjos should be right in there."

Other team candidates trying to earn a spot in the strong Northland line-up are freshmen Ron Anderson (Warren), Kirk Whalley (Port Chester, N.Y.) and John Brahosky (TRF).

Adams noted his biggest problem at the present time is the unpredictable spring weather and determing who his top five golfers will be. A junior college team consists of five golfers, with the scores of the low four team members counting toward the final team score.

"With the complete changes that sometimes takes place on junior college teams from one season to the next we really don't know the strengths of any of the other teams," explained Adams. "Rochester is the defending state and region champion and they'll probably be strong again, but with a little luck we should be awful hard to beat this year. We nearly won it last year, and we would have if we would have had a complete five man team."

The rest of the Northland spring schedule is headlined by Northland's own invitational meet on Wed., May 1. Northland will also compete in an invitational meet at Crookston on Wed., May 8. The MJCAA Northern Division tournament will be played Tues., May 14, at Grand Rapids. The MJCAA state tournament and NJCAA region XIII tournaments will be conducted simultaneously Monday and Tuesday, May 20 and 21, on the Bunker Hills course in Anoka.

Adams had his team's season sights set on the region XIII meet. A region title would qualify the Northland squad for a berth in the national junior college golf meet at the Lehigh Acres Country Club near Fort Myers, Florida.

Present officers of the association include Ev. Ault, president; Ardel Liden, vice president; Richard Jorde, secretary; and William Penning, treasurer.

Ault said that the organization has completed a successful year with its first season on artificial ice in the curling building. League play was able to continue without interruption due to weather and financial aspects of the conversion to artificial ice are progressing satisfactorily.

Saturday evening's meeting will be for members of both men's and women's leagues.

School Athletic Program To Be Presented Mon.

Public presentation of information relating to Thief River Falls school athletic program will be presented Monday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria. The presentation will be part of the regular meeting of the board of education.

Hand-out information will be provided on numbers of youngsters participating, numbers of teams, coaches, games played and other items.

A question period will follow the presentations which will be introduced by Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln high school principal.
